KIDNAP ACCUSER OF KLAN

ATROCITIES OF GREEKS IN TURK WAR REVEALED

Red Cross Reports After Inquiry.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—That the retreating Greek armies destroyed scores of cities and villages in Anatolia, reducing a population of 180,000, largely Musselmans, to homelessness and starvation, and committed other outrages, are charges contained in a report of a joint investigating commission of the International Red Cross and the International Union for Children's Relief, made public here today.

"We have never been connected with a more painful mission than this pilgrimage across these ruins, or with a sadder aspect than that of the inhabitants of this country," said the members of the commission in signing the report.

Like a Blast of Lightning.

"Involuntarily our thoughts were taken back to Pompeii and Messina; but while the annihilation of these cities was due to natural causes, the destruction of the villages of Anatolia, situated at considerable distances from the front, has been, to say the least, methodically perpetrated by 'Christians,' in the heart of the twentieth century.

"Military necessity, they may say in Europe! For our part we would not know how to admit such an explanation."

The sensational disclosures are expected to come in for consideration by the immigration committees of congress, in connection with pending bills to lift the immigration restriction bars so as to admit thousands of Greek and Armenian refugees from the near east theater of war.

Churches Would Open Gates.

The proposed legislation is being strongly urged by American church and other welfare organizations. Nearly 200 such refugees are now at Ellis Island, being held under suspended deportation orders and more are reported coming.

The commission's report pays a high tribute to the work of the Turkish Red Cross, and speaks in complimentary terms of the attitude of the Turkish authorities toward relief work in general and the activities of the commission in particular.

On Oct. 9, the commission set out from Smyrna by train to visit the cities of Manissa, Kassaba, Salihi, and Alascheir, taking them four carloads of provisions.

Met by Turk Red Cross.

"Manissa, or Magnesic, was a flourishing city of 90,000 inhabitants, situated about sixty-five kilometers distant, or more than 200 kilometers from the front," the report says. "The local authorities and the representatives of the Turkish Red Cross, having been advised by the vali, met us at the station. From a minaret we had a panoramic view of the city and we were able to take several photographs.

"The city had been completely destroyed before the arrival of the nationalist troops. There remain now only 1,140 houses of the 14,000 formerly there. Several minarets and mosques had resisted the destruction, thanks to their massive construction, but had been profaned in the interior. Not having been able to save any of their household utensils, bed clothing, or tools, the inhabitants were reduced to clearing away the debris from the streets with their bare hands.

Children Under 14 Fed.

"We handed over to the local authorities 30,000 rations of food, coming from the International Union for Children's Relief, with instructions that they be distributed among the neediest children of less than 14 years of age at the rate of one ration daily for each child.

"Kassaba is the name of a locality, the site of which we were shown, about twenty-eight kilometers east of Smyrna. A part of the inhabitants had emigrated toward the interior; there remained at the time of our visit about 15,000 inhabitants, who were in extreme destitution. They made bread from burned grain salvaged from the debris. Of the 6,327 houses originally making up the city, only 201 remained. We have allotted to that city 30,000 rations and 100 blankets. The mayor and his assistant begged us to send axes, picks, and shovels to clear away the streets. As everywhere, they needed blankets and construction materials, in order to erect shelters to protect them before the rainy season.

Another City Murdered.

"According to information furnished by the authorities, Kaza contained 30,000 inhabitants, of which about 27,000 were Mussulmans. Now

REVIEW OF 1922.

Part 3 of this newspaper contains a comprehensive account of the activities of 1922 in finance, business, fashions, politics, sports and crime, together with a review of the weather and a forecast for 1923.

ROBBER SLAIN FROM AMBUSH DURING HOLDUP

Hastily Hidden Man Fires on Pair.

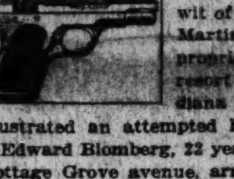
The one-arm gun added materially yesterday to the notches in its holiday record of death and other forms of outlawry.

One robber fell dead in a fusillade from a man concealed in a closet when he attempted to hold up a south side resort. One west side character shot and killed another west side character, presumably in a war over vice protection.

A group of nicely barbered and tailored north side youths were identified as holdup "sheiks" and carried the usual armament.

Two hours after being discharged a probationary policeman, still retaining his gun, turned bandit and held up a couple in the street.

There also was a run of less momentous crime.



One robber was shot and killed, and another captured early yesterday, when the quick wit of Mrs. Libbie Martin-Hartman, proprietor of a resort at 3000 Indiana avenue, frustrated an attempted holdup.

Edward Blomberg, 22 years old, 3007 Cottage Grove avenue, arrested as he fled from the scene of the shooting, yesterday confessed to participation in the attempted robbery, according to the police. On advice of his brother, John W. Blomberg, proprietor of an automobile service station at 114 East 30th street, the younger Blomberg made a clean breast of the affair.

Identified by Brothers.

Young Blomberg said he had been visiting at the home of his brother Saturday night. He left about 1 o'clock Sunday morning, Smith following him out with the suggestion that they take a walk.

After strolling about for an hour, they came to the Hartman woman's resort. There Smith thrust a revolver into his hand, Blomberg said, with the admonition to follow if he wanted to make some "easy money."

Covers Woman with Gun.

"Where's the money?" Smith asked.

"It's in the front room," the woman replied and turned to lead the way, Blomberg said he and Smith followed, the latter in the lead.

As she entered the door of the front room, the woman whispered a warning to Martin Dwyer, 25 years old, 4122 Grand boulevard, a visitor, who backed into a closet before the bandits came into the room.

Dwyer Opens Fire.

While Smith was lining up the other inmates, Ruth Sherwood, May Ward and Catherine Thomas, and Joseph Burns, 2900 Prairie avenue, Dwyer opened fire from his place of concealment. He shot six times, two bullets striking Smith in the chest, and a third in the abdomen.

Firing at Mrs. Martin-Hartman as he ran, Smith made his way to a rear stairway, down which he stumbled, to fall dead in the alley.

Blomberg dived through a closed window, he said, and landed on the roof of a store below. He scrambled to the ground and ran, but was captured at 31st street and Michigan avenue by Patrolman Cornelius Ryan.

Dwyer and Burns and the four women are being held pending an investigation.

SLAIN IN VICE WAR

Edward Johnson, reputed collector for a group of politicians said to control vice on the west side, was shot to death yesterday by Frank Pope, in the latter's saloon at 811 West Monroe street, during an altercation believed to have started over the amount of tribute resort keepers should pay.

Pope, arrested with Harold Fogarty,

PART II.—CHAPTER X.

Kewpie's mother watched jealously for those telltale signs that were to tell her a young man had come to take the place of the little boy that was. She could not realize the dreaded change had come at last. She longed to hold him in her arms as she had done only such a little while before, but a heartache told her he would now regard such endearments as childish and submission to them unmanly.

He was a little boy no longer, and he lost no chance of conveying the fact. It cropped out in the many little mannerisms of speech and action which he had copied from various college heroes who serve as unconscious models for the younger classmen.

The way he leaned back with superior disdain and made cynical comments about certain college rules was exactly the attitude and tone of Welby, '24, one of the richest and most decorative of the upper classmen. Many freshmen imitated Welby's technique.

And then, when Kewpie, with pitying condescension, reviled the miserable "grinds" who led the lives of grubworms, he was borrowing the manner and tone of De Willing, '23, the best looking man of his class, whose satire was as stinging as his appearance was attractive. De Willing was one of Kewpie's models, and the latter strove hard to acquire the cynical curve of the lip and the caustic comment.

Mrs. Williams watched these strange new mannerisms with wonder. What a change, in only a few months! Would he ever again be her own little Arthur, or was this what happened to all boys who grow up and go away to college and then never again come back the same?

The glow of Christmas had come and gone. The Williamses had few social connections, and those were with neighbors who lived as simply as themselves. Two local dances and various winter sports with old high school associates were the extent of Kewpie's holiday dissipations, so that long before the vacation was over he was impatient to be back in the great college world, an impatience which he did not successfully conceal and which was an added arrow in his mother's heart.

She spoke to her husband about it.

"I'm afraid it's dull here for Arthur," she sighed (Kewpie had not disclosed his nickname).

"Has he said anything?" asked her husband dully.

"Oh, no, he wouldn't let us suspect for anything, but I know. I wish we could make it a little more lively for him."

"I think we're doing enough by sending him to college. The Lord knows that's job enough for us."

He paused. "Before he goes back, we must caution him about his expenses. He must be made to realize I'm not a rich man."

"Oh, please, Henry, don't bring money matters up while he is here. It will spoil everything. We must make him as happy as possible, and not do anything to worry or annoy him."

Mr. Williams shrugged his shoulders. There was a faint suggestion of bitterness in his eyes.

"If he goes on at the rate he did the first term, I'll be hopelessly swamped, that's all. Don't you suppose he could get some work to do in college?—a lot of other boys work their way through."

"Oh, Henry, please don't suggest it. You know how proud he is, and we mustn't break his spirit. I'll work my head off to make both ends meet."

He patted her hand tenderly.

"Yes, I know, dear, but we mustn't spoil the boy. We may be doing him more harm than good. He may be getting the wrong perspective entirely."

It was agreed that Kewpie's holidays should not be spoiled by financial annoyances, and as New Year's approached his eagerness to be away hurt his mother more than she dared confess, even to herself.

"I suppose it's the way with all boys," she tried to console herself.

Nothing had been said about Kewpie's marks in college. That, like finances, was a delicate subject and one which his mother, to save his feelings, refrained from broaching.

One evening just before New Year's Kewpie came in to find his parents in the midst of one of their serious discussions, of which he had noticed more than one of late.

"What's the matter, folks?" he sang out.

"Oh, nothing, Artie," hurriedly exclaimed his mother, flushing, while his father smiled awkwardly.

"I thought maybe you were mapping out your New Year's resolutions, or something. Only, you have nothing to swear off, have you?" And then, in De Willing's best style, he added: "Cheer up! The first hundred years are the hardest. It's a gay life if you don't weaken."

His father regarded him queerly.

"Are you making any new resolutions?" he asked in a low voice.

"Oh, yes, the usual ones—work hard, economize, go to bed early, and so forth. The old, time honored ones."

"Thank God!" exclaimed his father fervently, and Kewpie stared at him in astonishment. Quite suddenly he experienced an uncomfortable sense of humiliation.

LEARNS ENTIRE NEW TESTAMENT AND MOST OF OLD

Suppose you were asked to stand on your feet for fifteen hours and repeat passages from the Bible verbatim during the whole period, could you do it?

There is one minister in Chicago who can do this, for he has committed to memory the entire New Testament and the major portions of every Old Testament book. He is the Rev. Henry H. Halley, 5035 Grand boulevard, a minister of the Disciples of Christ denomination.

In answer to questions why he undertook such an unusual task, he said:

"In the first place, I loved the Bible and enjoyed reading and studying it. About twelve years ago I began memorizing certain chapters and stories, without any intention of going through the entire Bible, but the more I memorized the easier it became. I do not have an unusual memory. I simply learned because I loved the doing of it and because I worked hard and long at my task."

Yesterday Mr. Halley recited the entire story of the crucifixion of Christ at three Baptist churches, and in one he was encored four times and recited for thirty-five minutes longer than his regular program.

VAN CAMP, YALE ATHLETE, DIES IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Cortland Van Camp III., Yale freshman and athlete, son of Samuel G. Van Camp and grandson of Cortland Van Camp, president of the Van Camp Hardware and Iron company, home for the holidays, was killed early this morning when the sedan he was driving leaped over a concrete retaining wall on the Millersville road north of the city and plunged into Fall creek.

Young Van Camp was 19 years old. He had been attending New Year's parties Saturday night and left shortly after midnight to meet a group of friends at the home of Stoughton Fletcher, about one-eighth of a mile from the scene of the accident.

Bernhardt Has Relapse; Forced to Cancel Play

PARIS, Dec. 31.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has had a slight relapse, according to the newspaper Gaulois, and under the direction of her doctors has informed Sacha Guitry that she will be unable to take the role in his new play that was written for her.

COLD WAVE DUE AS MOON WANES, MAXWELL SAYS

BY SELBY MAXWELL.

The pylon of the coming storm is standing over us, towering seven miles into the sky. It is a pillar of white steam, facing the full moon. We feel its warm breath, the south wind; we see our heavens overcast with cloud. It is holding up the cold of January. When the full moon passes tomorrow it will collapse, and icy winds will envelop us once more.

The clear, cold skies of mid-December have moved to the east of us. They are piled up somewhere over the Atlantic ocean, or perhaps the Arctic, and are blocking the free sweep of the earth's air. All of our recent cloudinesses have been flattened in an east and west direction, as though two giant hands were mashing their soft sides together.

Wind Fights Losing Battle.

Violent blizzards swept the Atlantic coast last week, as the winds tried to buck the cold. The jam will give way about Jan. 3, the day after full moon. Our winds, even though far removed, will feel the freedom and will freshen into icy blasts.

Signs of the coming break are already at hand. Since Dec. 22, the swings of temperature over Chicago have grown increasingly violent, as the wet air struggled in its bonds. Steam is piling up in the air. Whenever cloudy skies last for several days, with increasing winds but no break, be sure that a cold wave is coming.

Eight December Storms Foretold.

A check of the prediction that THE TRIBUNE made for December reveals that out of the ten storms of that month eight were foretold to within five degrees of the average for the month. There were five unusual features during the month, the cold waves of Dec. 13, 16 and 18, warm, foggy weather on Christmas day and an unusually warm spell on Dec. 30. THE TRIBUNE predicted three of them all within a few hours. It also hit the kind of a sky three times out of five.

75,000 Jam Cafes; See No Dry Agents

Chicago brought in the new year with celebrations running from church services and home watch parties to liquor larks and all night frolics which became so joyous and hilarious that future New Year's eve revels will be great or small only by comparison with the one which sent the 1922 calendar into the trash basket.

The city put on its dress suit, took a tin horn in one hand and a rattle in the other, and with well stocked hips announced to the world in general that it was out for a good time—and had it.

The dust threatened by the federal agents was turned to mud, the crowds in the entertainment places were the greatest in history, the money spent broke all records, the club and home entertainments were more elaborate than ever.

Liquor Goes in Everything.

Thousands of automobilists rushed dunce-capped and throwing confetti all over the city. Traffic was so congested in the loop that it took fifteen minutes to go from Michigan avenue to the College inn. These crowded into cabarets, hotels, and cafés, many of them with liquor in golf bags, suit cases, baskets, and coats.

It was the city's second night of celebration, but there were no signs of fatigue from Saturday night's revels.

The prohibition department made several raids on little known places—mostly black and tan. There were probably 75,000 celebrants in the various gathering places. About half a dozen arrests were made. The fashionable outlying north and south side and loop places were not molested.

Lines Form Outside Cafés.

All of them had sold every reservation days ago. The lobbies, foyers, and, in some cases, even the cloak rooms were filled with tables. Long lines formed outside the south side cabarets, but the people inside couldn't make room had they wanted to.

A big six footer stood at 22d and State streets and openly solicited trade for what he insisted was the finest liquor made.

There were no hip pocket searches reported, and if the full dress suit brigade of prohibition agents was on duty the revelers evidently so far forgot themselves that they couldn't tell the difference between an agent and a waiter, and no one seemed to care.

Seven Squads, but Where?

Seven squads of prohibition men were on duty, but Chicago didn't seem to know it.

Saturday morning the city had the biggest liquor supply on hand since prohibition. Today it probably has the smallest.

The College inn, the Marigold, the Rainbo Gardens, Colosimo's, Freibergs, and nearly all such places had to close their doors, so great were the crowds.

The city spent $600,000 for food alone, it was estimated. It added many thousands for taxicabs, not to mention the cost of bonded supplies. Every woman in the city seemed to have a new evening gown, and the gardens looked like a great fashion parade.

Keep At It All Night.

The usual tooting of horns and blowing of whistles starting at midnight lasted for thirty minutes outside, but inside the celebrations were scheduled to last until daylight or later.

Society spent the evening at home mostly. The Casino club had a watch party and amateur vaudeville program, other clubs waived their usual Sunday night rules to permit dancing, feasting and entertainment, while the gold coast and the north shore had many receptions.

Most of the social welcome to 1923 will come today, however, receptions in north shore homes and a dinner and reception at the Union League club heading the list. Entertainments by opera stars and actors will be given in many hospitals and institutions.

Peer All Around, See Little.

In making their raids the prohibition agents peered under tables and napkins, but in only a few cases did they find liquor. At the Schiller cafe, 320 East 21st street, they found nothing. Gin and wine were found in a saloon at 6401 South Park avenue, and two men were arrested. The Flume cafe produced two quarts of gin behind a bar, and the proprietor was arrested. Several other saloons and cafes were visited.

A detail of government men toured the county in the morning, but arrested only George Rees, proprietor of the Green Parrot just off the Waukegan road, near Dempster road. He was put in the Evanston jail, but Chief Leggett released him when he found no warrant had been left at the station.

Guy Ginders gave up his post as field director of the prohibition force at midnight when his resignation was effective, and J. E. Hurley succeeded him.

TOLD SECRET SERVICE ABOUT MASK KILLINGS

All Officials Notified in Louisiana.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mer Rouge, La., Dec. 31.—(Special.)—Harold L. Teegestron, timekeeper for the Southern Carbon company at Spyker, La., was kidnaped on the night of Dec. 29 by a band of masked men and has not been heard from since.

One report said seventeen men in autos composed the kidnaping party.

He recently gave the federal agents some information regarding the murders of Watt Daniels and Thomas Richards.

Word of the kidnaping came to the government agents tonight, and notice has been sent to Gov. Parker.

Military officers are waiting for word from Adjt. Gen. Toombs, who has been notified at New Orleans.

Spyker, where Teegestron was kidnaped, was the home of T. J. Burnett, the man who is locked in the Morehouse parish jail as one of the slayers of Daniels and Richards.

Teegestron, as timekeeper for the company where Burnett was employed, might give evidence regarding Burnett's claim he was working on the night of the murders.

OLD FRIENDS DIVIDED

BY ROBERT LEE.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mer Rouge, La., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—While soldiers and civilian officials are darting hither and thither among the bayous, the moss-clad forests, and the cotton plantations of this ancient Louisiana community, seizing this and that man for complicity in the hooded atrocities of Aug. 24, there is a group of pleasant, determined government men weaving a net in Mer Rouge with meshes small enough to entrap even such an impalpable thing as hypocrisy.

"It's the rank hypocrisy of the klan," one of these federal agents will say, "that glossed over such minor things as broken friendships and added a glamor even to murder. Men who had been comrades from the cradle were rent apart when one joined the klan; for his membership in the klan was his sufficient warrant to commit outrage even upon his old friend."

Naught Too Tiny to Rule.

Arrests are being made and evidence still being gathered for the open hearing on Jan. 5, and for the indictments and trials which are to follow in March and April, and chief in this evidence will be the array of facts which establishes the inescapable determination of the klan to possess even the thoughts, to say nothing of the lifelong allegiance of the subject member.

Dr. B. M. McKoin, once beloved of every inhabitant of Mer Rouge, has been alienated absolutely from the people who found him a charming companion, a steadfast friend, and a devoted citizen. He had clinked glasses many a time with Watt Daniels, butchered victim of the klan mob. Daniels was a graduate of the University of Louisiana, an intelligent, progressive planter, the son of an old American family, the bearer of a fine tradition, a soldier of distinction in France, a young man of resource and parish-wide acquaintance.

Trilby to Old Skip's Svengali.

Dr. McKoin is called an educated man, possessed of initiative and ambition, and yet McKoin fell under the spell of Capt. J. K. Skipworth, an old river character, a hard cursing, steel gray personality of the intolerant patriarchal type, and within a few short weeks had completely destroyed the bonds that held him to his oldest friends.

In the kloran, which is the sacred book of the invisible empire of the Ku Klux Klan, it is written that the fourfold duty of a klansman is to "worship God, be patriotic toward our country, be devoted and loyal to our emperor, and to practice clannishness toward his fellow klansmen."

Capt. Skipworth is clannish and he may worship God; but there is some doubt of his definition of patriotism toward the government when he scribed Gov. Parker as a "damned old braying jackass." He claims he did not say it. Evidence to the contrary will be produced.

Mystery Is Klan's Incense.

In the meetings of the klan everything was surcharged with the impressive solemnity of the invisible empire. The wind moaning in the bearded pin oaks, the stark tree trunks, spooky in the peering light of torches and the blazing "fiery cross," all contributed their mysticism to the weird setting of the forest klavern. In such a scenic investiture as this Old Skipworth, portentous in his hood and gown, uttered such ponderous flapdoodle as this:

"My terrors—and if any one thinks that word 'terror' hasn't been burned into the soul of this parish he hasn't read well—my terrors and klansmen, make ready; prepare the sacred altar, my terrors and klansmen. In the sacred cause we have entered—be thou faithful unto death; be patriotic toward our country; be clannish toward our klansmen; be devoted to our fraternity and we will stand, for our blood is not pledged in vain."

Spoofing the Solemn Spooks.

All this from the implacable kloran, straight from the inspired mind of the imperial wizard in Atlanta. It is the kind of stuff that weaned McKoin from such men as Watt Daniels. The Kloran says, "No innovation [in the ceremonies] will be tolerated and no frivolity or 'horse play' must be allowed."

The inspired hand of the Imperial author apparently deviated from the chaste Elizabethean to the Georgian vernacular when it dropped that "horse play" into the profound decree of the kloran.

Also impressive is the charge of Cyclops: "Let them enter the klavern in quest of citizenship, but keep you a klansman's eye upon them, and if they or any one of them should flinch at duty or show himself a coward, weakling, or a treacherous scalawag at this time or in the future it will be your sworn duty to eject him or them from the portal of the invisible empire."

Penalty of Treason Told.

Also, "What if one of your party should prove a traitor?" "He would be immediately banished in disgrace from the Invisible Empire, conscience would repeatedly revile him, and direful things would befall him."

All these things are in the secret work of the klan. The tenth question asked of an aspirant to membership is this: "Can you always be depended on?"

McKoin, the fugitive doctor of Mer Rouge, subscribed to all this. Even the "treacherous scalawag," which flowed so insouciantly from the inspired pen of the Wizard, struck no jarring note for the intelligent doctor. He declares he is not a klansman, but that is a play on words. His fellow klansmen in Morehouse parish testify that he was and is a klansman.

McKoin could march back and forth and around and about the mystic circle of the klavern and take an absorbing interest in the ritual of "scalawag" and "horseplay."

The neophyte is asked if he can be depended upon. The federal investigators will attempt to demonstrate in the open hearing that they could be depended upon. They will present to the public all the paraphernalia of the forest klavern, the fiery cross, the hooded night riders, the secret orders.

They will try to show that the klan tried to impose its command of silence on Watt Daniels and Thomas Richards. They will offer evidence that six months previous to the astonishing kidnaping of Aug. 24 there had been masked raids, daylight kidnapings, night whippings, and orders for exile by the dozen.

They will try to show that on one occasion Richards was taken off the streets of Bastrop in broad day by masked men; that Richards' father was borne off; that Richards was spirited off into the depths of the forest and questioned concerning the so-called attack on McKoin; and they will conclude by new evidence that Capt. Skipworth was one of those concerned and that he removed his mask after the questioning was concluded.

The klan code word is "honor." Its design is uplift for the downtrodden, and its insistent teaching is regard for law. Yet the klan in Morehouse parish repeatedly has taken the law into its own hands, until in very self-defense a quaint old community of respectable planters and tradespeople have been compelled to walk about in something approximating medieval armor.

It is going to be difficult to avoid a clash in the open hearing. Every man and many women are armed, and they are not carrying weapons in any light regard for consequences. Every inhabitant has always before him the picture of the night of Aug. 24.

"I wish," said a man of Mer Rouge, who has been thrice warned to leave, "I wish to God I could relax for one day and forget all about it."

Maelstrom of Emotions.

If he had been a man of nice selection and fine construction in English he might have carried out his figure, might have etched out the high lights and described the agony, the sorrow, the fear, the hate, and the despair which seems to have risen like the stifling fumes from the genii's bottle of Lake La Fourche and settled in a doleful pall over the parish of Morehouse.

The memory that stays with them is the memory of many people driving peacefully home from a village barbecue. It is the picture of hooded men, bristling with rifles and pistols, leaping silently out of the gloomy forest. It unfolds with their sons and fathers and comrades seized from the side of relatives and friends and then bound and blindfolded. Helpless to protest, they drove on to their homes, the curtain drawn behind them.

Five Victims of Kidnaping.

They could not know what was to befall old James L. Daniels, young Tod Davenport, William Andrews, Watt Daniels, and Thomas Fletcher Richards, the last named of whom they called "Sam" as a loving brevet.

But these were the preliminary scenes. These may be described by dozens of persons. It is the unseen the unknown, the undescribed and indescribable picture that stands most distinct.

It is that picture of an old man whipped; great leather bastinado hissing into his quivering flesh; of his son helpless by; of another curtain drawn when Mr. Daniels, Andrews and young Davenport had been released; and with this curtain drawn the hideous scene of two men executed as if by savages more malignant than those of the Tartar hordes who only drank blood; executed as if on the rack, bones broken, limbs hewed off, heads severed and unspeakably tortured, and then the ghastly epilogue under the still waters of Melancholy La Fourche.

It will not be a wonder when the Kloran is read in the open hearing if the military are ordered to take new weapons from the men and women of Morehouse parish.

The prosecution hopes to connect precept and practice; hopes to show that the continuous hammering away of klan ritual turned men from the teachings of ordinary, common law and order into habits of loyalty to an insiduous organization which had established itself as some surpassing man-made judgment; it is hoped to prove that klansmen became so perverted in their ideas of patriotism that love of friends, community interest and even family ties were subordinated to the will of the Cyclops.

Old Skipworth goes about with two broad-hatted guards lounging in his wake. Mer Rouge men have been heard to say they do not propose to attend the hearing other than well heeled.

The issue is clear. All of the respectable citizens, whether klan or anti-klan, want the parish cleaned up, Skipworth and all. The dyed in the wool klansmen want to get past the crisis.

"And if they do get past," says John Jones, broad of hat and drawling of speech, "all the guns in hell won't stop them from killing us. There's men in this town they will get anyhow. There was a time here a month back when we had all decided to pack a gun and sell out as dear as possible. We knowed we was goners."

But now there seems a fair chance to clean up.

DON'T JUDGE US HARSHLY, PLEA OF KLAN-GIRT TOWN

Little Bastrop Asking Only Charitable Judgment.

Mer Rouge, La., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—If Dr. B. M. McKoin, Baltimore physician and former mayor of Mer Rouge, La., is not implicated in the murder of Watt Daniels and Thomas F. Richards why does he offer such a strenuous fight to keep from being returned to Mer Rouge? That is the question Mer Rouge is asking tonight.

A young woman here says she saw somebody shoot at Dr. McKoin's automobile on the night he says he was fired at from ambush. She bears a name beyond reproach in this community. She says she saw the shots fired, and she saw also another automobile speed up to the ambush and pick up three men. Knowing all this, Mer Rouge, as a city, wants to know why the former mayor evades the issue.

Bastrop, eight miles west of here, is all set for the reception of state officials due there for the open hearing to begin Jan. 5. But as a city Bastrop feels that it has been the victim of an unwarranted amount of unfavorable publicity.

Appeal for Charitable Judgment.

The mayor of Bastrop has issued the following statement:

"In behalf of the community of which I am mayor I wish to correct the false impression the public has obtained of our home country because of the outrage last August, which I, together with the people of Bastrop, most vigorously condemn.

"We hope the culprits will be brought to justice. Not by way of extenuation, but in justice to our people, I wish to say that one such unfortunate incident should not bring a blanket indictment of lawlessness upon us.

"I do not quarrel with the circumstances that have focused national attention upon Morehouse parish; that is our misfortune, unfair as it may be, but we are not a guntoting, wild, savage people; we are law abiding, like the people in the rest of the United States.

"Other communities throughout the country have had similar tragedies in their midst, but have not been condemned as a unit.

Drops Hammer, Grabs Horn.

"We have schools that compare with the best in Louisiana; we have a strong religious life; millions of dollars are invested in industry, and we believe ourselves on the threshold of much greater development.

"I, personally, can assure every one that life and limb are safe and that order prevails. Whether we think soldiers are necessary or not, they shall have every consideration that we can show them, as will all others who may be brought here through a duty imposed on them.

"Some of the press reports, we know, have been exaggerated, but we welcome all correspondents and only hope they will be here to record the final result as well as the steps that led to the situation.

"A. J. GOODWIN, Mayor."

AMERICANS GET READY TO FLEE CONSTANTINOPLE

Peace Parley Deadlock Stirs New Fears.

BY OTIS SWIFT.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 31.—The general depression in Constantinople following the receipt of news from Lausanne that the conference has reached an impasse still is tempered with a persistent hope that both the Turkish and allied official circles will make mutual concessions to ease the situation and the conference will proceed to a successful conclusion.

As a precautionary measure, however, word was passed yesterday among 700 resident Americans and 1,000 British here to prepare their baggage and valuables for immediate evacuation on twenty-four hours' notice.

The American evacuation program, as announced by the United States navy, provides for four concentration points—the near east relief warehouse, United States navy supply base, Constantinople college, and Roberts college. The Americans were instructed to take food and water supplies for several days to these places, where they would stay until transferred to destroyers and submarine chasers in the event of disorders. Should trouble occur, the interallied control has arranged to protect the main streets with troop cordons until the foreigners can reach the concentration points.

Big Allied Forces Ready.

The general opinion is that even a breakdown of the Lausanne conference would not preciptate disorders. However, heavy military and naval forces from England, France, and Italy are stationed here, in addition to United States naval and marine details.

While the Turkish opinion still is strongly in favor of peace, there is a noticeable strengthening of sentiment here in opposition to concessions on capitulations and the Mosul oil country.

The Turks have not as yet returned a British pilot and observer whose plane fell within the Kemalist lines yesterday. The Turkish government is planning to protest to the British on the death of a Kemalist soldier who was accidentally shot in a brawl in Chanak on Christmas day.

AWAIT ALLIES' ORDER

BY FRANK WILLS.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ATHENS, Dec. 31.—[Tribune Radio.]—The British circulated reports here today that the Greeks are reëntering Adrianople. These were indignantly denied by a prominent Greek official in a position to know.

"You cannot make it too strong that Greece will not begin war on its own hook," said this official. "One hears talk about the military hotheads of the government desiring war to retrieve its lost prestige, which is all nonsense. If they desire war, which I do not believe, they have not the power to throw the people into war alone.

"Greece will not enter war unless at the request of and as a partner of the allies. If the allies at Lausanne and M. Venizelos request Greece to enter war, that is a different matter, and the people then would be willing to fight a necessary evil, but not without allied coöperation. M. Venizelos probably is the sanest man in Europe on such matters and he will not request intervention unless on orders by the allies—and he will have it in black and white this time."

Army Ready in Thrace.

"It is reported that Greek troops are being mobilized in Thrace," I suggested.

"Of course our army is there. Where else would it be in view of the present situation? But one thing I again emphasize—that the army will not be used to begin war except on request of the allies. I speak not only as a government official, but all my friends, all the people, and all of the press agree that war is impossible without orders from the allies."

Three Turk Armies on Move.

Telegraph and cable reports received here from a reliable source declare the Kemalists are preparing to move against Mosul and Constantinople. A Kemalist detachment from a Caucasus division today arrived at Djizamart. Another column is advancing on the Tigris river. Another, it is stated, is preparing a concentration at Ada Bazar, with a view to converging the movement on the Bosphorus.

BONUS APPLICANTS STILL CROWD TRIBUNE OFFICES

Ex-service men continued yesterday to storm The Tribune building, Madison and Dearborn streets, to fill out official applications for participation in the $55,000,000 Illinois bonus. A large corps of employes of this newspaper were kept busy the greater part of the day attending to the needs of the veterans.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 31.—Ismet Pasha today talked with Ambassador Richard Washburn Child regarding the American note, which asked for consideration for a plan for an Armenian national home. It is understood that the American delegate made it clear to the Turkish chief that those proposals were not meant as a part of a governmental plan, but were the wishes of American religious organizations.

The Turkish delegation today received its first report on the mission of Hassan Bey to Angora. It is understood that the Turkish delegates would accept proposals from Great Britain to eliminate the Arab portions of the vilayet of Mosul, while the Kurdish sections must be returned to Turkey if the British refuse a plebiscite. Turkey insists that the town of Mosul should be included in the territory returned to her sovereignty.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—[Tribune Radio.]—The British destroyer Venomous has captured an American ship containing a cargo of arms and ammunition off the Irish coast near Castletown Bere. The British destroyer patrol reports the ship was on its way from America to Ireland. The American ship was sighted early Friday morning making for the Irish coast, and when within three miles of shore it was intercepted and boarded by the crew from the Venomous. It is stated that a large quantity of guns and ammunition was found aboard. The ship was taken into a Free State port.

FIRE DEPUTY'S HOUSE

BY THOMAS RYAN.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DUBLIN, Dec. 31.—An attempt was made tonight to burn the house of Walter Cole, government supporter in the Dail Eirann. The fire was extinguished before much damage had been done.

Firing on national troops in Dublin occurred last night and tonight.

Four republicans, held as hostages in County Kerry, will be executed, according to highest government sources. The men are Thomas Devane of Dingle, Mathew Moroney, Cornelius Casey, and Dermot O'Connor, all of Tralee.

A court martial suspended the death sentences on these men until the resumption of hostilities by the republicans in County Kerry. As the republican operations in the area have again commenced, the government states unofficially that the sentences must be carried out.

Find Slain Man Was Rebel.

The young man taken from a Dublin house, whose body was found in Milltown Friday, was a republcan, it is reported. The republicans say he was engaged in counter espionage against government raids.

Mrs. Charlotte Despard, sister of the Earl of Ypres, and Mrs. Maud Gonne McBride, once considered the handsomest woman in Europe, issued a denunciation of alleged mistreatment of republican prisoners today. The charges, which Mrs. McBride says she can prove, include many forms of torture.

William Cosgrave, president of the Dail Eireann, answering the charges in an interview, declared had sent an officer to investigate one case, that of Joe Clarke, whose wife had complained. The officer found the charges groundless.

7,000 Prisoners; One Death.

"This an attempt to embarrass the government," declared Mr. Cosgrave. "Don't we know what we did ourselves? When we were jailed by England the same stories were circulated, but actually there were only four deaths among 123 persons—and these not from ill treatment. Among 7,000 of our prisoners now only one death has resulted."

THE TRIBUNE learns that Count Plunkett, whom Ireland believed to be in Rome negotiating with the Holy See against Irish bishops, never left Ireland on that mission.

The supreme authority among republicans throughout Ireland are the "civil and military executive councils," which meet together. Eamon de Valera's cabinet functions only in the western counties, where they can collect revenue without interference.

DRAWN PISTOLS MARK BIG FINALE IN MEXICO HOUSE

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mexico City, Dec. 31.—Congress closed in a blaze of glory. The leaders of the government party and the opposition thundered at one another, applying vile epithets, of which their vocabulary contains not few.

Pistols were drawn and for a time the opposing factions stood facing one another for a moment and a tremendous tragedy seemed imminent. But the good sense of the cooler members saved the day and the battling opponents were forced to desist.

The contending parties made up in the [illegible] act.

The government party forced the [illegible] creating a government bank of issue which has been in preparation for five years.

At the last moment President Obregon returned the bill to the senate, approving the estimates of government expenditures. It was passed by both houses, and he is expected to sign it. Thus the executive again remains without a budget, as he did last year, allowing President Obregon to make his own budget.

Chauffeur Dies in Fall Down Friend's Stairway

William E. Domain, a chauffeur, 2656 North Halsted street, fell down stairs at 1623 Orchard street last night and died in the Alexian Brothers hospital, where he was taken suffering from a fractured skull. Domain was visiting friends at the Orchard street address. He was 26 years old.

ALL TRIBUNE'S OFFICIAL BONUS BLANKS ISSUED

Bureau to Continue Aid Until More Come.

THE TRIBUNE's limited supply of official blanks for the $55,000,000 soldiers' bonus was exhausted yesterday. All day a line of men and women passed through THE TRIBUNE's loop office and each was given an application blank until they were gone. It is uncertain when any more can be obtained.

There are tens of thousands of the official blanks available in the state capital, however. This is evidenced by the fact that on Friday THE TRIBUNE was able to obtain the limited supply it distributed to the ex-service men. But officials of the service recognition board, all appointees of Gov. Small, announce that the blanks will not be ready for distribution until Jan. 15.

The people of the state voted the bond issue for compensation to its sons two months ago and the interest displayed by the veterans in THE TRIBUNE's supply of official blanks was evidence of the fact that they are getting impatient at the delay.

Bureau Continues to Help.

Despite the fact that no more of the blanks are available at present, however, the Friend of the Soldier department is still functioning in the interests of the former soldiers, sailors, nurses, and marines. It has thousands of blank discharge forms on which its experts will copy your discharge and certify it free of charge. It will answer your questions and clear up disputed points concerning the bonus. The bureau is open every week day at The Tribune plant, 431 North Michigan avenue.

Following is a list of the questions each service man must answer on the official application blank. The list is published so that the veterans may study it and prepare the answers in anticipation of the time when more of the blanks are available.

SERVE BY SAVING, AND HELP COUNTRY AND SELVES—MELLON

"Let us make 1923 a better and more prosperous year than 1922. It can be done if all of us will unite to save more and waste less.

"The federal government will take the lead in saving. It is cutting expenditures to the limit in order to balance its budget and reduce the burden of taxation. For the last completed fiscal year it shows a reduction of about $1,000,000,000 in the gross debt, a balanced budget, and successful refunding operations which have reduced the early maturing debt to manageable proportions.

"But much still remains to be done. On Jan. 1, 1923, about $625,000,000 of 1918 war savings stamps come due and must be paid or exchanged into other government securities; and on May 20, 1923, the remaining Victory notes, amounting to about $850,000,000 will become payable, while Victory notes called for redemption on Dec. 15, 1922, still remain outstanding to the amount of about $250,000,000.

"The treasury is accordingly bending every effort to encourage the reinvestment of these funds in sound securities, particularly those of the government itself."

We all wish you a New Year full to overflowing of happiness and prosperity.

And we all hope that Fortune will be kind, and favor you with a bounteous bestowal of opportunities to bring happiness into the lives of those with whom you may mingle during 1923.

DOCTOR SOUGHT AS DRUG SELLER IN DELIUS DEATH

State and U. S. Agents Begin Inquiries.

Search of Chicago banks and trust companies will begin tomorrow for a will believed to have been left by Mrs. Maude Fuller Delius, whose partly decomposed body was found yesterday in the midst of dozens of twenty year old love letters in her three room flat at 5445 Harper avenue. Although living frugally and as a recluse, Mrs. Delius, a daughter of the late Judge M. W. Fuller, former chief justice of the United States Supreme court, is said to have left a $250,000 estate.

Simultaneously federal and state officials will begin an inquiry to determine whether her death was natural or whether drugs may have been at least a contributory cause. A physician's instructions on administering narcotics were found in her effects, and reports have been received by the government that she was a drug addict.

Thinks Death Natural.

Dr. C. A. Barnes, coroner's physician, after a preliminary examination, said he thought death had been caused by heart disease, but a postmortem examination will be made.

The estate was officially taken over yesterday by Gregory T. Van Meter, public administrator. It includes a savings account of $97,000, according to E. M. Hawley, field secretary of the Old Colony club and the only known Chicago relative of Mrs. Delius.

Mrs. Hugh Wallace of Washington, D. C., wife of the former ambassador to France and a half sister to Mrs. Delius, has been notified by Mr. Van Meter to arrange for the funeral. Another half sister, Mrs. Catherine Beecher of New York, is believed to be in Europe.

Grieved 18 Years for Husband.

Little was known of Mrs. Delius by her neighbors. Despite her apparent wealth she lived in virtual poverty in the flat she had occupied for years. She was known to mourn continuously the death of her husband, who committed suicide eighteen years ago.

She always dressed in the fashions prevalent at the time of his death and spent much of her time reading over and over his love letters. She was seldom seen outside the flat.

Mr. Hawley said she frequently had been invited to his home but that she always declined to come.

Youth of 17 Confesses Stealing Jewels of Nurse

Planters Hotel Unaffected by Purchase of Columbia

The management of the Planters hotel announce that the purchase of the hotel and Columbia theater property by Al Woods will not affect either the hostelry or its cafeteria. Both will continue to operate for the remainder of the thirteen year lease.

HAPPY NEW YEAR FOR YEGGS.

Boul. Mich. Autoists in Riot; Yes, 'Twas Bonded

A bottle of bonded New Year's cheer stopped traffic on Michigan boulevard at the north end of the bridge last night and brought a wild scramble of motorists as they saw the bottle slip from the hand of a man who tried to drink and steer at the same time. The cars behind quickly swerved to the curb and the passengers rushed for the bottle. All, however, were too late. The bottle had broken.

HUMAN INVENTORIES

Once a year, or oftener, a business man takes inventory of his goods. If taken conservatively—accurately—without deceiving himself or others, he will know the exact condition. It is an important proceeding.

If it is wise to do this, how much more important that we regularly examine the human body—see if any part requires attention—that it may be placed on a reasonably safe future basis.

A competent physician will make the inventory. It may relate to one's health and disposition, living and working conditions, habits, recreation, possibly even one's income, personal and family history—every essential to complete knowledge exposed. Otherwise there is waste.

If the physician says "nothing is wrong," isn't there wonderful satisfaction? If he finds the body out of repair—rebuild—get it in good condition—at least keep it from getting worse.

There are no spare parts for the human body.

Resolve in this New Year's season that for the next year all the parts will be used in the right way.

It will be "good business."

FRANCE REJECTS GERMANS' OFFER OF NONWAR PACT

Cuno Proposed Peace for a Generation.

HAMBURG, Dec. 31.—[By the Associated Press.]—The Franco-German nonwar pact proposed by Germany to France through the mediation of a neutral power has been rejected by Premier Poincare. This statement was made by the German chancellor, Wilhelm Cuno, in the course of a significant speech before the Hamburg bourse today.

The chancellor's revelation was the first official admission that the German government had recently undertaken serious steps to placate French war apprehensions and incidentally dispose of the recurrent French accusations that Germany was arming for a new war.

The German New Year's nonwar pact was proposed to France through the medium of an unnamed power, probably either Switzerland or Holland, and provided for a solemn pledge by all the powers interested in the Rhine that none of them should wage war on the others for a generation, without active authorization of their people as expressed through a popular referendum in all the countries involved.

Proposed Peace Trustee.

The German government stipulated that a world power which was not interested in the Rhine should be guardian or trustee of this pledge. Such an obligation, Chancellor Cuno stated, would commit each nation which was a party to the pact to a peace policy and would afford the most secure guarantee conceivable.

"To my regret," said the chancellor, "France has seen fit to reject our proposal."

The major part of the chancellor's speech was devoted to a discussion of reparations and their effect on the national and international situation. He gave the barest outlines of the new German proposals, declaring that the government had decided to name a definite sum which it believed it would be able to pay off through the aid of a system of domestic and foreign loans. He expressed strong approval of the sentiments voiced by the American secretary of state at New Haven and believed that Mr. Hughes' views closely tallied with those entertained by the Germans.

Premiers Parley on Tuesday.

PARIS, Dec. 31.—[By the Associated Press.]—The official opening of the premiers' conference on reparations is set for Tuesday, with the expectation that it will continue at least until Saturday, if not far into the following week. The length of time will depend entirely on the rapidity and progress of the negotiations.

The conference is expected to proceed with greater calm than similar conferences, if the mutual expressions of good will between the British and French premiers count for anything.

Watch for Move by U. S.

The great question is whether the British plan for reduction of the German debt and granting a moratorium will prevail or whether the French will have their way and enter the Ruhr. The preliminaries of the conference would seem to show that the French will utilize all their old arguments against those put forward by the British, though whether they will insist upon occupying the Ruhr is doubtful.

While the absence of Premier Mussolini of Italy from the conference is hardly commented upon by the French newspapers, there is running through their editorials the thought that the United States may, in some intangible manner, clear up the situation by a reduction of its credits, coupled with similar action by Great Britain.

Makes Bonar Law Laugh.

When Mr. Bonar Law, the British prime minister, and the members of the British delegation, armed with portfolios and handbags filled with documents, alighted from the Calais train this evening, Mr. Bonar Law was asked: "Do you think the conference will be a success?"

He laughed and exclaimed: "What a question!"

He repeated these words in French to the representatives of the French foreign office, who merely smiled and shrugged their shoulders.

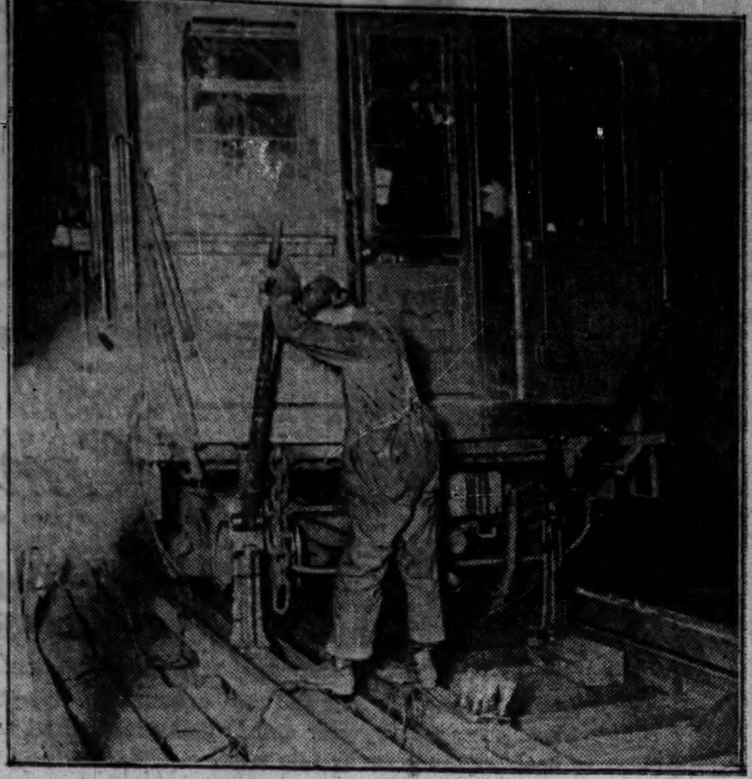
Accidentally Shot as He Celebrates New Year's

Stanley Stetz, 30, 2828 North Lawndale avenue, was accidentally shot a minute or two after midnight by Lawrence Edwards, living in the flat below him. The men had cleaned an automatic pistol, and believing it unloaded because the clip was removed, Edwards pointed it at Stetz in fun and pulled the trigger. Stetz was shot in the back and dangerously wounded.

"L" Derailment Blocks Traffic



As a result of a broken axle a Northwestern "L" car last night jumped the track at Leland avenue and Broadway and traffic on the line was impeded for a long period. Photograph shows the car being jacked back onto the rails.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

AXLE BREAKS ON 'L' CAR; EVANSTON TRAINS DELAYED

A northbound Evanston train on the Northwestern Elevated railway, which left the loop at 6:05 o'clock last night, was stalled between Wilson avenue and Argyle with a broken axle, resulting in a thirty minutes' tieup on the lines north of Wilson avenue, after which a single track service was put into operation. Two hours later normal service was restored. The accident grounded the trolley rail on the Evanston division.

3 Boys, 2 Men Missing; Police Asked to Search

The police have been requested to institute search for five persons reported missing since Saturday. They are: Clarence Sassend, 10 years old, 5223 Greenwood avenue; Nathan Dakouslian, 17 years old, 1151 West Huron street; William Radner, 16 years old, Lyons, Ill.; William Osbourn, 48 years old, 2157 West Monroe street; and John B. Appleton, 35 years old, 1712 Glenlake avenue.

First Arrests of New Year Land Two Gun Celebrators

The first arrests of the new year at the Chicago avenue station were those of Donald Cook, 4067 Oakland crescent, and Singuin Latin, a Filipino, living at 658 North La Salle street. They fired revolvers at Erie and Clark streets just as the new year was born and a minute later the former was arrested by Sergts. Klatzo and Toohey and the latter by Sergt. McGurn.

HARVEY AT HOME, IS SURE BRITAIN WILL PAY DEBTS

Denies Interview Until He Talks to Washington.

New York, Dec. 31.—[By the Associated Press.]—Col. George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, who called himself a messenger boy, returned home today on the storm tossed liner Berengaria, to report to Washington information he was asked to get from London.

"I will not and cannot grant an interview," he said as he met newspaper men in the de luxe cabin of the ship, "but I will talk a bit informally with you."

It was while he was talking informally that he said there was no question of England paying her debts to the United States and added that he had come here to bring information on that subject to President Harding.

To Report to His "Editor."

"I am merely coming home to report to my editor in chief and my managing editor," he said, "and am really nothing but a messenger boy. I can say this, however, the present English government plans to settle and to pay its debt to America. But it is a delicate job. It will require very careful handling.

"I believe the men on the American mission and those named on the British mission, which is now en route here, will reach a decision if any one can. They face the biggest financial transaction the world has ever known, but they face it as the best men that could possibly handle it.

"Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, who heads the mission, is a remarkable man. He is extremely able. In fact, he is one of the ablest men in British public life. Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, while of retiring disposition, is a man of ability and power."

Stormiest Trip He Ever Had.

That was all Col. Harvey would say about affairs of state. He declared he was a good sailor and enjoyed the trip, although the Berengaria encountered heavy weather almost all the way. He had made forty-four crossings, he said, but this was the worst of his experience.

"Now what else can I talk about?" he asked.

Some one suggested speeches. He turned that off by saying he had made seven speeches in eight days—"and all I got for it was influenza, in Manchester," he added with a smile.

The colonel, with a small Christmas tree in his suite and the remains of a huge basket of fruit near it, looked like a happy homecoming business traveler rather than a wary ambassador fencing words with reporters.

Mum on Affairs of State.

He talked in jerks. That is, he answered questions politely, but not at all fluently. And he waited for each question—never permitting his interviewers to approach affairs of state and matters which, he said, rightfully belonged at Washington's disposal.

But the colonel did discuss silk breeches and their significance as uniforms at courts, although not quite that way.

"Before the war," he said, "American ambassadors at St. James were both lonesome and conspicuous at court functions. There were ambassadors of all sorts near them and all wore uniforms which were, to say the least, resplendent. There was gold lace aplenty. But the American, representing a democracy, was attired in common every day dress clothes.

Fifteen in "Civilian Dress".

"Then came the results of the war. The monarchies began to tumble. Along came more republics. And American ambassadors have lost the distinction, if it was that, of being the only civilians at court. At the last function I attended I was not lonesome in full dress clothes. There were fifteen others—and the Austrian and German representatives were dressed as I was."

FIRE AND BLAST HALT 40 FAMILIES' NEW YEAR'S JOY

Fire of an unknown origin, followed by a mysterious explosion, occurring late last night in the Abramson delicatessen store on the ground floor of a four story apartment building at 3558 5th avenue, interrupted New Year's celebrations by the forty families occupying the building. The fact that the fire started in an apartment house prompted Battalion Chief J. J. Evans to turn in a 2-11 alarm.

The explosion blew out the plate glass window of the delicatessen shop just as the battalion chief arrived to cope with the fire.

Three other stores occupy the first floor of the building. The blaze was confined to the place of its origin with a loss of $5,000.

ATROCITIES OF GREEKS IN TURK WAR REVEALED

3,000 persons inhabit these ruins, the rest being still dispersed. These figures concerning the proportions of the inhabitants appear accurate and accord with the number of Greek houses, which are easily distinguishable from those of Mussulmans because of their architectural characteristics.

"Zekie Hanoum, wife of Hassan Chefki Bey, president of the municipality, raised her veil at the station as we were departing and, speaking in French, begged us in the name of her Turkish sisters to thank the union for the aid that had been sent and to ask that it continue its interest in the fate of her unfortunate country.

This Town Only a Memory.

"Upon arriving at Salihi we could hardly recognize the site where the station should have been. Near by what remained of the great raisin warehouses, raisins being the principal product of the region, was still smoking.

"Our trip through the city was as heart rending, as had been the preceding one. Of the original 2,200 inhabitants, there remained only 200. Fifteen families had found shelter in a single mosque.

"When we arrived at Alaschelr at 10 o'clock in the evening of Oct. 10 we were lodged in the only house in the center of the city which had escaped the fire. Besides the offices of the commandant and those of his principal aids this house sheltered at the time we were there nine familes and a flour depot, the whole in ten rooms.

"The next day we visited the city. Situated on the side of a little hill, abundantly wooded and watered, this city must have been one of the prettiest in the country. Now, out of 4,500 houses, 4,350 had been destroyed, and of the 11,500 inhabitants there remained only 8,500, of whom 400 were children under 14 years.

Even Hospitals Destroyed.

"At Alascheir we had occasion to visit the only hospital of the region which had escaped destruction. It consisted of twenty beds and was directed by Dr. Naby Bey, who had arrived from Geneva a few days before our visit.

"We were informed that a Greek officer had saved the lives of 300 Mussulmans who had been maltreated by the soldiers, by placing them in shelter at the villa of a Mr. Forbes.

"We saw Hodja Osman, an old paralytic, who had taken up his domicile in the trunk of an old plane tree. Osman is well lettered and regarded as a philosopher. His house had been burned. In a vineyard nearby 100 bodies had been buried."

One member of the commission visited Aidin, Azizie and the stations along the line of the Ottoman Railway company, the report says, and found conditions there identical with those of the cities named.

New Year's Eve Abroad Is Gay

LONDON, Dec. 31.—[United News.]—London had a wild New Year's eve. Hotels, restaurants, and cafés obtained permits from the government to serve liquor until 4 in the morning.

Dances are to continue until the merrymakers drop in their tracks. Features of entertainments in hotels include miniature snowstorms and giant crackers, from which Father Time—with bobbed hair and pink tights—emerged at midnight.

Precautions by police were taken to prevent the threatened march of the unemployed delegation from Scotland to the West End, to remind the revelers of poverty of others. The threat was also made to break up the service at St. Paul's church.

Billion Marks Scattered.

BERLIN, Jan. 1.—[United News.]—New Year's eve, 1922, was the gayest and, incidentally, the wettest in Berlin since before the war.

It was called the "billion marks" festival, with that much spent for entertainment in crowded hotels and cafés.

Special menus at 10,000 marks a plate, with wine on the side as high as 40,000 marks, were the rule of the evening.

Dancing at most places continued until daybreak. The biggest parties were given by German "schiebers," corresponding to American war profiteers. Foreigners made up a large proportion of the celebrators.

Unable to give any further information than that he was a Canadian ex-service man, James P. Thompson, after wandering aimlessly yesterday for several hours in the vicinity of East 7th street and South Wabash avenue, was taken to the detective bureau and afterward to the Psychopathic hospital, where it was stated he was suffering from amnesia.

Scars, supposedly from a shrapnel wound, were found on the back of his neck. He had Victory medals from the British and Canadian governments and letters from a doctor in Quebec.

86 Years of Confidence

In just a few weeks Peacocks will celebrate its 86th anniversary. Founded by Elijah Peacock in 1837—before Chicago was granted a Charter as a City; even before the first Railroad entered Chicago—the house of Peacock has grown year by year and is today recognized as the leading jewelry house of the great Middle west.

This remarkable growth and prosperity is due to only one thing—Public Confidence. It couldn't be anything else. And that confidence has been accumulating for 86 long years.

Back in the 'Thirties and 'Forties when Elijah Peacock in his little frame store was catering to the forefathers of the present leading citizens of Chicago, his first thought was quality. Never would he permit any mechandise, which could possibly disappoint the purchaser, to be sold in his store. And that same thought has been, and is, the business religion of his lineal descendants who have been in charge of the destinies of Peacocks during all the 86 years.

In wishing you a Happy New Year may we remind you that 86 years is a long time—86 years of confidence a lot of confidence. And confidence in your jeweler is indispensable—just as necessary as confidence in your banker.

NEWEST NATION BORN IN MOSCOW OF 11 RED STATES

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, Dec. 31.—A new nation was born today. In place of Russia, Caucasia, Ukrainia, and eleven other more or less independent republics arose a federation somewhat similar to the original United States of America. It is known as the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

In time Russia will become the designation of a single state only, while the country will be known as the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. It was proposed to make today a national holiday. Nicolai Lenin today became head of the federation of fourteen nations, including the Bashkirs, Tartars, and Azerbaijanians.

Adopts a Constitution.

The first parliament went into session today, which sent M. Lenin greetings and amidst enormous applause adopted a constitution. A united budget, criminal and labor codes, armies, and diplomatic system were adopted, and the parliament vested power in a central executive committee of 371 members, which is to meet three times yearly. The parliament will go into session annually.

A strange oriental feature of the congress today were addresses by delegates from the Bokhara and Khiva republics. These orientals, in singsong voices, made long speeches, apologizing for not joining the new union. The Bokharans and Khivans asserted their countries were not communistic, but were body and soul with the union and hoped to join shortly.

Red Army Chief Speaks.

Serge Kameneff, commander in chief of the Red army, pledged the support of the Red army to the new nation, saying, "It was the spirit and brotherhood of soldiers and officers with the masses which made the Red army victorious everywhere."

The initials U. S. S. R.—as Russia is now officially known—intends to follow the American union plan and adopt all neighboring territories which declare their willingness to join. It is not intended to use force anywhere, but additional states are expected to join in the south and southeast, especially those states which at present are under domination of western European powers. It is here that Russia expects the greatest sympathy towards the new union, with all nations on a footing of equality.

RUSSIA'S DREAM OF EXPANSION

HUSBAND KEEPS WIFE FROM WASH; TWICE WOUNDED

Andrew Corussley, 39, was shot and seriously wounded last night by his wife, Margaret, following a family quarrel. He was wounded twice, below the heart and in the left leg. The Englewood police carried him to St. Bernard's hospital and took Mrs. Corussley into custody. She admitted having shot her husband.

The shooting followed a dispute in which the husband threatened his wife with a pipe wrench, Mrs. Corussley told the police after her arrest. Previously, she said, he bit her and pulled her hair.

When he chased her into her bedroom with the wrench she took a revolver from the bureau drawer, she said. After wounding her husband she telephoned to the police and waited for them with her baby in her lap.

When told her husband might die, she calmly awaited a report from the hospital where her husband was undergoing an operation.

Mrs. Corussley told the police the quarrel started when she had tried to do the family washing in the basement laundry and he objcted because it was New Year's eve.

Corussley turned off the gas under the wash boiler.

"I relit the gas," she said, "and he got the pipe wrench and turned off the gas at the meter. I ran upstairs and he came after me and threatened to beat me with the wrench."

EX-WIFE SAYS CARR FAILED TO WED HER, SUES

New York, Dec. 31. — [Special.] — Alexander Carr of Mawruss fame in "Potash and Perlmutter" has been sued by Mrs. Mary Carr, who divorced him in 1919, for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise to remarry her, it was learned today. The unique suit marks the culmination of Mrs. Carr's efforts to collect alleged alimony arrearage of $17,933. Mrs. Carr avers her former husband proposed to her and she accepted; that while she was planning their second honeymoon she was persuaded to sign a paper she thought was a deed to their Rockville Center, L. I., home, but which in reality, she alleges, was a contract releasing Mr. Carr from all back alimony obligations.

Mr. Carr, who is appearing at a local theater, last night refused to comment on his wife's suit.

SURGEON SAYS SUBWAY WOULD REDUCE MISHAPS

A subway in Chicago will eliminate half the traffic accidents in the loop, according to a report yesterday of Dr. H. E. Betz, superintendent of the Iroquois Memorial Emergency hospital, to the newly elected officers of the hospital for 1923. The report showed that during 1922, 1,982 persons were treated at the establishment for injuries received from automobile or street car accidents in the downtown district.

"With the lessening of the traffic to be brought about by the subway," he said, "there will be about 50 per cent as many persons injured in this way."

The new officers are: Benjamin Bissinger, lawyer, president; Mrs. S. H. Regensberg, widow of one of the founders of the hospital, vice president; J. E. O. Pridmore, architect, treasurer, and H. M. Snabad, lawyer, secretary.

IMPECCABLE LESCHIN MODES
Blazon the Way
TO THE SOUTHLAND

SERENE the woman who knows beyond a doubt that her clothes are irreproachably correct. Leschin's brings to the wearer this assurance. More than usually distinctive is our collection of frocks, wraps, chapeaux for the Southern Exodus. "Different," perhaps, best expresses the plus quality of original design, color appeal and effective interpretation of the Mode found at Leschin's.

For the Glorious Sunlit Hours
Leschin Suggests:

FROCKS and SUITS

COSTUME frocks that form their own jacquette and cape; 3-piece suits which, under the long fur-trimmed cape, are so lacking in sleeves and so smart withal as to share honors with informal evening gowns.

Many a knitted suit and frock will go arm in arm with novelty embroidered jacquette or sweater of riotous color held in bounds by the simplicity of separate skirts.

CHAPEAUX

RATHER wicked-looking, but they keep pace with the story the new frocks tell. Felt in the most deceivingly demure looking draped shapes, adds just the right note of reserve.

When the Lights Are Brilliant for the Dance

GOWNS and WRAPS

THE art of skilfully blending simplicity and sophistication is typical of evening gowns for Southern wear. Beaded and embroidered chiffons and crepes, as well as the beautiful lingerie Lace Gowns by Boue Soeurs—each a gem—they wend their way into the wee hours.

Of graceful, flowing lines, the wraps that promenade the moonlit paths find themselves befurred and bewitching indeed.

INTIMATE ACCESSORIES

Lingerie that understudies the role of the gown it complements, that shows all the nuances of the Mode, awaits your leisurely inspection at Leschin's. Hosiery in every matching shade of cobweb fineness will add the final touch to a finished tout ensemble.

THE BROOM LEAGUE.

There is, we think, enough enthusiasm for the project of getting rid of Thompson. What needs encouragement is enthusiasm for the proper man to succeed him. The city may in the one enthusiasm lose sight of the other necessity.

Here is where leadership, in the Democratic party and among Republicans opposed to Thompson, has responsibility. In that leadership is the accepted method of expression for the voters. Primarily Deneen, Crowe, Brundage and their associates in the Republican party, and Brennan, Harrison, O'Connell, etc., in the Democratic party, will make the decisions as to candidates.

If they act according to the best interests of the city and pick candidates because they are qualified for the office and not for other reasons the city's opportunity for gain is immediate. If they do not then the ability of the citizens to remedy the situation is limited.

Political leadership ought to be interested in the well-being of the city which supports it. Practically the mass of citizenship cannot organize itself outside of the leadership. It is supposed to be organized under the leadership and to look to it for responsible action.

Chicago needs a broom league, but it cannot be organized on the street corners. It can be formed under the existing party organizations.

ONE HAND GUN SPORTS.

The one hand gun sportsmen, whose defense is passionately pleaded by sporting and outdoor magazine editors, have been more than ordinarily sportive in Chicago of late. They almost set a record for marksmanship, which is the chief joy of pistol practice.

One gentlemanly sportsman prefaced his activities with a "pardon me," and calmly shot Miss Minnie Finkelstein, a 17 year old girl, through the hip while friends looked on helpless.

The same man, or another of his party, continued the sport a few minutes later by fatally shooting Policeman William J. O'Malley. One of the sportsmen was shot down in the chase which followed, but that was professionalism—something to be frowned upon in the highest sporting circles.

Still another sportsman, similarly equipped, both mentally and physically, shot at a taxicab driver who stopped his car to investigate the rumpus going on inside. Evidently this sportsman had neglected his target practice. That should never be done. He missed the chauffeur. When he turned to the moving target of his woman companion fleeing across the sidewalk he scored .666, with two hits out of three shots. Then he turned the gun upon himself. Practice had made him perfect, as all supporters of target shooting with the one hand gun know it will do. He put a bullet straight through the middle of the zero mark.

He's dead, but his example will live for the encouragement of all supporters of the one hand gun sports. It's thrilling sport.

A RESERVOIR OF JOBS.

Wesley C. Mitchell, director of the National Bureau of Economic Research, has offered a most important suggestion to the American Association for Labor Legislation, in session in Chicago. He urges the planning of public works far enough in advance to make them effective in times of unemployment. In other words, he wants to provide a reservoir of jobs, where men can draw a livelihood in times of business depression, and which can fill up for such emergencies in periods when private enterprise is giving normal employment to labor.

That is sound economics and wise sociology. At present, as throughout history, there is no provision for equalizing and steadying the labor market, and through it stabilizing business. We go blandly along, like the man with the leaky roof. When it rains we can't fix it and when the sun shines we don't need to fix it.

Last year it rained. Some 4,000,000 men were idle in this country. Their buying power was cut off and business suffered additionally in consequence. Now the sun is shining. Most of these 4,000,000 men are gainfully employed. The country is as thankful as may be, and goes along more or less blissfully.

This is the proper time to patch the roof against the next storm. It will come inevitably. Periods of depression have been recurrent throughout our entire history. If plans are made now, according to Mr. Mitchell's suggestion, public works laid out, money provided for their financing, etc., we can get these works completed at less cost and with greater good to the community in times of general business depression than at any other time.

FELINE TENNIS.

Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, woman tennis champion of America, is reported to have arranged to sail soon from New York for the Riviera. It is in that neighborhood that Suzanne Lenglen, woman tennis champion of the world, is most frequently seen on the courts. We are inspired with hope for a return engagement on Mlle. Lenglen's home grounds. But if we do not get that thrill we may get one at the next Wimbledon tournament. Mrs. Mallory says she will challenge Mlle. Lenglen for the title on the famous British courts.

If this contest actually comes about it may upset more than titles. A new glossary of tennis terms will be in the making. The rivalry between Molla and Suzanne has passed the historic courtesies of lawn tennis. Since Suzanne developed a coughing spell and quit in the middle of a losing match with Molla at Forest Hills, and since Molla said what she did after being handily beaten by Suzanne in a subsequent match abroad, there is no "love" in these set-tos.

There is a broad base for philosophizing. Would two male amateur athletes in any line develop such a personal grudge attitude as these two female tennis stars? Is there a possibility that their attitude may be more feline than feminine? Is tennis the cause or merely the medium of their expression of character? We do not presume to answer.

But we would like to see the match. A year ago we would have rooted for Molla, even though we believed Suzanne would win. Now we are inclined to root for both. "Go it, husband! Go it, bear!" It's a sporting event between women as well as between tennis champions.

AMERICAN AID TO EUROPE.

Though Senator Lodge, speaking for the White House, expressed the opinion that the adoption of the Borah conference proposal would be hurtful, and it was properly withdrawn, we believe its introduction has been beneficial. It gave rise to a discussion which we think cannot have embarrassed the government or raised illusory expectations abroad. It has made occasion for a public statement by Secretary Hughes which will clarify and emphasize the government's position and intention.

That statement, we are confident, will have the approval of preponderant American opinion. It assures us that the President and his secretary of state are as determined to keep free from political entanglements and commitments as they were pledged to be by the tremendous vote which placed Mr. Harding at the helm. It emphasizes, as THE TRIBUNE repeatedly does, the controlling consideration that America can do nothing for Europe unless the European governments reach such a composition of their political differences as will permit economic participation by us that will be both safe and effectual.

It was for our government to say whether the European governments have reached a stage at which they are disposed to make conditions and concessions essential to our granting economic relief. The government has said they have not. Nevertheless Senator Borah's suggestion and Secretary Hughes' remarks upon it are clearer and more authoritative notice to Europe of what we expect than it has thus far received.

As THE TRIBUNE has said frequently, Mr. Hughes points out it is not our responsibility to dictate political or economic adjustments in Europe. That is the duty of the European governments. But it is our right, when adjustments are made or pledged, to say whether they are satisfactory to us as clearing the ground for economic and financial coöperation by the United States.

It is generally recognized that the key of the whole problem is reparations. We cannot turn that key and until it is turned we cannot afford to enter upon the task of economic restoration. Secretary Hughes intimates that we are willing to assist informally in the examination and ascertainment of Germany's resources and capacity to pay. That is essential as a basis for intelligent extension of credit or other aid. Our general position he states frankly. We have no desire to relieve Germany of responsibility for reparations up to the limit of her capacity. We do not intend to assist her to evade just and possible payment of her obligations. As to that, France can rely upon us, for she has our sympathy as she had our aid in the war. But "on the other hand, we do not wish to see a prostrate Germany." If French policy indulges the hope of insuring the security of France by preventing the recuperation of Germany, we cannot support that hope or any measure dictated in its behalf.

On this groundwork the governments of Germany and our former associates in her defeat must present themselves before we shall consider the coöperation they so urgently need. We shall not play European politics under guise of economic adjustment. We require that France, England, Italy, and Germany shall lay before us assurances that they are ready for measures which have as their sole object economic restoration, and not the establishment of a balance of political or military power.

We do not say France ought to disregard her fears of a recrudescence of German force or Germany her fears of ruin by French domination. We can understand that France looks to the future with anxiety and Germany likewise. But these considerations we cannot pass upon. They are not our responsibility. It is up to European statesmanship to determine what can and ought to be done in the adjustment of their relations so as to make it possible for America to assist Europe upon terms consistent with America's welfare.

Editorial of the Day

PRESIDENT KINLEY BACKS ILLINI.

[The Daily Illini.]

"I believe in intercollegiate games."

This definite and decisive statement by President David Kinley in his message to the Chicago Illini club on the occasion of its annual banquet given for the football team places our president firmly behind our present admirable system, in opposition to some nearsighted educators who cannot seem to see that athletics always have and always will be a big part of life.

President Kinley points out that intercollegiate games are one of three branches of university athletics, intramural sports and physical training being the other two. He rightly shows, however, that only so long as these games do not interfere with intramural sports and are not out of proportion with the rest of the educational program will they be a valuable part of college life.

College men in general are not inclined to place too much emphasis on the sports of their respective schools. Some men do while they are in school and not yet old enough to see that it is all a game, but soon after they get out in the world this emphasis is lost and a more loyal feeling replaces it. That is why the Chicago Illini club feels honored to act as host to the football team. It was not a winning football team. It might have been a winning team had the university chosen to place football "out of proportion with the rest of the educational program." Illini clubs want to see Illinois win just as much as do the students in school, but they are not so prone to condemn a loser. Their enthusiasm is tempered by the reverses they have met since leaving school. Defeats must be met and mastered, they know. The banquet to the Illinois football team by Chicago Illini is a manifestation of this spirit. It is in keeping with what President Kinley says of intercollegiate games. It is loyalty personified.

OUR NEIGHBOR on the west twits us because we permitted our lady correspondent B. L. M. to pan Jawn McCutcheon because he used "gotten" in the legend of a cartoon. The Editorial Department declares that objection to "gotten" is wrong. "And," say they (the Ed. Dept.), "the great American people are going steadily ahead making a new language which already is so distinct from English that a new glossary has to be printed with the English edition of 'Babbit.'"

BOYS, if you have read this Campanile of Coruscation to any great extent during the year we have endeavored to conduct it, you will have noticed that we permit the correspondents to do everything up to homicide. We will not say whether we approve of "gotten" or not, but we will say that if you editorial highbrows watched your knitting as closely as you do Bill Wrigley's clock you wouldn't spell Babbitt with one t. "Rabbit," dearies, that is the word spelled with one t. "Babbitt" has two t's.

And when that mountain is leveled down
My love shall flame anew.

DEVIE NAY.

THAT'S WHY THEY LIKED IT.

Dear Uncle Dick: First glance over this story called "Why Not?" and published in the editorial columns of the Trib last Thursday:

"Daddy," said his 6 year old youngster, "I think I want to get married." "What an idea, child!" "I want to marry grandma." "Do you, indeed? And do you think I would let you marry my mother, eh?" "Well, why shouldn't you?" retorted the young logician. "You married mine, didn't you?"

Now, will you not kindly breathe a word in the ears of the young gentlemen who run the column to your left, with all the urbanity for which you are so justly celebrated, and beg them during 1923 to provide us with jokes a little less venerable? The above story, which I clipped from the bottom of the second editorial column of Thursday, is told in Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy, published 1621, and attributed to Athenaeus, who compiled a jest book 300 BC. My soul is like the quiet of a winter twilight,
All unrest and fear are blended and softened into

MONAD—A BODY GOBLIN.

WHENEVER there is a persisting diarrhoea, or a refractory discharge, especially from the pelvic organs, for which no good explanation is at hand, Dr. T. C. Terrell of Fort Worth, Tex., advises that laboratory examinations be made for monads.

These microscopic animalculæ, somewhat resembling bearded goblins, are not new acquaintances of man. It was eighty-five years ago that a microscopist was sauntering cavalierly across a field with his lens when his attention was arrested by a commotion. On closer scrutiny he found a body two or three times as large as a blood cell, with whiskers like a catfish, or, perhaps it is better to say with arms like an octopus. The creature was striking out wildly with its three arms, flailing everything 'round about.

Since then, several cousins of this wild slasher have been discovered. Some of them cause diarrhoeas, some cause coughs, some cause vaginal discharges, and some cause irritations of the bladder.

So, really, we know a good deal about them, almost as much as we know about some bacteria, but we put the information we have to very little practical use. This is somewhat unfortunate, since, in Dr. Terrell's experience, part of which was had in Texas and part in Pennsylvania, the monads are frequently the source of trouble.

In Pennsylvania, in examining 137 men, he found two suffering from these monads. Of 112 women examined, forty-four were infected. In Texas he has found this parasite in one-third of the cases in which he suspected it. This meant finding fifty-four people infected with it in a period of about six months. These figures indicate that monad infection is infrequent neither in the north nor in the south. He thinks it more frequent in the latter section.

He found it responsible for some cases of pellagra, or some cases that had the symptoms of pellagra. It was very frequently found in cases of discharge, accompanied by unpleasant and intractable itching. It was a frequent cause of diarrhoea. In all cases of diarrhoea not otherwise explainable the possibility of monad infection should be investigated.

Reports from Dr. Terrell and others indicate that the arsephenamine group of preparations are of great value when used simultaneously with appropriate local treatment. But that is a matter for the physicians to work out and to carry out.

It is enough for the people to know that here is a possible cause of some of the disorders to which human flesh is heir, and that, under certain circumstances, those with diarrhoeas and discharges and local itching should not let the attending physician rest until this possible cause has been investigated.

CANNIBALISM MIGHT DO IT.

G. W. E. writes:

"1. Upon taking a physician's examination I was told that I was liable to be easily ruptured. Can you tell me how to correct this condition?

"2. Am small for my age. Otherwise in good health. Can you suggest anything?"

REPLY.

1. Take exercises to build up your abdominal walls. Go to the library and read McKenzie's "Exercise in Education and Medicine." There is a chapter in this book on exercises to strengthen the abdominal muscles.

2. There is nothing that I know of that will help. An advertisement of Cannibal Capers says: "Cannibals have been known to increase their height ten inches. Try being a cannibal."

GREASE CHAPPED HANDS.

A high school boy writes: "My hands get chapped every winter, in spite of all I do to prevent it. I always wash with cold water.

"Will you please tell me what causes chapped hands and what is the remedy?"

REPLY.

Wear loose, warm, woolen mitts; keep your hands warm and dry; do not wash them so much. After washing them, grease slightly. Use any grease you wish. If you want to buy the grease under another name, go to the drug store and buy any skin salve the advertisements of which suit your fancy. It does not matter which.

FOR RECKLESS DRIVERS.

Dr. J. M. B. writes: "I read the newspaper story of a man who had had seventeen auto accidents and who had completely wrecked seven cars. This man should be examined as to his mentality. His eyes should be examined. When examining aviators during the world war, I sat many men on the ground because they had had auto accidents. In some cases close examination showed the vision to be at fault. In other cases the trouble was with the mentality."

NO HARM IN SEWING.

L. E. T. writes:

"1. Is it injurious for a pregnant woman to use a sewing machine which is run by the feet?

"2. Is it essential to eat meat, even if it gags one, during the first three months?"

REPLY.

1. No.

2. No. Pregnant women need some protein food, but they can take it as milk, eggs, peas and beans, if they wish. They need starches and sugars more than they need meat. This means bread, crackers, pastry, cereal and candy.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

BIGAMY.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—[To the Friend of the People.]—A man and his wife separated fourteen years ago in New York state. She went to live with friends and he wrote asking her to return and live with him. She wrote and refused his request, asking that he pay toward the support of their son. He refused, thinking that she would return. He wrote many letters asking her to return and received no reply. He returned to New York state, and her friends said that she had a divorce and was remarried. On another visit he heard that she had died. Later the man married in Indiana. Now he hears that the wife is living but cannot learn where she is. Can he be held for bigamy? H. L.

The Illinois statute on bigamy provides that it shall not apply to a person whose spouse has been continuously absent five years before the remarriage if the person did not know the spouse to be alive.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

EVIDENTLY A DISHONEST LAWYER.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I have paid my lawyer in full in connection with my inheritance from an estate, but I need proof of heirship before I can receive any benefit from the inheritance. The lawyer disregards all communications. What can I do? L. H.

It was, of course, a mistake to pay him in full before he had done the work. We suggest that you write to him that if he does not respond you will take the matter up with the bar association.

HOLES ON MARSHFIELD AVENUE FILLED IN.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—[To the Friend of the People.]—There is a bad hole on Marshfield avenue, near 67th street. Will you see what can be done to rectify this? W. W. P.

The depression in pavement at 6644 Marshfield avenue has been filled in temporarily with crushed stone. Permanent repairs will be made when vehicle tax activities are resumed next spring. THOS. H. BYRNE, Superintendent of Streets.

4700 BLOCK ON W. AUSTIN AVENUE.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Two years ago the city tore up the street in the 4700 block on West Austin avenue, and the block has been in an impassable condition ever since. Why has the city not repaired this block? M. D.

Austin avenue at this point is an old maca[illegible] pavement, at least twenty years old. [illegible]nch opened by the water pipe extension [illegible] repaired in such a manner as to be superior to the balance of the pavement. A new pavement is needed on this street and is the only remedy for present conditions.

MAKING AN ALLEY A TOPLESS RUBBISH CAN.

Chicago, Dec. 16.—[To the Friend of the People.]—A certain store on Sheridan near Dakin sweeps its accumulation of waste paper into a blind alley. The wind blows this paper on to our lawns. Can't we have this stopped? F. L. B.

The alley proper at the corner of Sheridan road and Dakin street is clean. The conditions complained of are in a private areaway at the rear of store where rubbish is kept. Notice has been served on storekeepers to provide receptacles for the accommodation of this refuse and the coöperation of the health department has been requested to see that there is no further violation of the city ordinances pertaining to private premises.

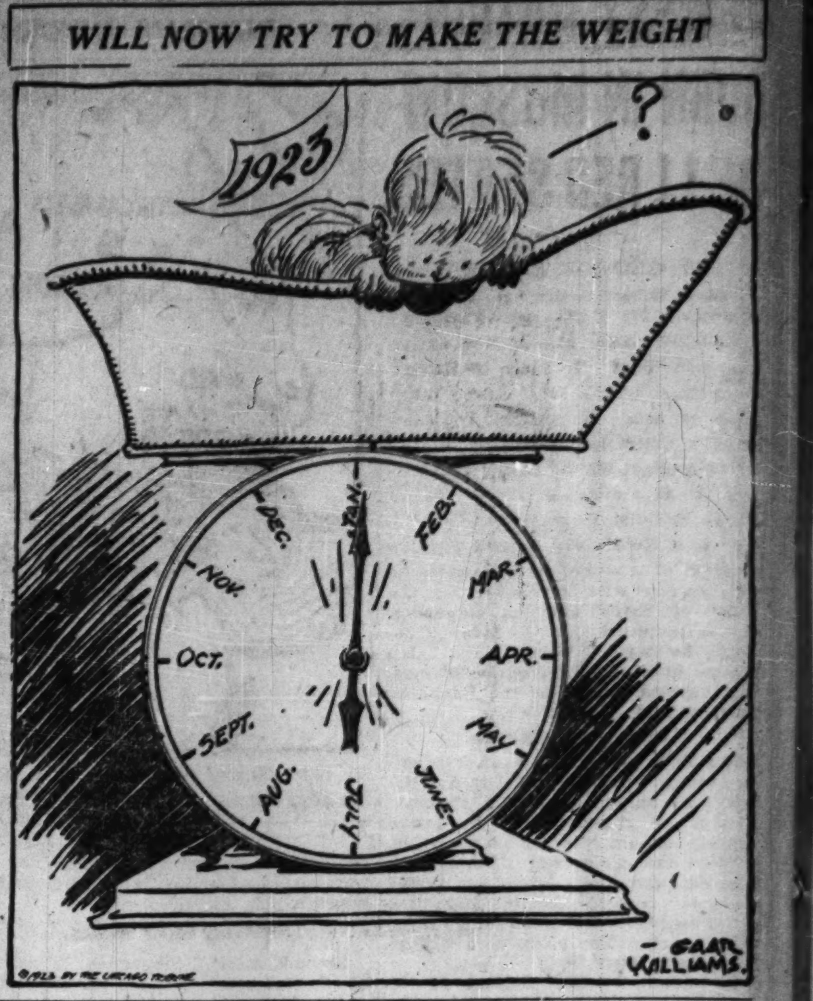
THE TRIBUNE will be issued on the morning after New Year's as usual.

There was forty-four fires during the month of December, involving a loss of $21,235.

The employes of Fairbank, Peck & Co. mingled in the mazes of the dance at a complimentary New Year's ball last night.

The regular monthly meeting of the Managers of the Home for the Friendless will be held at the Home to-morrow forenoon, at 10 o'clock.

Among the donations received yesterday by the Public Library were ten volumes from the Mayor, fifteen from Adolph Moses, Esq., and six from the Rev. Mr. Forsythe.



VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

THE MAYORALTY.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—THE TRIBUNE is doing its part in attempting to arouse sentiment among the Republicans to concentrate their efforts on a candidate who can defeat Thompson at the approaching primary; but it seems to me to be effort wasted. Brundage, as a resident of Evanston, cannot take any part in Chicago political affairs; Deneen is no longer a ward committeeman; Barrett is said to have moved out of the ward in which he served as committeeman; Crowe is not now, and never was, a ward committeeman. Organization, therefore, is what counts in primary fights. Without it, the battle is waged in vain.

I do, however, find a crumb of comfort in reading in today's TRIBUNE that a serious split in the Democratic party is inevitable and that a "nonpartisan anti-Thompson move is advocated." I am of the opinion this is the only way out of the difficulty, lest Thompson be renominated.

Brennan will dictate and force on the Democratic leaders and ward committeemen a candidate of his own choosing, and make them accept his choice, no matter how bitter the pill may be for the majority to swallow. This done, the old Harrison guard, as well as O'Connell, Sweitzer, Cermak, Nash, Sabath, Dailey, and such as followed the fortunes of Dunne and Sullivan in the past, will have nothing left but to bolt the candidate forced on them by Czar Brennan. So, therefore, the opportunity presents itself for all the anti-Brennan leaders in the Democratic party, as well as all the anti-Thompson leaders in the Republican party, to come together on a coalition ticket, winning independent of both the Democratic and Republican machines.

J. L. H.

"GIVING HER NINE POINTS."

Chicago, Dec 26.—Regarding Motorman Charles E. Hill, on some of the motorman's problems, I want to ask him what is the reason some of these square headed ones give her nine points just at a cross line, when they see some one running to their car. I saw this done when, like last week, it was around zero, to a woman with a baby in her arms. I suppose I am to criticise the woman for this, like he told Mr. J. Tierney to do.

R. S.

UNMAUDLIN SENTIMENT.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—People like Mrs. A. Gray make me tired. Her question of "Why the maudlin sentiment about the latest fallen screen artist?" is a joke.

Rather than "knock a man when he is down" I should think Mrs. Gray would lend a "helping hand," but evidently such things and thoughts are not in her line. MARION ELDER.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF EUROPE.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—I do not agree with THE TRIBUNE that our troops in Germany should be brought home just now. Far from constituting a danger, their mere stay may act as a cooler on some of the French hotheads who want to crush Germany with new oppressive measures. And if these tendencies result in a new war our troops should not only stay but a million more should be sent over to fight on the side of German democracy against French imperialism and militarism. C. B.

GARBLED OPERA.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—On Saturday evening, Dec. 23, I attended a performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana" at the Civic opera. The most beautiful song of the whole opera and the one which my party desired most to hear was blandly omitted, the orchestra playing the music of "Ave Maria" to an empty stage. Thousands there had paid to hear the opera; all were deprived of something they paid for. Part of the play here was good, but the audience should have had their money refunded or all the opera given.

GIACOMO PECORA.

TICKETS AT THE BOX OFFICE.

New York, Dec. 28.—I have just received copies of your paper and am glad to see that Mr. Powers has decided to inaugurate the same system in all his theaters controlled by himself and Mr. Erlanger that I insisted upon in connection with the limited engagement of "Sally" in Chicago. That is, to sell all tickets at the box office window; first come, first served. We have been compelled to fight ticket speculators who have followed this attraction from town to town, and I can assure the Chicago public that every means possible will be taken to insure them tickets at box office prices if they will come to the box office for them. F. ZIEGFELD JR.

VOX POP SO FAR HAS VOTED 25 TO 2 TO LET "FATTY" ARBUCKLE COME BACK.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—I can't be silent with two successive editorials and a letter from Carl Laemmle on the Arbuckle case, thus causing me to mentally writhe. This Arbuckle is symbolical of the very worst phase of the moving picture world, and decent citizens will not go to see his pictures.

Why all the "sob stuff"? Suppose he can't find work in pictures? Let him try other kinds of work. Of course he may not be paid enough to own a fine house or made to order car.

A. BROWN.

PRESENT LAW DOES NOT PERMIT JAIL SENTENCES FOR SPEEDING.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—Isn't there even one sitting judge in Chicago with "guts" enough to punish properly flagrant violators of our automobile laws?

Five persons killed by automobiles in Chicago in 1905, 52 in 1910, 491 in 1920, 606 in 1921, and more than 700 in 1922.

Isn't there a limit somewhere which, when reached, will justify your paper and all the others in treating these deaths as murders, with suitable rewards for the apprehension and conviction of the responsible parties?

One thousand eight hundred persons killed by automobiles in Chicago in the last three years. Insurance company records, showing amounts paid to dependents on behalf of the car owners, indicate that at least 25 per cent of the deaths were caused by careless and reckless driving on the part of the car owners.

In how many instances did the coroner's jury hold the car owners responsible? 1, 2, 3 per cent of the cases?

An automobile speeder fears only one thing—jail.

Why not publish a large picture of our jail, and dare our judges to follow the example of Judge Bartlett of Detroit.

W. M. LAWSON.

THE BRITISH WEST INDIES WOULDN'T HAVE US.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Your editorial published in this Sunday's issue regarding the British West Indies as a means of the cancellation of British war debt is interesting but not very probable.

British traditions are so deeply rooted in these islands—notice the war records of the West Indies—that it would be nothing short of miraculous if the folks were not distinctly opposed to the idea you are so generously and wholeheartedly advocating. Even if the British government were to accede to your proposals—which is miles off from reality—the inhabitants would raise such a howl of protest that must of necessity be a determining factor in the end.

Dynamite and Printer's Ink

Two mighty forces unite in broadcasting the news of the most important sale ever inaugurated by any clothing store in America

By GEO. H. CAPPER
Vice-President Capper & Capper

CHARGED with dynamite and conveyed to you through the use of printer's ink, this announcement is a smashing blow to conventional present-day merchandising methods, and marks the beginning of an era of newer and better things.

Tomorrow morning—Tuesday, January 2nd—every Suit and Overcoat in each of our stores located in various cities, will be placed on sale at reductions so radical as to positively assure a speedy transfer of ownership from this firm to the public.

As an institution of national prominence—cherishing ideals and proud of its accomplishments—it is illogical to assume that this firm would resort to a mere selling scheme, or adopt this method of creating extra business for the moment. On the contrary, it is simply a housecleaning—preparatory to blazing the trail that leads to higher merchandising ideals—about which you will learn more after our present tremendous clothing stocks have been disposed of.

Always, Capper & Capper have sold good clothes—the cleverest creations of America's foremost designers, tailored by the world's leading manufacturers. The clothes offered in this drastic, purposeful clearance are typically ours; they are as good as any, and better than most of the clothes obtainable elsewhere. Yet, every garment in all Capper & Capper stores must be disposed of immediately—regardless of cost, profit or former selling prices—in order that we may speedily inaugurate our new merchandising plan, the influence of which will be felt throughout the length and breadth of the land.

We regret that it seems inexpedient at this time to tell you more about our far-reaching plan; but you shall know all, later. We can tell you this much, however; it is representative of a new order of thinking as regards both the manufacturing and retailing of men's and young men's clothing. In truth, it is revolutionary in character, and a thing the public has long been seeking—for not only does merchandise and service enter into this important plan, but human nature as well, in all of its complex and varied phases.

But our first task, friends, is the quick disposal of our present clothing stocks. So, let us tackle the task at hand. To facilitate matters, and to make selection easy, we offer our entire stock of fine suits and overcoats, positively and absolutely without reservation, as follows:

All $45 Suits & O'Coats now . $32.50
All $50 Suits & O'Coats now . $34.50
All $55 Suits & O'Coats now . $39.50

(Think of buying Capper & Capper fine clothes at such marvelously low prices.)

All $60 Suits & O'Coats now . $42.50
All $65 Suits & O'Coats now . $46.50
All $70 Suits & O'Coats now . $48.50

(Never before have such big and generous reductions been offered on clothes of equal quality.)

All $75 Suits & O'Coats now . $53.50
All $80 Suits & O'Coats now . $56.50
All $85 Suits & O'Coats now . $58.50

All of our finer Overcoats formerly sold by us at $90, and up to $115, are also offered at proportionate reductions.

This epoch-marking selling event begins tomorrow morning, Tuesday, January 2nd—at both of our Chicago stores, as well as our stores in other cities—and will continue until our purpose has been fully accomplished. Multitudes of Chicagoans will start carrying this fine merchandise away bright and early tomorrow morning. We suggest, therefore, that you make your selections at once.

During the progress of this sale we hope, and shall endeavor, to serve you well, but in the event that the crowds in attendance assume the proportions of an avalanche of eager buyers, may we not crave your indulgence in advance?

CHIEF ASSISTANT CITY PROSECUTOR QUITS THOMPSON

Another desertion from the Thompson-Lundin-Small political camp was announced last night in the resignation of Daniel Webster, newly elected state senator from the Twenty-fifth district, as chief assistant city prosecutor. Senator Webster said he has definitely broken with the city hall forces and that he is lined up with the Brundage-Crowe organization.

Mr. Webster's resignation, he said, was the outgrowth of "general dissatisfaction with the Thompson city administration."

Follows Hitzman's Lead.

In leaving a post he has had for more than seven years, the erstwhile assistant prosecutor asserted, he was in a measure, following the lead of George Hitzman, former Lundin-Thompson committeeman in the old Thirty-third ward, now the Thirty-sixth. Hitzman clashed with Thompson early last spring.

Mr. Hitzman at once joined Brundage and Crowe. He supported Webster in his senatorial campaign.

Mr. Webster's resignation was foreshadowed several days ago when it became known he had cast his lot with a group of state senators fighting for senate autonomy as opposed to domination by the Small clique. He has also promised to support Senator Otis F. Glenn of Murphysboro for chairman of the Republican caucus.

Will Practice Law.

Senator Webster will establish himself in private law practice, affiliating with Grover E. Holmes and Elmer N. Holmeren, under the firm name of Webster, Holmes & Holmeren, with offices at 127 North Dearborn street.

MAY BOLT SMALL RULE.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—A bolt from the Republican house caucus next Tuesday night, if Gov. Small goes through with his plans to attempt organization of the house by dictating the selection of a speaker, was threatened tonight by a group of independents who arrived in the legislative vanguard.

Some of them definitely asserted that they will refuse to go into the caucus if the governor attempts to interfere. If the threatened bolt develops it will throw the speakership contest on to the floor of the house, where any one of numerous possibilities might occur in naming a speaker.

The situation was muddled rather than clarified by today's early arrivals, who included two candidates for speaker, Otto C. Sonnemann of Macoupin county, and A. Otis Arnold of Adams.

MYSTERY SQUAD HUNTS POISONED LIQUOR SOURCES

With particular attention being paid to road houses, investigations are being made by federal agents and private operatives employed by persons whose names are concealed into the sale of poison liquor.

This was learned yesterday from authoritative sources, and at the same time it became known that the inquiry, which has been kept highly secret, has been under way for some days. So secretly have the operatives and private detectives worked that no one in the federal prohibition office has known of their activities. The government employés are said to be secret service men drawn from a department outside the regular prohibition staff.

Great mystery has been thrown about the identity of the person or persons employing the private detectives and paying the bills of their ivestigation. Money has been liberally spent in obtaining evidence, and positive proof of the sale of poison whisky is said to have been obtained in a number of places.

Whisky sold for "bonded goods" has been taken away by the detectives and analyzed. Several of the samples, the chemists declared, contanied "at least 4 per cent formaldehyde," a deadly poison.

Undertakers and embalmers, it is stated, use formaldehyde for embalming purposes and for the preservation of bodies.

At least one other analysis read thus: "A vile and poisonous mixture, neither bourbon nor rye, containing 45 per cent grain alcohol, vegetable coloring matter, and a quantity of ether and other drugs."

One recent death is said to have been directly connected with the sale of moonshine by one of the places under investigation. In this case, the informant states, a prosecution for murder is likely to follow.

NO DRY LAW FOR BRITAIN; COULD NOT ENFORCE IT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—If gun toting were punished in this country as severely as in England, there would be far less crime, according to Sir Basil Thomson, former director of criminal investigation at Scotland Yard.

In the course of an interview comparing the American and British conception of law making, Sir Basil remarked that prohibition never could be enforced in England, and hence no prohibition law would be enacted.

"In England we don't pass laws that cannot be enforced," he said.

Fully 90 per cent of American crime is due to gun toting, the criminologist said he had been informed.

In Great Britain, he said, the function of the grand jury had been reduced to a more "ornamental" status. Criminals there, he explained, were brought first before a magistrate and then before the assizes court, and the grand jury at the same time, with the court ready to act immediately the grand jury "affirmed" a true bill

Gowns Will Take Gayety Wherever They Go

THE gowns for Southern wear are almost all brilliant in color. This is especially true of the materials for informal wear—which reflect Persian, Bulgarian and Japanese influences. Some of the white frocks achieve their color effects with colored embroidery or combinations of beads and silk braid. "Picture Dresses," decorated with exotic little figures of birds, flowers and people, are especially favored.

Costume Room, Sixth Floor

Custom Apparel Section Also Looks to the South

The woman who desires to dress to type and to imprint her personality upon her gowns will be interested in our Custom Apparel Sections, where the models of the most famous French couturieres are the inspiration and individuality is the ideal. Custom Apparel Section, Ninth Floor

Points that Mark Smart Costuming

Hats for Sun and Shade

THE most favored shades are almond green, crushed berry, steel gray, cocoa, pheasant, orchid and Mephisto, a new and vivid red. Sometimes the color note on a felt or timbo Hat is achieved with a Persian scarf.

The smart Hat materials are Bangkok, felt, hairbraid crinole, visca, timbo, Milan, leghorn and Tuscan. Faille embroidered in color is practical for traveling.

Every style is fashionable, from the close-fitting turban and the Paisley-trimmed sports Hat to the picture Hat with the sweeping brim. Millinery Sections, Fifth Floor

Overblouses and Skirts

Assume an Air of Cheery Informality

NO matter what the material, silk or wool, Skirts and Overblouses bespeak comfort in their many pleats and ample blouses. Coincident with their comfort is their penchant for gay color, which is part of the costume scheme.

In Search of the Sun

THROUGH the gray of the after-holiday time, through the bleakness of lengthening Winter, the warm sun is calling—calling from Palm Beach and the Miami shore—calling from California—calling from the Mediterranean and from the Pacific. And the fashionable world answers and sets gaily forth in search of the sun.

As long ago as last Summer—for even that early were forecasts being made—our representatives began studying this very question, what you would wear for these Winter sojournings. The results are more than gratifying—styles which Paris herself is regarding as advanced—an exclusiveness, a fitness for each need and locale, a charm linked with novelty, hardly to be surpassed.

Gay Colors Permeate Sports Attire

BRIGHT colors are as inevitable as sports clothes themselves.

Knitted models will go hand in hand with the bright hues. Wool, silk, fibre-and-wool—in sweaters (more of them than ever), suits, and dresses. Many suits have bloused slipover jackets; others have mannish sweater coats, plain in back, with plaid fronts to match the plaid skirts.

Printed leather jackets will brighten the golf links, while beach and surf will be the gayer for knitted one-piece bathing suits with embroidery or particolored bandings.

Riding habits in their newest modes feature the all-covert outfit, or coat of plain color with checked breeches. Another smart habit has Oxford Melton cloth coat with Bedford cord breeches.

Most important, and not to be forgotten by any smart sports wardrobe is a decorative monogram.

ROBBER KILLED, PAL TAKEN, IN HOLDUP AMBUSH

former policeman, denied that vice figured in the shooting, and declared that he fired in self-defense after Johnson had drawn a gun.

Investigation by the police, however, led them to the theory of resort control as the motive. They learned that for many years a certain group of persons had extracted tribute from some 300 saloons, gambling houses, and dives under a guarantee of protection, and that this tribute generally was fixed at 50 per cent of the income of the place.

Recently the control changed. A well known politician became the vice czar and with him were associated numerous ward politicians. They decided that 50 per cent wasn't enough, and sent out word that their share would have to be 83 per cent or there would be no protection. Pope, it is said, refused to pay the new scale. Johnson went to insist that he pay or close.

Besides Pope, a nephew of "Frankie" Pope, well known as a west side gambler, and Fogarty, the police are holding a girl and two men arrested near the saloon.

SHEIK BANDITS TAKEN

Loot amounting to $7,000 was recovered yesterday with the arrest of five youthful "sheik bandits," who confessed to more than a score of robberies and holdups in the last two weeks. The total amount stolen may exceed $25,000.

Those under arrest are:

Vincent Lemmon, 20 years old, 2430 Diversey avenue, alleged leader; Harold Lemmon, 18, brother of Vincent; Walter Neimeyer, 18, 2118 Nebraska avenue; Henry Swanson, 18, 3013 Armitage avenue, and Francis Newman, 24 years old.

The roundup was made after Policemen B. J. McCarthy and Peter Hayes of the Shakespeare avenue station had observed Vincent Lemmon, Neimeyer and Swanson sitting in a stolen automobile at Division and Rockwell streets.

The three robbers were arrested after revolvers were found in their possession. Three young women in the machine with them were also taken into custody. They were later released.

Isabelle Arnold, 18 years old, a stenographer, 2723 North Artesian avenue, said to be a sweetheart of Neimeyer, was questioned, and also released after she had returned jewelry Neimeyer had given her and which is said to have been stolen.

Questioned at the police station by Capt. Harding, the three youths admitted several of the robberies and implicated Harold Lemmon and Newman, who were subsequently arrested. In searching the clothing of the five prisoners, the police found $1,500.

A search of the automobile revealed it to be stocked with jewelry. Gems were found carelessly stuffed in the upholstery of the seat cushions and in the side pockets. Other jewelry was found in the homes of the bandits.

Dressed for Robbery.

It has been their practice, the prisoners admitted to the police, to clothe themselves in the latest fashion, slick their hair in the most approved sheik style and spend their evenings in the companionship of young women of good families at exclusive places of entertainment. It was because of their association with these young women that they were forced into committing the robberies, they told the police.

In explaining their method, the "shieks" said that they would steal an automobile, in which they would tour fashionable districts, confining their attentions to pedestrians, whom they would kidnap.

One of the revolvers found in the possession of the youths was stolen from Police Inpector Paul Clyde, 945 Edgecomb place, whom they forced into their automobile while he was making his rounds on Dec. 26 and robbed of a diamond pin valued at $300 and $50 in cash and then threw out of the machine.

Nearly a dozen victims have identified them, police say.

FROM COP TO THIEF

Within two hours after his suspension from the police force Saturday night, Probationary Patrolman Fred Leidy of the Town Hall station, living at 3259 Seminary avenue, tried his hand as a holdup man. Leidy escaped, but an alleged accomplice, Charles Giese, 21, 1721 N[illegible]sted street, a chauffeur, was arrested.

Accusing [illegible] competence, Capt. John McCarthy had recommended to Chief Fitzmorris that he be discharged.

Giese said Leidy met him at 11 o'clock and they went for an auto ride. At Willow and Bissell streets Giese said Leidy told him to pull the car up to the curb alongside a couple who later were learned to be Frank Bacitalupi, 1538 North Wells street, and Mrs. Theresa Schaeffer, 1842 Maud avenue.

Alighting from the car Leidy drew his revolver and ordered the couple to put up their hands. Searching them he obtained $26 from Bacitalupi and took $11 and two diamond rings from Mrs. Schaeffer.

Edward Johnson, 823 West Madison street, shot to death by Frank Pope in the latter's saloon at 811 West Monroe street Sunday in alleged vice graft quarrel.

SEES MURDER ATTEMPT

Charges that the shooting of Harry Hoffenkamp Saturday was an attempt at murder by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Katherine Hoffenkamp, in whose home at 7143 South Halsted street Hoffenkamp was found, and that he is shielding his relative by statements that the wounds were self-inflicted, were made last night by Miss Katherine Kavanaugh, 67 East 42d street. She says she was to have married Hoffenkamp Saturday afternoon.

"His sister-in-law told me I would never marry Harry," Miss Kavanaugh told the police.

The sister-in-law, with Miss Kavanaugh, accompaneid Lieut. John Condon to interrogate Hoffenkamp.

Hoffenkamp asked Lieut. Condon to return this morning. "I can't tell you anything now," he said. "I shot myself, lieutenant. I can't blame any one else."

Mrs. Hoffenkamp was then released.

EASTERN BANKER TAKES HIGH POST OF OGDEN ARMOUR

Gen. McRoberts to Head Two Finance Boards.

Brig. Gen. Samuel McRoberts of New York, internationally known banker, will be made chairman of the finance committee of both the Illinois and Delaware corporations of Armour & Co., with the floating of the packing firm's new bond issue this week, it was announced in New York last night.

In the Illinois company McRoberts will succeed J. Ogden Armour.

Urged by Eastern Financiers.

The announcement was made by the Chase Securities company, which will handle the 7 per cent issue of preferred stock. The appointment of McRoberts came through the desire of the eastern bankers to have a man of their own selection at the head of the finance committees.

McRoberts, however, formerly was attorney for Armour & Co. in Chicago. He is president of the Metropolitan Trust company of New York, and formerly was executive manager for the National City bank there.

Arranged Loan to Russia.

In 1916 he arranged a $50,000,000 loan to Russia.

During the war he rose from the rank of major to brigadier general in command of the especially created procurement division of the A. E. F. ordnance department. He is 53 years old.

FALLS DOWN STAIRS, MAY DIE.

PRINCESS XENIA AND YANK MATE REACH AMERICA

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—William B. Leeds, son of the former Mrs. William B. Leeds, now the Princess Anastasia of Greece, arrived in New York on the Cunard liner Berengaria today with his bride, the Princess Xenia. He was frankly glad to be back in the United States, not only because he wanted to rejoin his mother, but because he was happy over the opportunity of giving his wife her first view of America.

Mr. Leeds, although still in his early twenties, confessed to thirty-eight crossings of the Atlantic, so that the rough voyage was no new thing to him. He said his wife had also enjoyed the passage. He was not sure what he would do in the future or how long he would stay in this country. He had been making his home in Paris and London, he said, and expected to return to Europe.

AMERICAN ENVOY TO JAPAN COMING HOME TO RESIGN

TOKIO, Dec. 31.—[United News.]—Charles B. Warren, American ambassador to Japan, is about to resign, it was announced at the embassy today.

Ambassador Warren will sail for the United States on Jan. 25 to confer with President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes and will present his resignation to the President personally.

"My job is finished," Mr. Warren said. "Japanese and American relations are now cordial and peaceful."

No Passenger Killed on Burlington in Four Years

The Marriage Flaw

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

John Corbeyne, one of England's financiers, is about to become a member of the cabinet. He is devoted to Sylvia, his second wife, and their young son. Corbeyne's first wife, Katherine, threatens to reopen their divorce case on a technicality unless he returns to live with her as her husband. Corbeyne learns that if the case were reopened it would create great public interest. He goes back to Katherine to avoid staining Sylvia's honor and his son's name. To stiffen Sylvia's back to the blow by arousing her pride, he pretends he has been lured away by the other woman.

Carfax announces that Corbeyne is ill. After a month Corbeyne's absence creates a slight panic in the financial world. There is a run on an important bank, and, out of curiosity Corbeyne goes to the scene. He has changed his appearance slightly, but Carfax sees and accosts him. He denies he is Corbeyne. Carfax apologizes but appeals to him as a patriot to take Corbeyne's place to avert a great financial crisis. Corbeyne consents. Sylvia agrees to the arrangement and, although she knows he is her husband, she will not permit him to explain.

Katherine, who is evidently being coached in her part, objects to his double role of Corbeyne in town and Brierly at Ealing and renews her threats, but John decides to carry out his agreement with Carfax and Sylvia.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

BEGINNING HIS OFFICIAL EXISTENCE.

Tomorrow was the day of Corbeyne's introduction to parliament. It turned out a day of ceremonial pottering. Corbeyne had thought the whole business would be a matter of an hour or so, but it elongated itself in endless introductions. Then there came the formal entry into his new office, which was a spare wing in the war office. In the office he encountered one of the wonders of Whitehall. To begin with, he had never imagined that his personal activities for the government could require a building as big as a moderate sized hotel. For another, he found a large staff in being, apparently working hard at the work of a ministry which was at that moment coming into existence. There was a permanent head, the secretary, who explained things to him. Uneasily, he began to think there was more in Carfax's theory of a figurehead than he had supposed. In a couple of crowded days he learned where the routine work of the staff ceased and he himself began as the veritable directing head. On the third day of his official existence, the secretary approached him with a wry grin which Corbeyne had already learned to associate with trouble in the offing.

"There's a rather hard nut for you to crack here, Mr. Corbeyne," he said, handing a letter. "It's the Wool people. The combine have been plaguing the prime minister for the last six months, as of course you know. He has staved them off and now he's referred them to you."

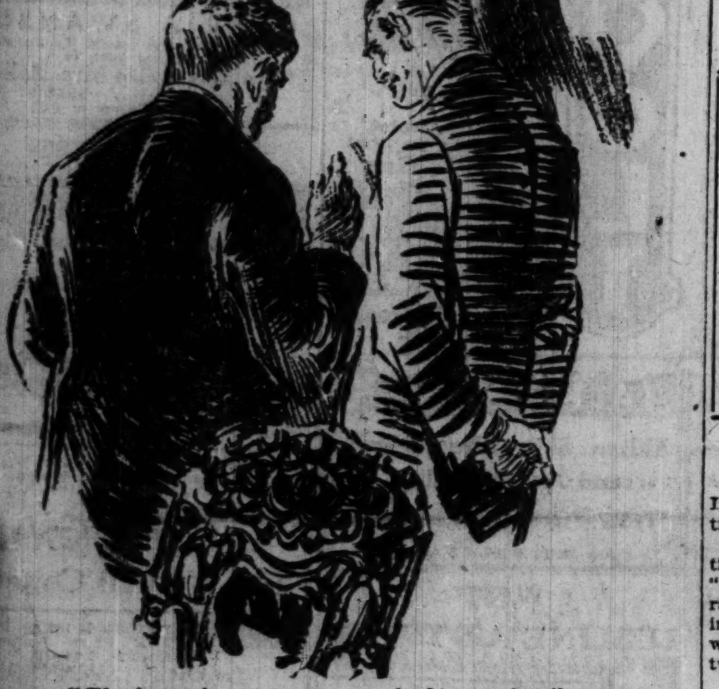
"Ah," said Corbeyne. "They want a protective tax, don't they? Well, they can't have it."

"Quite so. But it's an awkward situation. And the head of the combine, who will lead the deputation to you, is a particularly resourceful man who knows pretty well every rope there is to know."

"O? Who is he?"

"Deagle," answered the secretary. "Will you receive the deputation?"

"Yes," snapped Corbeyne. "The sooner the better. This week if possible."



"They're trying to get you on the hip, my boy."

"There will be no difficulty about that," laughed the secretary. "They want to see you this afternoon."

"Good!" said Corbeyne. "I'll see them."

The secretary conveyed a tactful intimation that it would be well to see the prime minister first, and to the prime minister Corbeyne went, to inquire whether there were any instructions in the matter.

"I never issue instructions except of a purely negative nature," said the prime minister somewhat stiffly. "It is in your department, Mr. Corbeyne. You must deal with the matter as you think fit."

Corbeyne bowed and was about to withdraw when the prime minister accomplished one of his famous lapses into confidential bonhommie.

"They're trying to get you on the hip, my boy," he imparted. "They've been nagging at me. The Wool combine is one of the reasons why we decided on a ministry of credit. The old game! This import tax business is a party question, and we are supposed to have finished with party politics. Yours is a nonparty office, and we can do a good many things through you that we couldn't do ourselves. Be as ingenious as you can with the combine and do your best not to commit yourself. Deagle, by the way, is a devil."

That was all the help he got from the prime minister. It was the things the prime minister did not say that told John Corbeyne where he stood. He was able to grasp for the first time that the government had erected him as a scapegoat, a whipping boy. If the economic need of the country were to force the government to an unpopular step, the step could be taken and the price paid at the sacrifice of the new minister. He smiled grimly. He was wondering what Sylvia's attitude would be if his own career were broken through political necessity. Possibly she might be sympathetic. He found himself positively looking forward to the deputation from the Wool combine.

There were fourteen members of the deputation; five of them brought secretaries, who were accommodated at a side table. The deputation was seated and rose as John Corbeyne entered the lofty room. Carfax had taken care to drill him in the etiquette of the occasion. He seated them and listened to the formal introduction of the deputation by an obscure M. P. whom he was supposed to know but did not.

As the spokesman warmed to his subject, Corbeyne learned with surprise that he knew the speaker with comparative intimacy, that the speaker was in the confidence of Corbeyne and so of the government in general. What Carfax called bluster, he decided, and stopped listening. He looked around for Deagle. He had known of Deagle for years as a rather questionable manipulator in the wool market—one of Carfax's bugbears. Until the run on the bank—and there was a pretty good case in support of Gorlay's theory that Deagle had caused it—Corbeyne had always tended to make light of Carfax's warnings. Since then the danger of Deagle had been confirmed by the prime minister himself. A financial grafter, evidently; a swift and silent power.

Deagle was easy enough to identify. He was the leader of the deputation and sat at the foot of the table of which Corbeyne himself occupied the head. Corbeyne was faintly startled—Deagle was so unlike his fancied picture. He was a neat, prepossessing man in the middle forties. Iron gray hair, aquiline features, broad set, colorless eyes that gleamed benevolently. There was a suggestion of physical niceness about him that made one think of a noble lord in a good class melodrama. Most assuredly he did not look the sort of man who —

Deagle was on his feet. He was speaking in the grave, confident, yet kindly tone that harmonized with his physical appearance.

"Before we discuss the business that has brought us here, I would like to say, on behalf of myself and my colleagues of this deputation, that it is a matter of profound personal regret to us that the exigencies of our industry compel us to thrust a thorny question before your notice, sir, at the commencement of your term of office. I will only say that our own interests, representing the interests of many thousands of homes, have compelled us to lose not a moment in laying our case before a minister of the crown who is also eminent in the world of finance and is so able to appreciate from first hand knowledge the points we are about to discuss."

Corbeyne said that it was a great pleasure to him to have the privilege of meeting at the outset of his career so distinguished a federation of the leaders of commerce and begged the deputation to state its business.

"I shall call upon Mr. Catlett of Catlett & Son to lay our case before you," said Deagle.

Catlett! The name was in some vague way familiar, thought Corbeyne. He glanced at the man who now rose to his feet. No, he was certain he had not met him in the whirl of introductions during the last few days. He could forget a name as easily as anybody but he rarely forgot a face. Yet he had heard the name somewhere before. Mr. Catlett was speaking. Corbeyne was compelled to give his whole attention. It was a long speech, lasting fully half an hour. Corbeyne made an occasional note, but for controversial purposes only. The object of the deputation was plain to him. He realized there was a certain grim humor in Deagle's reference to the new minister. For all the deference to his standing in the world of finance they were counting upon his being unable to see through a device for a very patent piece of profiteering. Catlett was much more the type of too shrewd financier. Rather bloated about the features, decidedly beady about the eyes. Catlett had finished and another man was talking.

Other speeches were made, ringing the changes on the same theme that it would be to the interests of the nation to pass the measure they demanded. None of them mentioned that the effect of the measure would help allow the Wool combine to raise their prices to the public.

Now Here's a Film for the Morning After

"The Flirt" on Screen as Good as Story.

"THE FLIRT."
Produced by Universal.
Directed by Hobart Henley.
Presented at the Randolph Theater.

THE CAST.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

[A little bromo seltzer might help.] If after that you're feeling better, a trip to the Randolph is recommended.

There you will see the screen adaptation of Booth Tarkington's story, "The Flirt," which, several years ago ran in a weekly periodical and was so intensely interesting that people who were reading it counted the days between installments.

"The Flirt" as a picture is without doubt one of the best program offerings ever put out. It is intensely human. It brings you into a family circle where the people are like the people you have known all your lives. Father and mother, big brother, kindly capable elder sister, small plump, pestiferous brother who is everywhere, sees everything, knows everything, and does everything, AND The Flirt.

"The Flirt" is a younger sister. From babyhood she has ruled the household. Her word is law. When she can get anything peaceably she does it, but when to achieve her ambitions it is necessary to resort to trickery she does not hesitate to use her wiles to the best advantage. She can even faint convincingly when the occasion demands. The story is principally concerned with this sister, how she brings misfortune on the happy family circle, and how through the misfortune she herself becomes a different person.

There is pathos in the photoplay, but it bubbles with comedy too. Buddy Messenger as the little brother is one of the best child character actors I have ever seen. Booth Tarkington understands child life as no other living writer, I think, and there's no doubt in my mind but what he picked this youngster for the part.

Eileen Percy as the flirt is ideally cast. Helen Jerome Eddy is adorable as the elder sister. The other characters are all true to life and the director entered into the spirit of the thing and succeeded in carrying his picture over big.

The Universal company is realizing more and more the value of story and direction. Those behind it are to be sincerely congratulated on "The Flirt." [See you tomorrow when you're feeling better.]

CLOSEUPS

Claire Windsor is now playing in "Brothers Under the Skin" for Goldwyn.

Lewis Dayton, who is playing opposite Dorothy Phillips in "The White Frontier," is, it is said, a star in his own right on the British screen.

Most of "The Snow Bride," Alice Brady's coming picture, will be made in the province of Quebec.

Bishop Griswold Celebrates Triple Anniversary Jan. 8

The Rt. Rev. Sheldon M. Griswold, Episcopal suffragan bishop of Chicago, will celebrate a triple anniversary next Monday. He was born Jan. 8, 1861, in Delhi, N. Y. On Jan. 8, 1903, twenty years ago, he was consecrated missionary bishop of Salina Kas. On Jan. 8 1917, he was installed as suffragan bishop of Chicago. Bishop Griswold is a graduate of Union college, Schenectady, N. Y., and the General Theological seminary, New York City, from both of which institutions he received the degree of doctor of divinity. He lives at 1314 Hinman avenue, Evanston.

Folk Not Seriously Ill, St. Louis Physicians Say

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 31.—The condition of Joseph W. Folk, former governor of Missouri, who is confined at a local hospital, was reported much improved tonight. Physicians said he was being treated for a condition brought about by overwork in his law practice at Washington, where he has his home. They added that the condition had not seriously attacked Folk's nervous system.

Here's One Busy Day for Presbyterians

Presbyterians yesterday organized an Italian St. John's church at 1208 Taylor street, dedicated the Marquette Park church, 65th and California avenue, celebrated the tenth anniversary of the Rev. Thomas W. Stewart, pastor of Christ church, Orchard and Center streets and held an older boys' conference at the First Presbyterian church, La Grange.

Adventure Galore in Klan Play

Night Riders Get Stuck, but Virtue Triumphs.

"THE INVISIBLE EMPIRE."
A melodrama in three acts by Edward E. Rose and Charles Francis Park. Presented at the Aryan Grotto Temple, Dec. 30, 1922. The cast:

Jenny	Vera Temple
Sally Kendris	Catherine Colins
Florida Hardee	Benita Randolph
Judge Hardee	Harry Kenneth
Joe Brown	Anthony Blair
Will Casseau	George Paul
Prince Yamadora	Bennett Southard
David Gordon	Edward Poynter
Abe Quick	James Le Roy

BY SHEPPARD BUTLER.

A minor contretemps or two conferred a note of pleasurable excitement on the arrival of this play, which came Saturday evening to set us right about the Ku Klux Klan.

For one thing, the night riders stuck. At a moment breathless with horror for the hero and heroine, these sinister effigies in cardboard advanced across the back drop, proceeding inexorably, like the moving ducks in the shooting galleries. Awe gave way to expectancy when, with a hideous jerk, the cavalcade stood still. When it backed up, however, the eccentricity proved a little too much. The audience laughed.

Not quite so complacent were the customers about the omission of Act III., Scene 2. This episode, promised in the program, didn't materialize, and we, patiently awaiting it, found ourselves in the disconcerting attitude of the man who says, "Yes, yes, go on," when there isn't any more. After a time a perturbed gentleman explained that the scene had been censored, whereupon there were cries of "Who censored it?" and "Is this a free country or ain't it?" Then we went home, muttering. We were, you see, a pro-Klan audience.

What we should have seen if this had been a free country was a gathering of the klan at the foot of Stone mountain, but the gathering was quite unnecessary, for the villainous enemy of the invisible empire got what was coming to him anyway. Shot to death he was, with his own trick cane—yessir, it was a shootin' iron in disguise—by the girl he thought he owned, body and soul.

There had been murder in the tower room of his evil stronghold in the Georgia mountains, and a stirring first act climax when the perspicacious, though comic, sheriff knelt over the body and observed feelingly, "'Pears like some mean cuss up an' shot Will." The villain was having a house party and his guests didn't like him, but they stayed. And so, what with persiflage and laughter and comedy relief, and shrieks in the dark and a howling thunder storm, and dissertations on patriotism and the klan from a fine old southerner who looked like Mr. Lee's Capt. Skipworth, the evening passed.

Before it was over the heroine was in deadly peril, but when the hero arrived he heard her murmur, "I want you to know that you were in time." So that was all right.

This villain, it seems, though masquerading as a Japanese prince, was really a Eurasian bolshevik from Russia—a master mind, plotting vile treason. The moral of the tale is that the klan fights only such as these, waging honorable warfare, and by no means to be held responsible for unauthorized crimes committed by dastards who hide behind its name. Not the least of these crimes, I should say, is "The Invisible Empire." Did I mention that it is a pretty bad play?

Voliva a Grandfather, and on New Year's Eve

The evils of smoking and the absurdity of the theory that the earth is round were forgotten—at least temporarily—by Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion, at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, for at that moment he became a grandfather. A daughter was born to his only daughter, Mrs. Rolland O. Bennett, whose husband is manager of the Zion studio.

Dr. W. W. Campbell for California U. President

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 31.—Dr. W. W. Campbell, director of Lick observatory at Mount Hamilton, Cal., has unofficially notified the board of regents of the University of California that he will accept the presidency.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question Private Dale Hansen, Co. B 2d infantry, Fort Sheridan, was awarded $5.

The Question.

What is your opinion of the practice of making New Year resolutions?

Where Asked.

The Answers.

Thomas Meade, 164 North Leamington avenue, auto salesman—I don't think much of the practice, for the reason that most people who make New Year's resolutions break them the next day. If a man wants to make up his mind to do something he doesn't have to wait until the new year.

Mrs. Gertrude H. Aitken, 5508 Glenwood avenue, secretary—The stout girl loaded up on Christmas candy swears off candy, then goes ahead and eats a load of it. New Year's resolutions are made and broken just like that. I'd say, let your conscience be your guide throughout the year, not just at the beginning of the year.

P. E. Quinn, 6418 South Whipple street, cattle salesman—I think nine-tenths of the New Year's resolutions are broken in less than three days after they are started. You have heard the statement that "It's a poor minister who can't make a good promise." That's the average New Year resolution maker's attitude.

Mrs. Frances Cook, 324 North Mayfield avenue, housewife—There's no question that every one of us could make New Year's resolutions which would be appreciated by our friends and be of advantage to ourselves. The thing is to get at the proper resolutions we should make, and then to keep them.

William Kennedy, Erie hotel, clerk—That some New Year's resolutions ought to be made was shown very clearly the other day in the answers to your question, "What should Father Dearborn's resolutions be for the New Year?" There's nothing wrong with making New Year resolutions.

Pastors Bid Farewell to Author Colleague

The Rev. H. F. Waring, for seven years pastor of the Berwyn Baptist church, was given a reception last evening by ministers and citizens of Berwyn on his retirement from pastoral work to devote himself for two years to literary pursuits. Those who spoke were the Rev. S. R. S. Gray, Episcopal church; the Rev. G. D. Prentice, Presbyterian; the Rev. G. T. Nesmith, Methodist Episcopal, and the Rev. H. C. Hoover, Congregational. Dr. Stevens, a physician, represented Berwyn and G. S. Thompson, the Berwyn Baptist church.

La Juive Gives Opera Patrons Cause for Joy

Rosa Raisa Is Called Glorious as Rachel.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

For the first time since Chicago left off acquiring its operas from itinerant companies and acquired an organization of its own, Halévy's "La Juive" was sung at the Auditorium last night. It was a New Year's celebration worth talking about. Before the evening was half over a seat holder visited the business office and asked to have his name put down for a subscription next season. Such was the enthusiasm over the performance.

"La Juive" is a venerable work, dating back to the year 1835, full of burning love, fierce hatred, unjust accusations, and the fine old crusted traditions of an elder generation. It is the kind of an opera where a situation is explained not once but several times; the kind where, for example, the tenor prince, Leopold, in the course of the second act says in effect, "It is impossible for me to marry Rachel because I am already married to another," and then every one on the stage sings a concerted number on the impossibility of a tenor prince marrying Rachel when he is married to another.

In all the times that I have desired to add my testimony to the merits of Rosa Raisa, I never heard her when she was as glorious as she was last night. Her Rachel was a creature of magnificent singing, superb beauty, and a fine, unbroken line of vocal and dramatic action that caught the attention at once and held it to the end. For a performance like hers there is no second choice.

Neither was there in the rôle of the Princess Eudossia by Melvena Passmore. At least, the program said it was Melvena Passmore, though the artist who sang it is one whom I have been watching and applauding for the last five years under the impression that she is Edith Mason. Anyway, it was another great performance, the best I have heard from this singer. Her voice and Miss Raisa's have never happened to be in the same cast before, and when the two were raised together, they completely dominated the stage.

They would have carried any performance to success without further aid, but as it was, another artist arrived at high and justifiable success with them. This was Charles Marshall, who was the Eleazar. It is possible that he did not register all the mordant, bitter dignity of hatred that is in the part, but he projected brilliant high notes in gorgeous fashion, and the audience promptly acclaimed him for a third favorite.

Consideration of the others must be left for another occasion, except Ettore Panizza, who conducted. Here was a case where the colors of the opera were both brilliant and broad, and Mr. Panizza, putting aside his accustomed gentle delicacy of manner, laid them on with a lavish hand.

Yankee College Girls in Athens Open New Club

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ATHENS, Dec. 31.—American college women now in Greece will see the old year out by opening a new clubhouse in Rue Philhellenes with a dinner.

The club has twenty resident members, all engaged in orphanage and refugee work with the near east relief. The members represent twelve states and eighteen college clubs from the United States. They are housed in one of the finest residences in Athens, which has been loaned to them by Gen. Sutzos, a Greek philanthropist, who has shown great interest in the work of the American college women among Anatolian orphans here. The clubhouse looks on the finest classic shrines of ancient Greece and has a side entrance on the Royal Palais gardens.

The executive committee of the club includes Mary Harden of Washington, D. C., a graduate of Vassar; Glee Savings of Spencer, Ia., a graduate of Wellesley; Margaret Robinson of Grand Rapids, a graduate of Mount Holyoke; Carlotta Wells of Altadena, Cal., a graduate of Bryn Mawr college; and Nettie Austin of Kansas City, a graduate of the University of Missouri.

DAILY HOROSCOPE
Doris Blake Says:

TODAY IS LUCKY FOR THE ACTIVE MINDED.

An unusually active and interesting day is presaged from the planetary influences governing it. Plans for the future should be well directed while this sway holds forth. Great mental activity is supposed to be encouraged, which also awakens the mind to spiritual needs. Extravagance in entertaining will mark the day as it draws on toward a close. Places of amusement will profit greatly.

You do not act on impulse, nor are you demonstrative, yet you are highly magnetic and attract many friends. You possess the faculty of seeing and hearing without asking a single question. You are invincible to argument. You can never be talked out of anything. But if your feelings are hurt you are apt to lose heart and abandon your undertakings. Your confidence once lost is never regained. You are extremely fond of all things beautiful and harmonious in your home. You never show your real worth until you are left to assume some definite responsibility, and once it rests upon your shoulders you rise splendidly to the emergency. You have superior mentality, fixity of purpose, and continued activity which invariably makes for great success in any undertaking. Children born on this day have the prospect of a full and complete life ahead of them.

"Beat His Time."

Dear Miss Blake: I am a young fellow of 18, and I go with a girl who says she cared for me. Last Sunday I saw her at a show with another fellow. What shall I do? F. A."

I suppose you had better "beat his time," as the slang user would say. Get in your invitation to take her to the show before him.

"Do you think some little boy who has outgrown his velocipede would like to pass it on to my son? He asked Santa to bring one but was disappointed. C. A. C."

He Deserted Them.

"My husband has deserted me and our five children. We do not receive any help from him, and there is only one girl working, earning $15 a week. I am in poor health. We have no rugs on the floor and it is cold for the babies, 1 year and 3 years of age. Has any one an outgrown overcoat or mackinaw for two boys, 13 and 7?

Josephine had been disobedient and mother tried to reprove her by saying: "Would you like such a naughty girl to sleep in your room, and wear your clothes, and look in your nice new mirror?"

To which Josephine replied: "O, not any one else, but I don't mind having myself—I'm used to her."

Robert had lived his whole four years in a large city. Consequently, every time he was taken anywhere he was held by the hand or at least watched carefully.

Evidently this method bored him, for one day he announced decisively: "Some day I am going to start out with just me and go only where my own legs take me."

J. R.

John and I were walking in the park the other day.

Along came a cute cocker spaniel

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

SOLLY: I KNEW IT. I KNEW IT. Naturally bound to happen. Got into every other department except mine. My opinion of prohibition? I am for it. As a conversation medium it has the weather beaten to a frazzle. It almost puts reducing off the map as a subject of engrossing interest. But, seriously, as beauty editor, I'm for it, because its predecessor "never did no good" by any consumers' pulchritude.

Sausage and Eggs Supper Menu at Junior Assembly

One of the high lights of the holiday entertainments for the younger set was the Junior assembly held Saturday night at the Lincoln hall. Three hundred and fifty school girls and boys were there and each had one of the greatest thrills of his or her young life when a midnight supper was served for, instead of the usual dainty refreshments, the supper consisted of sausage and scrambled eggs, which has come to be the favorite late supper of "grown-ups." The hall was decorated with Christmas greens and New Year's bells and at 12 o'clock the young people welcomed the New Year by adding to the decorations quantities of confetti and colored streamers. Charles S. Dewey was the master of ceremonies and chaperoning were the twenty-eight patronesses. Among the young people present were the Misses Marjorie and Mildred Allen, Miss Edwina Litsinger, Miss Marion Dixon, Byron Harvey Jr., Robert Greenlee, Miss Katherine Thorne, Ashley and Edwin Brand Jr., Otto and William Madlener, Miss Sarane Otis, Miss Emily Otis, Otis Sage, Miss Sunette Dewey, Miss Glee Viles, Potter Palmer Jr., D'Orsay Palmer, Miss La Verne Noyes, Miss Joan Williams, Miss Winifred Smith, Miss Betty Scriven, Miss Anna Louise Curtis, Miss Florence Crane, Cornelius Crane, Miss Leslie Foster, Miss Florence Noyes, and Miss Ruth Elting.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—There will be no reception at the White House tomorrow, a fact that is regretted by no one more than by Mrs. Harding, whose health, however, is still unequal to the effort. New Year receptions will be held according to custom in nearly every other official household and in many private homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean will entertain at dinner tomorrow evening for Miss Beatrice Pitney, debutante daughter of Mr. Justice and Mrs. Mahlon Pitney.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Feature Cakes.

Here is wishing! My kitchen wishes a happy New Year to your kitchen! My table wishes a happy New Year to your table!

Do you think holiday cooking is now over and that you may forget the making of feature cakes and candies?

You will do well to think that holiday cooking is just begun. Think of the holidays in February, for one of which at least you can make the daintiest feature cakes of the whole year, light and dainty and gay. Lenten cookery may also have all sorts of pretty features, including the simnel cake for mothering Sunday, concerning the origin of which there are many tales told.

And for a date right at hand Twelfth day, you may make a cake. Use a fruit cake recipe, put in a large bean, and be sure to bake your cake at 300 degrees. Fruit cakes must be baked at low temperature, and other cakes mostly should be. And top it as gayly as you please with fruits and nuts, and then glaze it.

The safest glaze and one which will not sugar like that on some fruit cakes for sale and on exposition I have recently seen is plain melted sugar.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Curious Age.

My son and I were riding in a street car. After questioning me about every advertisement he saw he settled back in his seat and began to look at people around him. A man across the aisle attracted his attention:

"O, look, mamma," he said, and just then the car stopped, but Harold went on: "Look at that man's stockings! Why does he wear green ones?"

Of course, everybody around us began to laugh, and it was hard to tell whether I was more embarrassed than the man who wore the green stockings.

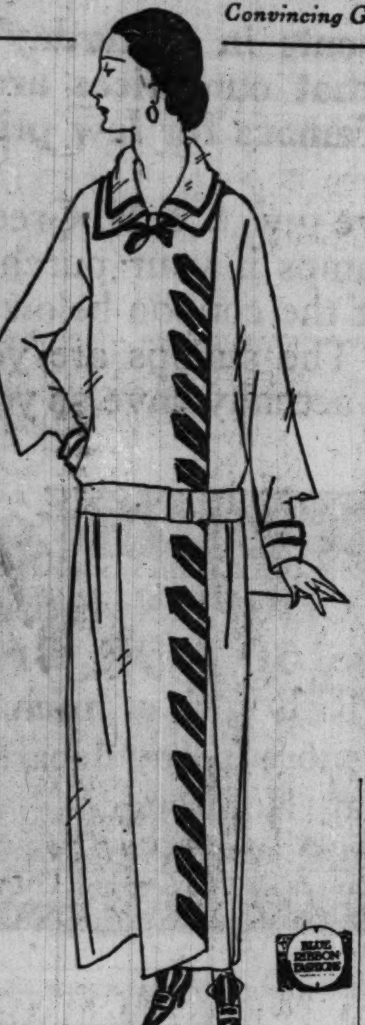
Convincing Gestures of Novelty Continue



by Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The great problem of modern dress seems to be, "How shall I make my own simple little frock different from the other woman's simple little frock?" For nowadays the qualification is a firm one. You must be simple, or they'll think you come from a simple place.

We have already drawn so lavishly from the reservoirs of simplicity that one might think we had drawn the old well dry. Not so. Apparently there is always some new little touch of variety which the haggard designer can summon to his aid.

CLUB DISAGREES ON JAIL AS CURE FOR SPEEDERS

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Chicago Motor club, which "has spent many thousands of dollars" to reduce auto accidents, urges all its members to join in the plan to "stop reckless driving. Because of the time and thought given to and the cash spent upon the prevention of accidents, the club is entitled to speak and advise on the subject.

The advocacy by judges, aldermen, and other officials of a law in Illinois, as in Michigan and California, permitting the jailing of careless speeders and the card indexing and finger printing of violators of the motor laws, brings the matter to a point where aggressive action seems probable.

Compares Other Fatal Causes.

"A great deal of harmful propaganda is being broadcast now regarding automobile accidents," said H. M. Brown, general manager of the club, yesterday. "The fact of the matter is that the 10,600,000 automobiles in the United States claim fewer victims than whooping cough. Deaths from accidental falls outnumber those due to automobile accidents.

"The number of deaths resulting from auto accidents per 10,000 automobiles in use has decreased from year to year, and according to the best available statistics the rate in 1921 is less than three-fifths as high as that of 1915.

"There were 10,097 deaths from influenza in 1920, 10,968 from whooping cough, 7,712 from measles, 10,328 from accidental falls, and from motor vehicles 10,168.

"In my opinion more safety first propaganda among school children, more intensive markings of the highways and dangerous crossings, and the education of the motorists will tend more to eliminate accidents than attempts of the authorities to jail violators of the vehicle law.

No Brief for Reckless Driver.

"The Chicago Motor club holds no brief for the reckless driver who imperils lives and the severest penalty should be his lot.

"We do protest against this hysteria directed against motorists in general, which demands that violators be subject to jail sentences like common felons. The figures which I have quoted show that the automobile is not by any means the menace some ill informed persons claim it to be."

President Hayes said that "the accident prevention department of the club is based on the fundamental principle on which the club itself is organized, viz., a real effort 365 days in the year to stop the appalling number of casualties and fatalities incidental to the use and operation of automotive vehicles."

What this department has done and purposes to do, as well as the policy of the club, have been put in a short statement and will be sent to every one of the nineteen members of the council committee on police, which will meet next Saturday to devise plans to reduce auto accidents in Chicago.

This statement says: "During the year just passed many thousands of dollars have been expended in the erection of a magnificent electric lighted steel bulletin board at every gateway to Chicago, driving into the minds of the visitor, and the resident motorist as well, the message of 'Safety first.' Another large sum of money has been expended in the inspection of dangerous street intersections, railroad crossings, etc., and the erection there of suitable warning signs.

Cut Out 52 in Month.

"As illustrative of the results obtained, may it be said that this department caused fifty-two dangerous street intersections to be eliminated within one single month?"

The president of the club desires it understood that "no one has a right to engage in careless or thoughtless action which would jeopardize the life of another." To carry that thought home, the club has had an accident prevention bureau at every fair and exposition in Cook county in the last year.

The statement will further tell the aldermen:

"Working in conjunction with the Chicago safety council, a motion picture film was released, entitled 'The Penalty,' which was shown in moving picture theaters. Also a school for motor drivers was established, where chauffeurs and truck drivers received practical instruction.

Develop Sentiment, He Says.

"We have attempted to develop public sentiment. In one month during the last year we had a float in twenty-two parades. We have had a representative at every civic meeting where the subject of accidents was on the program, and we have coöperated with every organization interested in the subject.

"We have broadcast monthly accident prevention talks over the radio and we have arranged for prize essays to be written by school children."

And still other accomplishments are set forth.

SHERIFF PLANS WAY TO SUBDUE JOHN LOONEY

Farmington, N. M., Dec. 31.—To all outward appearances Sheriff J. C. Wynn and his deputies today engaged in "watchful waiting" in the case of John Looney of Rock Island, Ill., wanted in Illinois on a charge of murder, who is entrenched on his ranch near here and who is believed to be ready to resist any efforts by a sheriff's posse to capture him.

With Looney are a number of cowboys, who, it is reported, have said that "if Looney is taken it will not be without bloodshed."

Sheriff Wynn maintains silence regarding his plans. He is said to be waiting for an opportunity to outwit Looney or to besiege his headquarters and force surrender for lack of food.

FAIRBANK ISSUES REPLY TO TOMAN IN M. V. L. FIGHT

Kellogg Fairbank, former secretary of the Municipal Voters' league, issued a statement yesterday replying to Ald. John Toman, in which Mr. Fairbank said:

"At the last meeting of the city council, Ald. John Toman, smarting under the criticism which the Municipal Voters' league directed at his participation in the recent $20,000 junket trip to Europe and his votes on the Faherty 'expert' payments, sought to get back at the league by attacking its former president, Mr. Lessing Rosenthal.

"Whether or not Ald. Toman was emboldened to make this libelous attack by the fact that Mr. Rosenthal is absent in Europe, I cannot say. I can, however, assure Ald. Toman that Mr. Rosenthal will return before long, and that in the meanwhile his traveling expenses in Europe are being paid by himself, and not by the city of Chicago.

Calls "Steal" Charge False.

"Ald. Toman charged that former Mayor Harrison halted a council meeting to direct the sergeant at arms to oust Lessing Rosenthal, who was then president of the league, while he was calling out aldermen to vote for an ordinance under which the Illinois Central was trying to 'steal' some land on the lake front. This charge is so false that in the absence of Mr. Rosenthal I cannot let it go unanswered. I was secretary of the league at the time and have a first hand knowledge of the facts.

"The plan for the lake front settlement with the Illinois Central came before the council in 1912. In brief, it provided that the Illinois Central should give up its riparian rights, or shore rights, and receive in return the right to fill in a strip of land on the east side of its right of way from 12th to 51st street, about 162 acres in all. It provided for the building of a parkway outside of the railroad and a site for the Field museum at 12th street.

"A group of citizens, of which Mr. Rosenthal was the leading spirit, opposed this plan on the ground that it gave too much land to the Illinois Central and that it did not properly protect the interests of the city.

"When the fight shifted to the Circuit court he appeared there on behalf of the objectors and forced from the Illinois Central a compromise which was of the greatest value to the city. These services, running over several months and entailing many days of laborious effort, were rendered by Mr. Rosenthal on behalf of the public without any compensation whatever.

What Public Gained.

"The advantages resulting to the city from Mr. Rosenthal's fight were as follows:

"1. The land given the Illinois Central in the exchange was cut from 162 acres to 110 acres.

"2. Provisions were inserted for the electrification of the road.

"3. Provision was inserted for the depression of the tracks between 31st and 45th streets.

"4. The closing of Indiana avenue between 12th and 13th streets was prevented and provision made for increasing its width to 100 feet as far south as 16th street.

"5. Provisions for many other advantageous benefits to the public, such as keeping streets open across the tracks, building viaducts, bathing beaches, and harbor facilities, were inserted.

"From the foregoing it appears that the position of Mr. Rosenthal was at all times on the side of the public and not of the Illinois Central.

How Toman Voted.

"What of the attitude of Ald. Toman? During the course of the fight he went on record in five roll calls printed in the records of the city council. In every instance, without exception, his vote was cast on the side of the Illinois Central Railroad company. It is inconceivable that Ald. Toman should not remember how he voted on such an important and bitterly contested matter and that Mr. Rosenthal was the leading spirit in the opposition to the railroad plan."

Carrion Gulls Explode Kenosha Death Mystery

The death of John Paradisi, former soldier, whose body was found frozen on the lake shore north of Kenosha, Wis., now is believed by the police of that city to have been a case of suicide. A hole in one eye, as well as a wound in the chest, led to a murder theory at first, but it developed that gulls had caused the hole in the eye. An Italian pistol wsa found yesterday near the death scene.

FOUR PROMINENT IOWA MEN SIGN BONDS FOR ROBB

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 31.—Four prominent Des Moines men, including E. T. Meredith, former secretary of agriculture under President Wilson; Clyde L. Herring, Democratic candidate for United States senator at the November election; Addison Parker, and J. B. Weaver, both former members of the Iowa legislature, appeared before a municipal clerk today and insisted on having their names signed as guarantors of Sheriff Winfred E. Robb's bonds, pending the hearing of the charges of disposing of liquor brought against him by his jailor, William McMurray.

Sheriff Robb technically turned over the keys of the sheriff's office to Sheriff Elect Park Findley at midnight last night, although he does not legally quit his office until 11 a. m. Tuesday morning.

CALLS ON PUBLIC TO GIVE SERVICE AS DRY SLEUTHS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Make a solemn New Year's resolution to report all violations of the prohibition law and you will help to bring about a better enforcement of the Volstead act in 1923, says Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league.

"Let every law abiding citizen report to the prohibition department and to the police the names and locations of the liquor law violators," Mr. Wheeler urges. "The names of the informants will be given no publicity without their consent."

Other resolutions he proposes are:

"More agitation for the preservation of the constitution—less agitation for its nullification.

"The press of the country should become a potent factor in securing law enforcement by throwing its moral influence, through its editorial and news columns, squarely behind efforts to enforce the law, irrespective of its view as to the wisdom or folly of prohibition as a governmental policy. If the policy is wrong, the people will alter it.

"More support and appreciation should be given the enforcement officers and less encouragement to the criminal.

"Actors or moving scenarios which attempt to ridicule or hold up to contempt the constitution of the United States should be condemned.

"The United States district attorneys and judges should use the abatement section of the prohibition law and close every hotel or place where liquor is sold in violation of the law.

"Society and business leaders should stop and consider that their example in violating the prohibition law is aiding anarchy, robbery, mob violence, and murder.

WET'S PICTURE OF U. S. IS ALL AN INKY BACKGROUND

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—A black and horrendous picture of Volsteadism, vintage of 1922, is painted by Capt. W. H. Stayton in the Happy New Year's message of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. He fails to find a ray of hope in the general gloom.

Capt. Stayton said that he was moved to his recital of the effects of prohibition legislation in its actual operation by the "Christmas message" of Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon league, in which the latter recounted the "blessings" which Volsteadism had brought to the people in 1922.

"If I were at all inclined to agree as to the existence of these alleged 'blessings,' the cold facts would promptly quench my enthusiasm," said Capt. Stayton. "But I can give you some of the facts.

"The annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue shows that government revenues from distilled spirits and fermented liquors were more than $483,000,000 in the fiscal year 1919, before prohibition went into effect. For the fiscal year 1922, receipts from this source had shrunk to less than $46,000,000, representing a revenue loss of more than $430,000,000.

"The losses to the states have been much greater.

"There has been a steady increase in the number of inmates of federal and state prisons since prohibition enforcement.

"A similar increase in the number of alcoholism cases and in the inmates of blind and insane asylums.

CROWD IN CAFE MOBS POLICEMEN PLEASURE BENT

Traffic Policeman John Wheedon, 2532 North Hamlin avenue, and Harry Jacobson, 3705 North Troy street, were severely beaten early yesterday by patrons of the New Belvidere café, 888 North Clark street, evidently disgruntled by raids by federal officials late Saturday night, in which three persons boasting "hip licker" were arrested.

Joseph Deywart, proprietor, through an attorney, obtained an injunction Saturday morning restraining the police from entering his place and interfering with the New Year's celebration.

Unaware of Injunction.

Of the injunction the two policemen apparently knew nothing. In citizens' clothes, they entered the café, for a modest celebration of their own.

All went well until their coats flew back and revealed their stars. Other patrons then exchanged glances and in a moment a surprise attack began on the unsuspecting policemen.

Wielding bottles, the celebrators fell on the two officers, took away their revolvers, and beat them.

Patrons Desert Café.

When the West Chicago avenue police patrol arrived the café was deserted, except for Wheedon and Jacobson and the bartenders. Deywart denied knowing who any of the assailants were, and, waving his injunction copy, forced the police out.

Wheedon and Jacobson were taken to the station and their wounds dressed, the former having a badly cut eye and a scalp wound and the latter four scalp wounds and a cut hand.

FIRE ON LINER.

PLYMOUTH, Dec. 31.—[By the Associated Press.]—Fire occurred aboard the Cunard liner Antonia, bound from New York, two days after the Christmas celebrations. The officers and crew subdued the fire without alarming the passengers while the liner was rolling heavily in terrible seas.

URGES OLD TIME TOWN MEETINGS AS GRAFT CHECK

Americans need to "return to the town meeting, calling it 'community civic center,' or the like," Mrs. Willa B. Laird suggested yesterday in explaining the purpose of the conference on the public school and education for citizenship to be held here Jan. 6 by the Illinois League of Women Voters and the Chicago League of Women Voters' Forum.

"We are much concerned at American complacency in the face of municipal graft, school scandal, and extravagant governmental programs," Mrs. Laird added.

Peter A. Mortenson, superintendent of schools, will be one of the speakers.

Mrs. Judith Weil Loewenthal of Chicago will present the report of the committee on survey, which has been making a survey of the teaching of citizenship in Chicago schools.

G. W. SMITH, 97, ONCE FAMOUS FINANCIER, DIES

Rockport, Me., Dec. 31.—George Warren Smith, prominent in New York financial circles half a century ago, and owner of valuable real estate in Omaha, Neb., died at his home in Warrenton Park today at the age of 97. He was born in Freedom, Me.

With his three brothers, he laid the foundation of a family fortune estimated at $50,000,000, by making and selling steel engravings.

In a spectacular career the brothers became railroad builders and owners in Colorado and various other parts of the country, and promoters of stock yard development in South Omaha. Benjamin F. Smith, at the age of 93, is the sole survivor of the four brothers.

CITY LIBRARY ANNIVERSARY OPENS TODAY

Descendants of Founders to Take Part.

Chicago, today and all this week, will pay tribute to the achievement of men who established its public library, fifty years ago. This is to be "anniversary week." Among those scheduled to participate in elaborate programs of celebration are sons and grandsons of members of the first library board.

Half a century ago a little group of civic leaders placed 12,000 books in a water tank on the old city hall. This was Chicago's first library. The present library building is a $1,700,000 structure, one one of the world's most famed boulevards.

Joseph Medill, founder of THE TRIBUNE, was mayor fifty years ago. Senator Medill McCormick, a grandson, will be among the speakers at the opening anniversary ceremony at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the G. A. R. Memorial hall of the Library building.

Some Other Descendants.

Among other descendants of the founders who will speak are Maclay Hoyne, grandson of Thomas Hoyne, chairman of the first library board; James Rosenthal, son of Julius Rosenthal, a member of the original board, and Prof. Paul Shorey, son of Daniel Shorey, another of the pioneer trustees.

In addition to today's program there will be other ceremonies in the library building Thursday afternoon and Saturday morning.

All the romance, the historic struggles of the civic institution once cradled in a water tank, will be reviewed in songs, addresses and poems. Carl Sandburg has written a poem especially in commemoration of this event. Particular tribute will be paid to Thomas Hughes, author of "Tom Brown's School Days," whose munificence made the "tank library" possible.

Program for Today.

Poem—Carl Sandburg.

Address—Charles E. Schick, president library board.

Music.

Medill McCormick and Joseph Medill Patterson, grandsons of Joseph Medill, mayor of Chicago when library was founded.

Benediction—The Rev. John Timothy Stone.

4:30 to 6 p. m.—Reception in library rooms.

SHOP GIRLS' PAY STUDIED HERE BY CLUB WOMEN

One cent a pound for cracking nuts. That was the remuneration for children and old women in one of the shops visited by Miss Frieda Blumenberg, 8325 Armitage avenue, president of the Girls' City club, and Miss Etta Senelick, 2510 Potomac avenue, a former president, while showing Miss Jeanette Rankin of Montana the conditions under which children work in Chicago. Miss Rankin is here to attend the Mississippi valley conference for better industrial legislation.

"No girl who has worked as a child makes an efficient worker," said Miss Blumenberg, "and the girls that go to work at 14, under the present law, never get any further than the job on which they start."

DISTINCT WORLD ECONOMIC GAIN IN 1922: HOOVER

Only a Few States in Central Europe Lag.

BY HERBERT HOOVER.
Secretary of Commerce.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The following summary of the world's economic situation and prospects is based upon the special investigation of the department's representatives in each foreign country:

In the large view the world has made distinct economic progress during the last year and the conditions are very favorable to continued progress during 1923. There are in exception three or four states in Europe which give continued anxiety, but these exceptions should not obscure the profound forces of progress elsewhere over the whole world. In the main, even in these areas of uncertainty, the difficulties are to a large degree fiscal and political rather than commercial and industrial.

No Longer Unemployment in U. S.

In our country unemployment has ceased to be a problem and we are indeed upon an economic level of comparatively great comfort in every direction, except for the lag of recovery in some branches of agriculture. Even in this field there has been a distinct improvement in prices in the past twelve months and its troubles are mostly due to overproduction in some lines.

Our manufacturing industries are engaged well up to the available labor; industrial production has enormously increased over last year; real wages and savings are at a high level. Our transportation and housing show great gains in construction, though we are yet behind in these equipments. Both our exports and our imports are again increasing after the great depression and are today far above pre-war levels.

Conditions in Europe.

In Europe, England and the nations which were neutral in the war are making steady progress in production and diminishing unemployment. Their trade and commerce are improving; their governmental finances are growing stronger; their currencies that are not already on a gold basis are steadily approaching par; and their exchanges are more stable.

The combatant states on the continent are slower in recovery. Even these nations, including Russia, have shown progress all along the line in commercial, industrial, and agricultural fields, although the harvests suffered in some spots. Some of these nations, such as Italy, Belgium, the Baltic states, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, and Hungary, show increasing political and social stability and improvement in their governmental finances.

In Germany and some minor states in southeastern Europe governmental finance and political difficulties threaten to overwhelm the commercial and industrial recuperation already made.

Unnecessarily Large Armies.

The continued maintenance of armies on a greater than pre-war basis in the old allied states maintains political uncertainty, lowers productivity, and retards the balancing of budgets, with consequent cessation of direct or indirect inflation. Disarmament and the constructive settlement of German reparations and the economic relations of states in the southeast are the outstanding problems of Europe, and their adjustment to some degree will affect the progress of the rest of the world.

Fall Silent on Rumor He Is to Quit Harding's Cabinet

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Interior Fall, returning to Washington today, would neither affirm nor deny the reports that he would resign his portfolio on or before March 4 next. It was learned tonight that the President is considering the appointment of Representative Mondell [Rep., Wyo.], as successor to Mr. Fall.

PALESTINE MAN URGES JEWS TO KEEP IDENTITY

The growing certainty that the Jews throughout the world will lose their racial identity and become assimilated by the peoples of the nations in which they live unless they have a national homeland as an inspiration to hold on to their religion and customs was the keynote of a talk yesterday by Dr. Arthur Ruppin of Palestine.

Dr. Ruppin spoke at the La Salle hotel before 200 delegates gathered from more than a hundred cities for the middle west Zionist convention.

Losing Racial Identity.

"In my two months in America," he said, "I found conditions among the Jews similar to those in other countries. By systems of public education, by intermarriage, the Jew is fast losing his racial identity. Many are casting aside the religion of their fathers to become Christians.

"Among you of the present generation this tendency is not so evident, but your children and your grandchildren, through this process of assimilation, will cease to be Jews unless there is created in Palestine a nation where Jewish institutions shall prevail. This is the only means to keep alive the thought, which the modern Jew is prone to forget, that to be a Jew is something to be proud of."

May Dam River Jordan.

Chief among the subjects at the meeting which was called to perfect plans for further organization was the Ruthenberg project, which plans to dam the Jordan and other rivers and to establish hydro-electric plants for the development of Palestine.

Judge Hugo Pam, who was among the speakers, called the project "the greatest weapon which the Jew has ever had for his reëstablishment as a nation."

"We Jews must work out our own salvation," Judge Pam declared. "From the political platform we have been promised aid, only to be disappointed when the test came. We want no such lip service. We must save ourselves."

Thirty-five thousand Jewish immigrants have been brought into Palestine in the last three years and 200,000 dunams of land purchased, Dr. Ruppin stated. Five hundred thousand more Jews must come in, to create a Jewish majority. Plans are being made to establish a Jewish university.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

INVENTORY Your Man Power!!

Leaders in many lines of business are more concerned this January First with an inventory of their man power than of their tangible assets. They realize that marketing is the big problem ahead.

Inventoried as man power, whether inside or outside of the organization, are salesmen, department heads, executives, distributors, tax experts, legal, merchandising and advertising counsellors. Business men know that the most economical purchase they can make in 1923 is experienced counsel.

They seem to appreciate as never before that it is fully as important to know what not to do as what to do—that any experiment due to inexperience wastes not only effort and money but invaluable time.

For years this organization has served as advertising and merchandising counsellors to a remarkable group of great concerns. In our booklet, "48 Ideas on Merchandising and Advertising," we indicate our viewpoint of the relation of advertising to business. We will be glad to send a copy on request or to explain personally our methods.

The year 1922 was an exceedingly profitable one for the Continental and Commercial National bank and the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings bank, according to the annual report made public last night by George M. Reynolds, chairman of the board. That the taking over of the two Fort Dearborn banks just a year ago today has helped to increase the earnings is pointed out in the statement.

Net earnings of the two banks for the year were $5,316,808, compared with $4,724,339 for 1921, an increase of $592,469, after setting aside $2,400,000 for federal and local taxes. The earnings amount to 21.26 per cent on the capital stock of the Continental and Commercial National bank as against 18.9 per cent the previous year, and are equal to 9.24 per cent on the combined capital, surplus and undivided profits, compared with 8.41 per cent in 1921.

$3,502,280 in Dividends.

Dividends paid during the year amount to $3,502,280, bringing the book value of the national bank stock to $237.78, an increase of $7.71. Carried forward to the undivided profits of the banks is $1,814,428.

"For the purpose of comparison," states Mr. Reynolds, "the earnings of 1922 are reached after having paid out of this year's earnings to the Fort Dearborn banks the bonus in full for the business acquired from them, and after having met all the extra expense in connection with the transfer of this business. We are glad to say that the taking over of the Fort Dearborn business has resulted most successfully and has fulfilled our expectations in every particular. This business will serve as a basis for additional earnings in succeeding years."

300 Per Cent Stock Dividend.

New year gifts of two stock dividends were announced last night in southern cities. Directors of the Atlantic National bank, of Jacksonville, Fla., the largest bank in that state, voted a 300 per cent stock dividend, according to Edward W. Lane, president. The bank has been capitalized at $350,000 and with the new dividend the capitalization will be $1,400,000.

Stockholders of the International Proprieties, Inc., manufacturers of a patent medicine, authorized a $1,000,000 stock dividend at Atlanta, Ga. The new stock will be 50 per cent and it will be issued on a pro-rata basis in 100,000 shares.

A reduction of 15 cents per barrel in the price of cement at Chicago was announced by the Universal Portland Cement company. The reduction at the Pittsburgh and Duluth plants is 10 cents.

Lumbermen to Meet in New Orleans in March

New Orleans, Dec. 31.—Announcement is made by the Southern Pine association that the dates have been definitely fixed for the annual meetings of that organization and of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association in New Orleans for the week of March 18. The eighth annual convention of subscribers of the Southern Pine association will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 20 and 21, and the meeting of the National Lumber association will be held on Thursday and Friday, March 22 and 23.

The Southern Pine association will act as host to the National on the occasion of the 1923 annual meeting and plans are being made for an attractive entertainment program as well as for interesting business sessions during the two annual meetings. Lumber magnates from all parts of the country, representing every commercial wood in the United States will attend the national convention and important leaders in industrial, scientific and financial circles will be among the speakers to address the lumbermen's gatherings.

Big Muddy to Mississippi Rivers Canal Is Planned

Duquoin, Ill., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Attorney George W. Dowell of this city, former member of the Illinois state court of claims, has made application to Secretary of State L. L. Emmerson for articles of incorporation of the Ohio and Mississippi river canal improvement commission. This marks the first active step in the inauguration of a campaign to dredge the Big Muddy river from its source in Franklin county to a point in Jackson county where a canal can be constructed to make a straight waterway to connect directly with the Mississippi river.

J. M. Sessions for Balaban & Katz

Balaban & Katz

want you to be happy during 1923

Hello there, you good people of Chicago! The Spirit of Entertainment wishes you health, happiness and prosperity for the New Year. These are the three favoring factors the gods have to provide, and we want you to have all of them.

The past year has been a glorious one for us. We hate to snuff it out, for it is full of pleasant memories of your frequent visits to our theatres. Do you realize that we entertained more than eighteen million of you during 1922? That's six times as many people as there are in Chicago, and it proves that many of you came many times.

Every one of the hundreds who compose our organization put in every waking hour during 1922 building entertainment for you, delighting your eyes, charming your minds, chasing the gloom away and creating laughter in your hearts. Can you imagine a more pleasing occupation under the sun? We love it beyond words.

Past and present success, and your approval, always inspire the wish to do more, and to do better, so that your desire to come here will never perish or grow stale, but will, on the contrary, become steadily stronger as time flies on.

The Spirit of Entertainment, which exists in the Balaban & Katz organization, and hovers around its theatres, will make herculean efforts to make you happier here this year than you ever have been in the past. That's a promise—a determination and a contract.

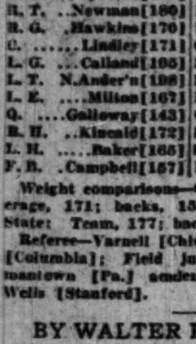
BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Powerful football machines representing Penn State and University of Southern California clash tomorrow in the rose bowl in a struggle which the Trojans must win to convince fans in the east the caliber of football played in this section is the equal of that in he middle west and farther eastern section.



GUS HENDERSON.

The far west has met with two reverses in the intersectional games already played, and if Bezdek's lions are victorious tomorrow, it is a certainty the champion of the Pacific coast conference will be called upon to meet the eastern invader next year to regain some of the laurels lost this season.

Are Representative Elevens.

Although Penn State and Southern California have been defeated this year, they are representative elevens of their respective sections. The Trojans were runnersup for the Pacific coast title, while Penn State was beaten only by small scores in the east. Both have been pointed for tomorrow's game, with the result a more interesting contest is expected than the ones which already have been decided.

It has been raining intermittently here for the last few days, and the indications are threatening tomorrow. If the game is played on a wet field, Penn State, with its crashing line attack, is expected to have the advantage. Coach Henderson of Southern California has given his team a number of trick plays which demand a fast, dry field for successful execution. In addition, the Trojans have a strong running attack which will be weakened if the going is heavy.

Teams Finish Work.

The teams finished preparation yesterday. No work of any sort was attempted today. Penn State took a ride into the mountains while the Trojans stayed around their hotel. The men were given a quiz on the rules tonight and also a blackboard session. Both coaches are satisfied with the conditions of their teams and are prepared to substitute frequently.

Captain Elect Stolley of the 1923 Trojan team will not start at quarter back. He may get into the fray at some critical time. Bedenk, the Penn State lineman hurt in line blocking practice early in the week, will not start for State, but many be injec: I at any time, according to Coach Bezdek.

Since they arrived Coach Bezdek has put his men through the hardest kind of work under adverse conditions. The players have withstood the grind well and coach and warriors believe the team will be able to go through the four quarters at a fairly good speed. In fact, the result may depend upon the staying qualities of the easterners.

Tendency to Weaken at End.

In its game with Gonzaga, West Virginia weakened badly in the fourth period and permitted the Washington eleven to score thirteen points.

The same was true last Saturday, when Pittsburgh defeated Stanford. The Panthers had the game won easily at the end of the third quarter, but in the fourth session were unable to stave off the rush of the Cardinals, who scored a touchdown.

If the weather is favorable, a capacity crowd of 50,000 is expected. The Tournament of Roses parade will be held in the morning, and the gridiron struggle will be called at 2:15 o'clock.

Andy Smith, coach of California, Pacific coast champion, is here with a number of his players. Shy Huntington or Oregon, Enoch Bagshaw of the University of Washington, Bob Mathews of Idaho, Joe Pipal of Occidental, and Hughes of Colorado Aggies are among the well known mentors of the far west and northwest who will see the game.

DARTMOUTH AND WASH. STATE IN BIDS TO SPEARS

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Dr. Spears, former Dartmouth player, who developed an undefeated football team at West Virginia last fall, is considering offers to coach at Washington State university, Dartmouth, and another big eastern university. Before he went to West Virginia Dr. Spears coached at Dartmouth and turned out some strong teams, but went to West Virginia two years ago at the request of Harry Stansbury, athletic director of the Mountaineer institution.

The West Virginia mentor is on the coast, and will be an interested spectator at tomorrow's game between Penn State and Southern California.

Dr. Spears asserted he does not intend to coach many years longer and is anxious to settle down to practice medicine in some town where he could also devote a little time to coaching. He knows a lot of football and is about the only first class coach who is not tied up by contract.

STRONG FOES FOR ST. MEL.

St. Mel heavyweights, one of the strongest contenders for the Catholic basketball title, will play Marshall at St. Mel tomorrow. Lightweight quintets of both schools also are scheduled to battle. On Friday St. Mel will entertain the St. Mary's preps of Dubuque.

ON LOCAL BASKET FLOORS.

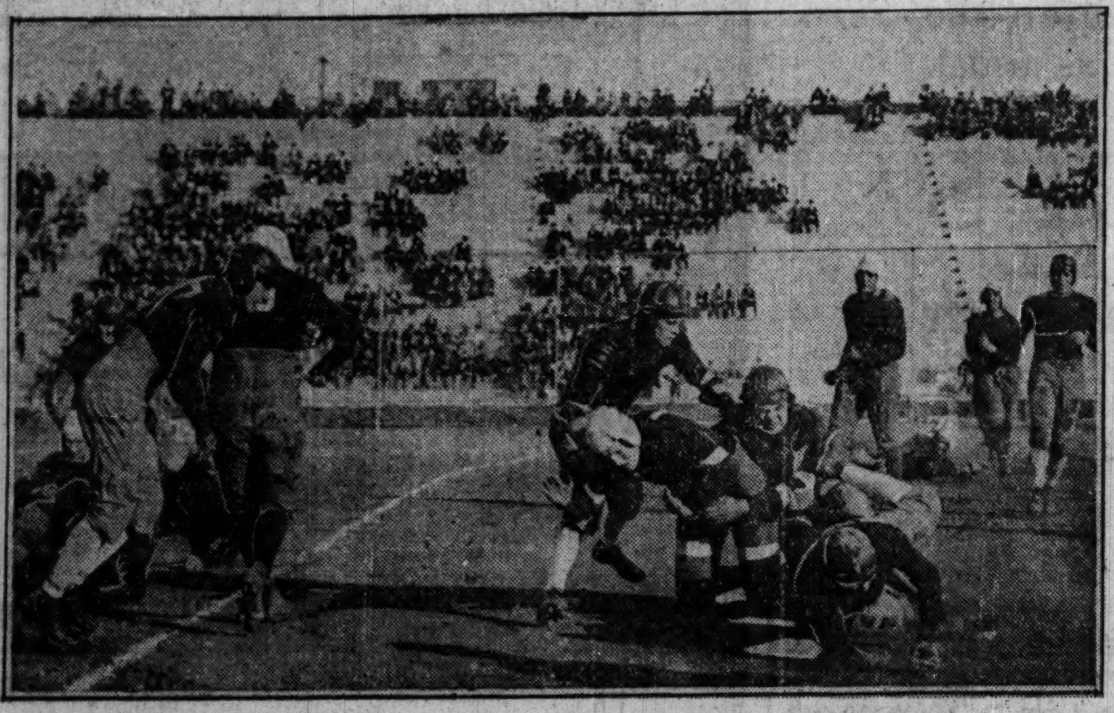
HELPING TO DOWN GONZAGA



Hard tackling played an important part in the intersectional gridiron struggle at San Diego, Cal., on Christmas day, in which West Virginia defeated Gonzaga university at Spokane, Wash., 21 to 13. Above two husky mountaineers are seen downing a Gonzagan who caught a forward pass. The game was spectacular, and the spectators, totally unfamiliar with both teams, were aided to identify the men by the device of having Gonzaga wear white headguards and Virginia white stockings. IN the WAKE of the NEWS

We give you greeting, Bright New Year,
Your dawn is rosy—bright and clear;
'Tis gone, the year of Twenty-two—
Seems brief the time since it was new.
But on its credit sheet we see
A goodly start for Twenty-three.

Throughout the world, it seems to me,
Today there's less of enmity;
Prosperity is gaining ground
And calm contentment doth abound.
So, Twenty-three, we beg of you—
Be just as kind as Twenty-two.
Cacoethes Scribendi.

Earlier New Year's Days.

Half a century ago, the custom on New Year's day among the men folks was to go calling from place to place, generally in parties of two or more, until late in the evening.

THE TRIBUNE published the Sunday before New Year's day a long list of hostesses keeping open house. Large quantities of fancy eatables were prepared and at many places wine and stronger drinks were arranged on a table, generally in the "back parlor." Often the drinking was overdone and some of the revellers wore tags on their coats, "When I am drunk, take me home."

Small baskets were hung on knobs of front door bells to receive cards of callers. C. E. J.

Death of the Old Year.

'Tis midnight. The others are watching
The birth of a glad New Year;
But I, Old Year, am keeping
Lone watch beside thy bier.
At the stroke of twelve thou expired,
Alone I witnessed thy death;
'Twas only one fluttering moment
And the New Year drew its first breath.

How can they rejoice, I wonder,
O'er one that has taken thy place?
So sadly I fold the cerecloth
Down over thy dear, dead face.
What do I know of this new friend?
But thou wert tried and true.
How can I forget the old friend

HAIL TO 1923.

We plan with aspirations high
For 1923,
And we're resolved to live our lives
Just as they ought to be.
Hope springs eternal as of yore—
God help us to be true—
So we may find our hopes fulfilled
When '23 is through.

Good-By, Twenty-two.

The Christmas roses drooping low
Will soon be dead.
The old clock chiming on the stair
Tolls hours fled.

Hours of such exquisite joy,
Their memory
Returns in an enchantment sweet
To comfort me.
And change the chimes from a sad dirge
Of days gone by
To the soothing sweetness of
A lullaby.

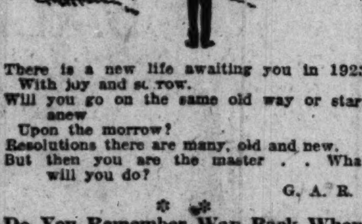
What Will You Do?

As you stand upon the threshold of 1923
And look ahead,
And see the straight and new path before you
Where none have tread—
Pitfalls there are many, snags a few,
But then you are the master . . What will you do?



There is a new life awaiting you in 1923
With joy and sorrow.
Will you go on the same old way or start anew
Upon the morrow?
Resolutions there are many, old and new,
But then you are the master . . What will you do?

MURCHISON TO RACE FOR CLUB OF NEWARK

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Loren Murchison, former Illinois A. C. track athlete of Chicago, who will soon sport the emblem of the Newark A. C. in open A. A. U. competition, has entered for the sprint medley, which will be one of the features at the indoor athletic meet of the municipal athletic activities in Madison Square Garden here on Jan. 15.

The former westerner will make this race the occasion of his first board floor appearance in the local district and will make an assault on the sixty yard record of :06 2-5. Murchison is a joint holder of this mark and is reported in superb shape.

A fast field of sprinters will oppose Murchison in his record attempt. The only prominent dash man of the section now missing from the list of prospective starters is J. A. Leconey, intercollegiate champion. Other stars scheduled to start are Bob McAllister national 100 yard champion; Sol Butler, former holder of the century title, and Eddie Farrell.

COACHES TO WEED OUT EVILS OF GRID SPORT

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

The National Association of College Athletic Coaches and the National Collegiate association, the former composed of the leading coaches in the United States, the last named being the organization which directs and controls the athletic activities of about 240 colleges in the United States, took a tremendous forward step in football at their recent New York meetings.

From the action of these allied bodies it is evident that coaches and the athletic associations of the larger colleges intend to wipe out the evils that threaten the very existence of college football.

Strike at "Undesirable Coaches."

The attacks on football and the growing demand in many quarters for restricting or abolishing the sport evidently have alarmed its lovers. The fact that the attacks, while directed at the sport itself, are all against abuses of the sport, has warned them to correct those abuses, and to insist that unless other colleges do the same they will refuse to play them.

The big movement is against the undesirable type of coach; and the huge majority of the coaches favor cutting off their schedules the colleges that employ that type of coach.

The war against gambling on football is to be continued more vigorously than ever. The last season produced a decided revulsion of feeling in the majority of colleges. In the Big Three, the conference, and in the New England group, coaches, athletic directors and leaders fought the menace of gambling by showing the undergraduates that betting on their teams is not loyalty, but is harmful to the team itself. The proof that the majority of "knockers" who attack teams after defeats are those who have lost money, won the argument.

"Noncompeting Amateurs."

There is a big chance that the organization of coaches who now are classed as "professionals" will strive to escape the stigma of professionalism by persuading the National Collegiate Athletic association, the National Amateur federation, and the A. A. U. to create a new rating for college coaches, according to the European standard.

Over there the teachers of athletics are classified as "noncompeting amateurs." Since a great many of the coaches in the United States are also faculty members and men of high standing, the classification of them as amateurs who are not entitled to compete would aid the situation and establish the coaches more highly.

The increasing feeling among college professors and executives that coaching might be done entirely by faculty members, in addition to their other duties, may have influenced the coaches to act in forestalling further moves in that direction.

HAVANA U. ELEVEN TO INVADE U. S. SOIL AND BATTLE ROLLINS TODAY

The Havana squad, twenty-eight strong, arrived today, and in a workout showed that it possessed a variety of trick plays and great speed. The Cubans weigh from five to ten pounds less than the Rollins squad, which averages 170 pounds.

MAROONS OUT TO TRIM VANDERBILT QUINTET TONIGHT

The Maroon basketball squad, defeated twice in preconference brushes, is out to take the last of these battles tonight when Vanderbilt will be met at Bartlett gym. The Maroons succumbed to Armour Legion five and Butler college, but tonight's opponents from the south have not been faring very well on their midwestern tour, and with Forward Dickson able to get into action Coach Nels Norgren expects his men to turn in a victory.

CAMPBELL DICKSON.

The same lineup that started against Butler will be used against Vanderbilt, Dickson and Barnes manning the forward posts, Smidl starting at center, and Yardley and Weiss at the guards.

PURPLE IN LAST DRILL

Coach Maurice Kent will give his Purple basketball team its final lesson today in preparation for the game tomorrow night with Notre Dame in Patten gym, Evanston. Although the Northwestern machine is working smoothly, Kent has scheduled an intense practice for this morning, in which much attention will be given to basket shooting.

Basket shooting is the weak point with the Purple. Kent demands short shots, and the forwards, Vernon Franzen and Walter Stegman, have not been trained to execute them before this fall. Today's practice will be devoted mainly to eradicating this defect.

Notre Dame, with one victory and two defeats on its slate, will come armed with a veteran squad, including Miller, Enright, Kizer, Riordan and Hayden. The reopening of school at Northwestern will assure a capacity crowd for the game.

CHICAGO Y. M. C. A. COLLEGE BEATS OMAHA QUINTET

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The Chicago Y. M. C. A. college basketball team won over the Omaha Wops at Omaha Y last night in a fiercely fought but clean game, 31 to 29. The Wops are a team of present and past college stars and played great ball. Saunders, captain of last year's Northwestern university team, starred for the Wops. The steady drive of the Chicago team was too much and in a hectic finish Mumma sank the winning shot. Y college plays at Fort Dodge New Year's afternoon and at Cornell college Tuesday.

VETS GIVE CRANE HIGH CAGE HOPES

A handful of last years veterans, together with several new men of ability, give Crane Tech college a light, fast quintet and promise of a fairly successful season. Steve Sullivan, forward, will captain the team, which opens its season on the home floor Jan. 10 with General Medics. The schedule:

Gen. Medics at Crane, Jan. 10; Crane at Chicago Tech, Jan. 12; Lewis at Crane, Jan. 17; Crane at Lewis, Jan. 19; Crane at Culver, Jan. 20; Chicago Tech at Crane, Jan. 24; Crane at Elgin Jan. 27; De Paul at Crane, Jan. 31; Crane at De Paul, Feb. 3; Elmhurst at Crane, Feb. 7; Crane at Northwestern M. Woods and Waters by BOB BECKER

LOOKING AHEAD INTO 1923.

Well, here is another year staring us in the face, whether we will or no, and there is nothing to do but wipe the slate clean and go to it again. We're hopin' of course that it's going to be a mighty happy, prosperous outdoors year for you, and if you don't get the biggest bass or the scrappiest trout you ever hooked, why it's no fault of ours.

About half the pleasure of living [and this applies especially to the outdoors lover] is the fun of anticipating, the joy of planning something. Such being the case, Jan. 1 is not too early to begin talking about the fishing trips you are going to make during 1923, the hunts you are going to take and the fun you are going to have when the Red Gods begin broadcasting their calls in the spring and draw you outdoors.

Don't know how it is with you, but we already are looking ahead into 1923, and planning a fishing jaunt next summer that is keeping us awake nights.

During the last week or, to be exact, ever since the Christmas tree took up its position under our roof, this peek into 1923 has been especially on our mind because there has been with us that disturbing, yet wonderful pine tree fragrance which makes us think of cool, dense woods, with a carpet of pine needles to muffle one's footsteps, a delicious smelling bed of pine boughs, a trout stream, and fun with fontinalis. Come on 1923. We can hardly wait.

OPAL ELEVEN BATTLES EVANSTON TO 0-0 TIE

Your Feet Will Make or Mar "A Happy New Year"

Pain, fallen arches, and flat feet will leave their imprint upon your memory during the coming New Year unless relieved.

The above conditions are all due to the displacement of one or more bones of the foot. Arch supports, braces, etc., give temporary relief only, so are not used by us in eradicating the cause. The cause, misplaced bones, are adjusted to normal by the new "Post System."

Modern Scientific Achievement

Here, by simple, painless, scientific treatment, your feet can be made normal—even the most severe and advanced cases of flatfootedness are eliminated.

Ninety-seven per cent of all cases have found quick and permanent relief. A consultation and examination will be granted without cost, if desired.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

Robert and Edward Reed, brothers, of Riverside, Ill., skating under the colors of the Alverno A. A., yesterday led their team to victory in the Austin-Columbia A. A. Derby, the opening event of the local season, at Columbus park. The Alverno team scored 150 points for top place, while Norwegian-American A. A. was second with 70 points and Carter playground third with 60.

LARRY QUIRK.

Bob and Eddie, the latter being international and national outdoor junior champion, amassed a total of eighty points for their club. Bob won the class A one mile event and placed second in the two mile open handicap skating from scratch, the event being won by brother Ed. Team work in the handicap brought the Reed brothers to victory. Both skated a careful race, Eddie having a handicap of twenty-five yards at the start.

Jack Stowell Spills.

In winning the class A mile Bob Reed gave a fine exhibition. Holding the pole for the first four laps, he spurted on the last turn of the fifth lap around the oval, and when Jack Stowell, Aurora, Ill., boy, and winner of last year's TRIBUNE senior silver skates Derby, spilled, jumped into the lead and stroked home victor by about six feet.

Sigurd (Brick) Larsen, Norwegian-American A. A., also a former senior silver skates winner, who skated his first race after a retirement of two years, finished second to Reed, while Julian Steinmetz, teammate of Larsen, was third.

Larry Quirk of the Austin-Columbia A. A. won places in two events. After winning the class B, one mile, Quirk came back and finished third in the class A mile grind, which was won by R. Blumberg of the Opal A. A. Quirk showed himself as a formidable contender for honors during the season.

Schoolboys Show Class.

Two schoolboy skaters of last year's championship Chicago team showed in rare form. O'Neill Farrell, representing Ryerson playground, won the novice class mile race, while Willard Taylor of Carter playground raced home in front in the event for boys under 16 years of age at one-half mile.

Olga Anderson won the half mile event for women, beating Lois Littlejohn, competing unattached, to the tape by a good five yards. Rose Cribben of the Alverno A. A. was third.

The meet, which was the second annual event of the Austin-Columbia A. A., was ably handled under direction of President Frank M. Kalteux of the Western Skating association, who had charge of the officials, and Frank J. Reilly, Austin club officer, who was in charge of the Derby.

Summary of Races.

Following is a summary of the events:

Class A, 1 mile—Won by Robert Reed, Alverno A. A.; Sigurd Larsen, Norwegian-American A. A., second; Julian Steinmetz, Norwegian-American A. A., third. Time, 3:15.

Joe Keefe's New Bantam, Kid Bandy, Seeks Bouts

Joe Keefe of the west side, who brought out Patsy Flannigan, is about to take the leash off another battler in the person of Kid Bandy, who, like Flannigan, hails from St. Louis. Bandy is a 126 pounder, and his particular quarry in Chicago is Sammy Mandell, Frankie Garcia, or Frankie Schaefer. Bandy has been boxing for three years and has met Johnny Dundee, Andy Chaney, Freddie Jacks, Jack Lawler, Otto Wallace, Harry Kabakoff, Monk Fowler, Johnny Noye, and Kid Coster.

CRIQUI-KILBANE BOUT IS SETTLED

PARIS, Dec. 31.—As a condition of the terms governing his coming world's championship match with Johnny Kilbane, Eugene Criqui has undertaken to engage in no matches prior to Memorial day.

The meeting between Criqui and Kilbane will take place at the Polo grounds in New York, the European featherweight champion receiving an option of $25,000 or 20 per cent of the gate receipts as his share. Other details remain to be settled after the arrival of Criqui and his manager in the United States about the middle of March.

ASA LONG VICTOR IN 44 OF 56 MATCHES AT CHECKERS EXHIBITION

ASA LONG, checker champion, playing simultaneously against fifty-six crack Chicago checker players, won 44 games, secured draws in 21, and was defeated in two of the contests.

The match, staged at the South Side Chess and Checker club, attracted much attention, and the champion met with stiff competition. The two Chicagoans who triumphed over the Toledo marvel were John Howe Jr., once Illinois state champion and one of the best players in the country, and E. Killingstad.

GETTING USED TO IT.

In Dixie a short while ago
Foregathered some governor-gents;
A quite notable group, they each put on the soup
And nuts for the social events;
But during the meeting a few
Laid aside their habiliments fine,
And in overalls dressed, slipped away from the rest
And went and inspected a mine.

Preparedness guided the step:
Political fortunes condemn
The greatest of all in due course to a fall,
And these knew what is coming to them;
So they reckoned they'd see how it felt
To tackle less fortunate lines,
For they recognize that when the voters say scat
They'll have to go back to the mines.

Flannery Fans 21 as Romeos Beat Polarines

FARM AND GARDEN BY FRANK RIDGWAY

DEPREDATIONS OF WEEVIL EASILY PREVENTED.

CARELESSNESS is responsible for the greater part of the losses that city gardeners, farmers, and commercial bean growers suffer every year from the work of the weevil. Much of the loss from this insect could be prevented if farmers would plant weevil-free seed, harvest beans, peas, and cowpeas as soon as possible, treat the seed to kill the pests, and store the crop where the seed can be protected, according to federal government scientists.

Farmers constantly fear that the weevil may cause trouble in cribs and bins where the regular field crop grains are stored, but this pest does not attack corn and wheat, and rarely infests velvet beans, soy beans, or vetch. Weevils are particularly injurious where there are beans and peas, because they can breed generation after generation in dried seed in storage. Experts say they require only eighteen to thirty days for the development of a generation during the hottest days in summer. An individual lays on the average of 100 eggs during her lifetime. Stored seed heat, while in bulk, favors the rapid development and breeding of weevils.

Fumigating the seed while they are in storage with carbon disulphide, carbon tetrachloride, or hydrocyanic gas will put an end to the weevils. Air slaked lime mixed in with the seed will prevent them from multiplying.

Illinois Central System Reviews Its Record of Service in 1922

As we enter upon the new year, it is fitting that we review, briefly, the events of the past year and pledge our most earnest efforts to the task of meeting the problems ahead.

The past year began with a business depression and ended in a period of business activity that carried the tide of traffic on the Illinois Central System higher than ever before. The freight traffic handled in 1922 (December estimated) was 16,676,800,000 ton miles, an increase over 1921 of more than 21 per cent. The great increase in business came in the last six months of the year. In the first six months of the year, up to July 1, the Illinois Central System handled an average of 1,169,065,500 ton miles of freight per month. In July it handled 1,311,564,000 ton miles; in August 1,649,538,000 ton miles; in September 1,690,066,000 ton miles; in October 1,759,576,000 ton miles, and in November 1,703,662,000 ton miles. The October business was the greatest in any month in the history of the system.

The handling of this mounting tide of business was made possible by the loyal team-work of the employes of the Illinois Central System and the splendid co-operation received from our patrons.

Despite the difficult conditions of the year—the unsettled state of business and the unrest generally existent—the Illinois Central System, looking to the future needs of its patrons, contracted for new equipment costing approximately $18,000,000. For other improvements, including reduction of grades and construction of new main line and yard tracks, it incurred an additional expense of $7,500,000, making a total outlay of $25,500,000 for new facilities and enlargements.

During the year the patrons of the Illinois Central System have had neither all the transportation service they deserve nor all the service we wanted them to have. The shortage of railway facilities has been of national scope. The losses of the year suffered by shippers as a result of the inadequacy of transportation will not be altogether in vain if they serve to teach the American public the absolute necessity of having an efficient, well-equipped transportation machine, and if they demonstrate that the public cannot have such a machine unless the railroads are regulated constructively.

Some of the prominent antagonists of the railroads are expected to make efforts during this year that will, if successful, place further restrictions upon the railroads, making it still more difficult for them to take the steps necessary to forestall further transportation shortages. Farmers, business men, wage earners, and all other classes of our population should be active in opposing these efforts, because their interests in the stake of adequate railway transportation are just as great as, and in some instances greater than, those of railway men themselves.

The New Year season is an occasion for pledging ourselves to the tasks before us. We of the Illinois Central System face the new year hopefully. We will leave no stone unturned in our efforts to merit a continuance of the support and co-operation which our patrons have so generously accorded us in 1922.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

C. H. MARKHAM,
President, Illinois Central System.

This Is That Opportunity for which you have long wished—to locate in the Sunny South, in a healthful section, on trunk lines of railway, within easy access to market, schools, and churches. By order of the judge of the District Court of United States for the Eastern Division of the Southern District of Georgia, there will be sold on January 9, 1923, at the Courthouse in Jesup, Georgia, free from lien, 10,500 acres of land, with 4,225 in cultivation, and well improved, together with all necessary buildings, live stock, agricultural implements, cattle, corn, hay, etc. The following are the remarkably easy terms of sale: One-third cash, balance to be paid in equal installments, covering a period of five years, at 7 per cent per annum. Much of this land is of the pebble clay, highly productive variety, with absolutely no superior within the state for splendid fertility. Cotton, corn, velvet beans, peanuts, tobacco, melons, peaches, pecans, figs, grapes, and other crops and fruits are grown with the greatest possible ease, owing to the mild winter and long seasons for cultivation and harvesting. The acreage in cultivation ranges from 25 to 900 acres, thus affording an opportunity, for all classes of growers, from the small farmer and trucker to the large agriculturist and peach and pecan grower. Write or wire. D. M. CLARK, Commissioner, Jesup, Georgia.

OLDSMOBILE SEDAN, 8 CYL., 1921. This particular car has been in the hands of the owner, who is connected with our factory, and has not had a great deal of mileage. The tires, upholstery, and paint look almost new. We have priced this car $300 under any other car in this class in similar condition. 1923 SHOULD BE MIDDAY OF 1922'S BUSINESS DAWN

Review of a Year Shows U. S. Is in Fine Shape.

BY O. A. MATHER.
[Financial Editor of The Tribune.]

The year 1922 will go down in American economics as the beginning of recovery from the drastic deflation of war time and its aftermath, one of the most severe periods of depression in the country's history. While the tide of prosperity cannot yet be said to have attained its flood, nevertheless the very real progress made toward reëstablishment of sound basic conditions has been surprising when contrasted with conditions in the rest of the world.

Last year was not without serious handicaps, both domestic and international. There was the strike of the coal miners, which practically stopped production of fuel for five months; and the railroad strike, which severely handicapped transportation for two months and crippled facilities for a still longer period.

Europe's Ills Contagious.

Almost equally as serious, and probably of even greater continuing force, was the muddled economic and political situation of Europe. The inability to reach a definite and satisfactory settlement of the war indemnity that Germany must pay, the fantastic currency schemes of that country and Russia, and the general political uncertainty throughout Europe, all constituted a grave check of America's foreign trade. Nor is the future yet clear, although lately there have been signs of betterment in the sharp improvement in foreign exchange rates.

But despite these major troubles and a host of smaller difficulties, American business and industry throughout the year manifested a steadily improving pace. From a general depression in the winter of 1921, which revealed itself in unemployment of several million workers, the situation in one year reversed itself and in recent months there have been complaints from some of the larger industries of shortage of labor, in spite of an advancing trend in wages.

Comparison Shows Trend.

One of the best indices of the year's progress lies in a comparison of the country's financial situation now and at the end of 1921, as disclosed by the reports of the federal reserve system. The essential fact is agriculture and industry alike have greatly reduced the mass of debt incurred during post-war inflation, this laying a sound foundation for future progress. Loans and rediscounts now aggregate about $565,000,000, or only about half as much as at the close of 1921.

This country, unlike most of Europe, has maintained itself on a sound money basis. That there has been no currency inflation is shown by the fact that the total of federal reserve notes in circulation, constituting the bulk of our paper currency, is about the same as a year ago. On the other hand, the year has brought an increase of about $175,000,000 in gold holdings.

Hold $4,000,000,000 in Gold.

The United States now possesses nearly $4,000,000,000 in gold, or nearly half of the entire monetary gold of the world. The reserve position of the system is at about the same mark as a year ago, and shows resources amply sufficient to care for all demands that future progress may impose.

Agriculture has benefited by better prices for products, easier credit, and somewhat lower farm wages. The aggregate value of the country's principal crops, based on prices paid to the farmer, is around $7,600,000,000 for 1922, compared with $5,750,000,000 for 1921. This is an increase of $1,850,000,000, or about 33 1-3 per cent.

Furthermore, the farmer's income is considerably augmented by proceeds from minor crops and animal husbandry. The market prices of both cattle and hogs are considerably higher than a year ago.

Improvement in both agriculture and industry undoubtedly would have been more marked but for the troubled European situation. Nevertheless, the record of our international commerce is not such as to cause discouragement.

Value of Foreign Trade.

The total value of our foreign trade for 1922 was in the neighborhood of $6,769,000,000, compared with $6,994,000,000 in 1921. This is a decrease of about $225,000,000, or less than 3¼ per cent.

Our exports last year were about $3,885,000,000, a decrease of about $600,000,000, or 13 per cent, while our imports were about $2,884,000,000, an increase of about $375,000,000, or 15 per cent.

The United States last year sold about $1,000,000,000 more commodities than it bought, which is a comfortable margin. On the other hand, the rest of the world showed an encouraging tendency toward balancing its trade with the United States, which is a salutary movement from the point of view of world economics.

This country now stands as the world's chief creditor nation, so much so that collection of its full dues is a matter of some doubt.

"Index Number" Moves Up.

Another indication of the upward swing in business was the gradual rise in commodity prices during 1922. The "index number" of wholesale prices compiled by the federal reserve board last week stands at 164, compared with 142 at the end of 1921, an increase of about 15 per cent.

The "index number" compiled by Dun's Review stands at 185, compared with 164 at the close of 1921, an in-

Heavy Rains for New Year; Warm Spring

BY SELBY MAXWELL.

The year 1922 was so unusually warm that everybody began asking: "Is the weather really growing warmer?" The average for the whole year was about three degrees above normal, which means that Chicago enjoyed the climate prevalent in southern Illinois.

At the close of the year, the excess of temperature in the air amounted to more than 600 degrees. This year autumn was three weeks late, and save for cold snaps about the dark of each moon, except in February, the mild weather will continue.

When late fall reports from the arctic regions began coming in that the ice there was melting back at an unprecedented rate, and that land never before ice free since the Pleistocene age was now laid bare, scientists all over the world became aroused. They consulted all available records, and sure enough, they found evidence that the winters in many parts of the world are actually growing warmer.

Old Winter Flees North.

Forty years ago the average temperature of Chicago was 3.2 degrees lower than the average today. To see what storms were like then one should go to the Whitefish Bay region of Lake Superior, for our former climate has moved up there bodily. In 1882, most of the cyclonic storms that crossed the United States went squarely over Chicago. Blizzards and deluging rains were by no means uncommon, while every few years there came downpours that were almost like cloudbursts.

In August, 1885, there was a precipitation of 12¼ inches; in July, 1889, 9½ inches; in June, 1892, 10½ inches; in September, 1894, 6¾ inches, and in July, 1899, 6 2-3 inches—all superimposed on an average rainfall of about 2½ inches per month.

There have been no rains of this class this century with the exception of 1915, the "year without a summer." In May of that year a little over 7 inches of rain fell and 7¾ inches fell in June, 1916.

1915 Got Our Goats.

So 1915 stands out in the memory of most of us as unusually raw and disagreeable. In truth, if it had come twenty years before no one would have noticed it, for it would have been like all its brethren. By its very unusualness, 1915 is marked as an anachronism, a condition which has all but passed away.

The storms we now have differ in several ways from the storms we used to have. The average rainfall is increasing. Our climate is becoming wetter. Since 1892, the dryest time in the last forty years, the average rainfall has increased 75-100 of one inch, or almost one-quarter. Rainfall is steadier now than it used to be. The downfall from year to year does not vary a half as much as it once did. However, there are no "roses without thorns." Aridity is also increasing in the Chicago region. When it decides to rain it rains better, but when it does not rain it gets temporarily dryer than it ever averaged in 1882-1889.

Storms Sidestep Chicago.

The explanation is at hand. The storms which used to pass over us centrally now come sideways. We no longer feel the violence of the middle of the cyclone and profit by the steadier precipitation on its edges; but when a rain misses us it is apt to miss us altogether.

A seasonal swing of storm tracks north of Chicago has been detected. In April and October they pass in the region of Green Bay, Wis., while in January and June they go a hundred miles above Lake Superior. Howling storms are therefore more apt to come by in the former months, while the latter are inclined to be either very wet or very dry.

Beginning about Aug. 14, 1920, the sun began sending out more heat than usual. Since then more than 2,000 degrees of excess heat has come to the earth. The temperature of the ordinary iron melting furnace is not far from 2,000 degrees. If the sun had concentrated all this heat on us in one day, instead of giving us a chance to radiate it off, the earth would most certainly have been melted.

Two thousand degrees is not a temperature lightly to be passed by. We are still feeling the effects of it. This mild weather is directly traceable to it. The earth was getting warmer anyhow, but so slowly that not many people noticed it. But when the sun cut loose, everybody realized that something had happened.

All Goes Back to Sun.

The climate of the earth, most of its winds, and all of its weather are due to the sun. That huge globe of flaming gas, 886,000 miles in diameter, is the source of all the warmth on earth. It is therefore quite apparent that whatever the sun does must profoundly affect this world.

The sun's outpouring of heat is variable. There are great storms there called sun spots, which make its heat now greater, now less. Sun spots run in cycles, and appear to affect the sun's globe to the core. The principal cycles that affect weather are one of 11.9 years, one of 33.8 years, one of 88 years, a grand cycle of over 230 years, and a rapid little one of fourteen months and fifteen days.

The 11.9 year cycle passed its maximum of heat in March, 1922, and it will now slowly decline. The eighty-eight year one and the 230 year one are still warming up, so we have prospects of continued heat for many years to come. The little cycle of fourteen and one-half months is due to raise the temperature this spring and depress it next fall.

A Rainy Year Forecast.

There is yet another class of rainfall cycle, a marked period of seven years. No one knows its cause. The swings go up and down with almost clocklike regularity, year in and year out. Some scientists suspect that the

STYLE'S DECREE TURNS FLAPPER INTO SLINKER

Long Skirts and Riot of Color Milady's Vogue.

BY CAROLINE KRUM.

Once more during the course of twelve fleeting months the designers of milady's wardrobe, omnipotent czars that they are, have, by their edicts, entirely changed the course of human events—as regards clothes. Once more the Parisian monarchs have waved their wands, and presto! hems have dropped, sleeves have widened, and waistlines have been lowered.

For a matter of years skirt length had been steadily rising. Then, about a year ago, a disapproving howl of designer and fabricant drove it downward with alarming speed. Some of us sighed with relief. Our defects had had to go exposed too long. Others of us sighed with regret. Skirts that shunned the pavement by thirteen inches had had no terrors for us!

Evening Gowns Blaze Trail.

Evening gowns and wraps were the first to obey the new order. Last New Year's Eve found most of us, in spite of an added year of age, weight and responsibility, flappering gayly about in the most approved fashion. Our dresses were as blithe and lighthearted as we. Last night we slid and slithered, sheathed—or draped—to the ankle. We glittered. We scintillated. A year ago the most fantastic dance step held no terrors for us. We had room to step as we pleased, lively or otherwise. This New Year's Eve we hesitated. Our costumes were powers to be reckoned with. A few over long strides might spell ruin to a month's salary of gown.

And then the headdress! It was only twelve short months ago that a bandeau, slim and graceful, of brilliants or tiny leaves, was considered quite enough for our bobbed, waved locks. Not so now. Complete coverings of pearls, with strands over the top and coils over the ears [behold the fatal influence of the radio craze.], or drooping feathers, are in demand. For those of us less daring, tiara-like ornaments of rhinestones, or even wide bands of gold, silver or brocade—we called them Lenglen bands last summer—will do, but then we add earrings—long, dangling earrings—that would easily make three of any we wore last year.

Slippers Change, Too.

Slippers, too, have felt the urge of the extreme. Where once two or three straps and a modest buckle sufficed, we are now lost in a maze of strappings and a glare of crystalline, rainbow hued stones. The hero of old prayed to come back from the fray bearing his shield or on it. We wear two, one on each shoe, and, with luck, we come home behind them both.

And oh, what they (our fashion dictators) did to the flapper on the street! They rolled up her stockings and jerked down her skirts and told her that if she must show something, for heaven's sake to let it be her arms for a change. So she chose the lesser of two evils and seized on the sleeveless afternoon frock. Bare from the top of her short gauntlet glove to her slim, round shoulder.

Some "Slinker" Features.

Her skirts are either very long and very straight or very wide and very circular, with an uneven hem line that now conceals, now discloses, slender ankles and chiffon clad legs. (It has been a long time since we have had even a bowing acquaintance with a circular skirt, by the way.) Her waistline is down where some generations ago she had hips.

Her hat is small, either closefitting and brimless or of the new "cloche" or mushroom shape. Her fur coat comes either to those same erstwhile hips, in a tight little "jacquette," or wraps her around almost to the ground. Where a year ago she was inclined to be barrel-esque, she is now long limbed and slinky. No more for her the dolman that rounded her so symmetrically from neck to knee. She has become the slinker, from the tips of her buckled slippers to the crown of her sheik (no, it is not chic this year, but sheik) little turban.

Turn to Vivid Colors.

As for colors, we of the so-called weaker sex have cast off the black that predominated from war days and have blossomed forth in the reflections that shine from Russia and the Nile, from the South seas and the vale of Cashmir. We still wear black, oh, yes, but it is a black that glistens and gleams, that reveals where once it shadowed, that is lightened by touches of almost anything else.

Into the simple, rich colorings that we chose a year ago have been woven the subtleties of peacock and parakeets' tails, making patterns that rival the dream of the harem favorite. The whole realm of material, from sheerest chiffon to warmest velvet has been affected by this prismatic invasion.

When the imagination of the weaver fails, we do not resort to embroidery, the peasant embroidery of a year ago. We add beads and feathers and then more beads, in glorious profusion. Last year the opera boxes and ballroom floors were filled with single glowing colors, solid patches against the man's conventional black and white. This year the effect is riotous. "Gorgeous, and yet more gorgeous," we cry, and leap into the battle line.

Vogue in Sport Outfits.

The tailleur and the sport outfit, least Parisian of clothes, have been the last to fall by the way as far as length is concerned. And I've heard it whispered that the tailored suit, for

UPSETS FEATURE PUGILISTIC YEAR OF GOOD MATCHES

5 Titles Change Hands in 1922.

RING CHAMPIONS

Heavyweight—Jack Dempsey.
Light heavyweight [world]—Battling Siki.
Light heavyweight [Am.]—Harry Greb.
Middleweight—Johnny Wilson.
Welterweight—Mickey Walker.
Lightweight—Bennie Leonard.
Featherweight—Johnny Kilbane.
Bantamweight—Joe Lynch.
Flyweight [Am.]—Pancho Villa.

BY FRANK SMITH.

It was a tough year for pugilistic champions! Three world's and two American titles changed hands. In only one division—the heavyweight—was there inactivity and Jack Dempsey went on his merry way without even raising his mitts to defend the crown he tore off the head of Jess Willard. This inactivity was not due to challenges, but to the fact that the Utah mauler wanted such enormous sums that no promoter would take a chance. True, Dempsey accepted the challenge of Harry Wills, but that is as far as negotiations went.

Georges Carpentier lost the world's light heavyweight championship to Battling Siki, the Senegalese, but the dusky hued titleholder became obstreperous in a London ring, smacked his rival's second on the nose and drew a nine months' suspension at the hands of the French boxing commission for his trouble. Later the Senegalese charged that his bout with Georges was a frameup and that he was expected to "lay down" in the fourth round, but changed his mind and walloped handsome Georges. Just now that title is under a cloud, but the cloud wears the crown and probably will in public opinion until some one knocks it off.

Greb Lands a Title.

Twice during the year the American light heavyweight title changed hands. Gene Tunny grabbed the gonfalon by getting a decision over Battling Levinsky, but later lost in the same manner to Harry Greb.

The middleweight division is in a muddle as a result of happenings during the year. To all intents and purposes, Johnny Wilson is champion, but down New York way, where the commission sets itself up as supreme in American boxing circles, Messrs. Muldoon and his colleagues set Dave Rosenberg on the throne after a victory over Phil Krug, only to have him knocked off the pedestal by Mike O'Dowd, who previously had lost the title to Wilson. In this division the fans must make a pick, but Wilson is the legitimate champion.

Jack Britton, monarch of the welters, finally went down to defeat after a grueling battle with Mickey Walker. This probably was the biggest surprise in pugilism for the year, as most fans conceded that Jack was invincible before the field that paraded as likely contenders.

Leonard Has Busy Year.

Bennie Leonard, lightweight champion, put in a busy season and when the curtain fell on his yearly efforts he had defended his title three times and had had a try at the welter crown, but lost to Britton on a foul. After the Britton imbroglio Bennie knocked out Rocky Kansas, won the judges' decision over Lew Tendler and the popular decision over Ever Hammer. A serious infection of the mouth, contracted during the Kansas bout, prevented the champion entering the ring the rest of the season.

Conditions in the featherweight division resemble those in the middleweight. The New York commission ruled that Johnny Kilbane had forfeited his rights to the title in New York and proceeded to stack Johnny Dundee and Danny Frush into the ring. Dundee won by a knockout in the ninth round. Take your pick—Dundee or Kilbane, but it looks to us as if Kilbane remains champion.

CITY OF 4,000,000 PLANNED FOR BY TELEPHONE CO.

W. R. ABBOTT.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company plans to spend $100,000,000 for new construction and additional facilities in the Illinois territory served by it in the next five years. Its engineers estimate Chicago's population at 3,250,000 in 1930, and 4,000,000 in 1940, and are planning for more than 1,000,000 telephones in Chicago in the latter year.

The company spent $18,000,000 for new construction in 1922, according to a statement issued today by W. R. Abbott, the president, and gained 54,000 new telephone stations, of which 32,000 were in Chicago. There now are 637,500 telephones in Chicago, and the traffic exceeds 3,000,000 calls each day, which, if combined in a single call, would require 6,250,000 minutes, or twelve years, the statement said.

Safety first measures have reduced accidents to employés from 587 among 15,477 employés in 1917 to 306 among 22,299 employés, or 1.44 accidents among each hundred workers, in 1922.

CITY'S LOW DEATH RATE OF 1921 IS MAINTAINED

"All diseases amenable to sanitary administration show lowering death rates in Chicago for the year 1922," reads the annual report of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, commissioner of health. Chicago's low death rate of 11.08 of 1921 was maintained in 1922.

After paying tribute to the policies instituted by Dr. John Dill Robertson, Dr. Bundesen's predecessor, for the control of all diseases, particularly typhoid fever and diphtheria, the report continues:

"It is of interest to note that Chicago was one of the first, if not the first, large city in the United States to inaugurate an efficiently conducted campaign against venereal diseases along scientific and humanitarian lines. The disease is found alike in both sexes and must be attacked in both sexes. No one would think of quarantining girls for diphtheria and ignore restrictions for boys having the same disease."

The report refers to the department's campaign against the smoke nuisance and notes an appreciable improvement.

CITY BEAUTIFUL PLANNERS WERE BUSY EVERY DAY

Five Improvements Are Urged in 1923.

Steady, continuous progress marked the work of the Chicago plan commission during 1922. Five new improvements were urged by its members in the course of the year. These were the widening of La Salle street between Washington street and Clark street at Lincoln park to form a new boulevard connection with the north side; the widening of 22d street between Calumet and Archer avenues; the widening of Indiana avenue between Cottage Grove avenue and 16th street; and the widening of 16th street between Prairie and Michigan avenues.

The power of the Chicago plan commission is advisory only. Consequently, whenever any of its recommendations are approved by the duly constituted authorities, the actual carrying out of such recommendations is done by such governmental agencies.

Legal Work Achieved.

As a result, the municipal authorities during 1922 carried on construction work and necessary legal procedure in connection with the South Water street, Western avenue, Ashland avenue, Robey street, Ogden avenue, Roosevelt road, Clinton street, Jefferson street, Des Plaines street, Polk street, and Taylor street improvements.

The forest preserve board continued acquiring available forest preserve regions, so that the total area today amounts to nearly 25,000 acres; and the south park commissioners made remarkable progress in carrying on the lake front park plan.

Considerable advance was recorded in both the west side Union station and the south side Illinois Central terminal developments.

Laggard Chicago Suffers.

Competing cities are securing so much of the business that formerly was done by Chicago business houses, and are attracting industries away from the city to such an extent, that Chicago is indeed fortunate in having twelve of the major features of the Chicago plan actually under way.

It is only by carrying out the entire plan that Chicago will be able successfully to meet the competition of Detroit, St. Louis, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and Kansas City.

96 Miles of Streets and 42 of Sewers Built in 1922

Paving along ninety-six and thirty-nine one-hundredths miles of streets and alleys was done in Chicago during 1921 at a cost of $7,498,060 and forty-two miles of sewers were constructed at a cost of $1,200,000, according to annual report of the board of local improvements. Much work of widening and extending streets, in accordance with Chicago plan commission aims, also was accomplished.

Public hearings, the report indicates, have been held on twenty-five proposed improvements, for which a total of 449,500 pieces of property have been assessed.

37,000 Marriage Licenses Issued by County Clerk

About 37,000 marriage licenses were issued by the marriage license bureau in 1922. As usual, June was the high month, when over 5,000 were written. March, during the Lenten season, was the low month, with but 1,954. Couples numbering almost 10,000 were wed in the Marriage court.

Big Orders for Equipment for Rail Lines

The railways of the United States, having had in 1922 the largest "car shortage" in history, have ordered this year more freight cars than in any year since 1912, according to statistics compiled by the Railway Age and made public on Dec. 29. They have also ordered more passenger cars than in any year since 1916 and more locomotives than in any year since 1918.

The number of freight cars ordered, according to the Railway Age, has been 173,858, as compared with only 23,346 in 1921. The average annual orders in the nine years ending with 1921 were 92,216. All these figures include freight cars ordered by industrial concerns and private car lines as well as by railroads. The number of freight cars actually built during the year was 66,252, which shows that the car builders still have a very large number on order. The number of cars ordered in the entire year may be slightly increased in the last two days, for which figures are not available.

Locomotives Ordered.

The number of locomotives ordered has been 2,456, as compared with only 239 in 1921. The orders placed in 1922 have been almost equal to the total orders placed in the three preceding qears, and largely exceed the average yearly orders in the preceding nine years, which amounted to 1,889.

The number of passenger cars ordered has been 2,403, as compared with only 246 in 1921. The total number ordered in the four preceding years was only 2,428.

The average cost of freight cars is now about $1,700, the average cost of passenger cars about $22,000, and the average cost of locomotives about $50,000. It is therefore estimated that the total cost of the cars and locomotives ordered this year will be about as follows: Freight cars, $295,558,000; passenger cars, $52,866,000; locomotives, $122,800,000; total, $471,224,000.

Little Line Construction.

While there have been large increases in the number of locomotives and cars ordered, the construction of railway lines has shown the same declining tendency in 1922 as in other recent years. The total new mileage built has been only 305 miles, while 194 miles of line have been abandoned and torn up, and 490 miles of line in addition have been abandoned, but not torn up.

American locomotive and car builders have received the following orders for export: Locomotives, 129; freight cars, 1,077; passenger cars, 19.

O, SKINNAY, YOU MUST GO EASY ON VANILLER SODIES!

Bean Is Scarce, Drug Report Asserts.

Soda fountain frequenters and ice cream eaters who favor vanilla must curb their appetites this coming year or run the risk of having to do without their particular flavoring, according to the 1922 report on the drug and chemical trade drawn up by C. P. Van Schaack, vice president of Peter Van Schaack & Sons, wholesale druggists.

The vanilla bean is very scarce, states the report, which lays the blame partly on the Mexican disturbances and on disease in the vines, but more especially on the enormous demands of the soda fountain trade.

Public Is Stung Again.

There is much else of interest in the report, particularly the reference to the great increase in the importation of French toilet waters, perfumes, and powders. Most of these are of synthetic origin, it is pointed out, and are sold at prices far in advance of their real value, a striking instance of the gullibility of the American public.

Among chemicals, carbolic acid shows one of the greatest increases in demand, as a result of which its value has trebled during the last year. Oxalic and citric acid continue to be dumped from foreign countries at prices lower than American makes, but, like many foreign chemicals, their quality is unsatisfactory. Mercury, bismuth, and their salts, together with iodides, are all on the upward climb.

Advertising Gets Results.

One of the most striking increases has been in proprietary articles, an enormous output being maintained in response to the demand created by vigorous advertising. The investment of capital in these articles runs into millions of dollars and nearly doubles the previous figures.

And, descending at the last almost to bathos, the report concludes with the fact that the sales of insect powder doubled in 1922, and, like other imports in those countries which are still belligerent, shows no signs of weakening.

Fire Department Passes from Horses to Motors

Not long ago the Chicago fire department ceremoniously observed the "death of Dobbin" as motive power for its apparatus, and the department's annual report features the "practical motorization of the equipment" as the outstanding achievement of the year. The transition will be complete by Jan. 15, according to the report, which adds:

"The importance of a completely motorized fire department cannot be overestimated, inasmuch as it may be readily seen that, with a motorized department, we are able to respond to all alarms with promptness, and, as a result, we are in a position to extinguish many fires in their incipiency."

Motor power is more economical also, the report indicates, cutting the cost of maintaining an engine company nearly in half—from $2,250 per year to $1,150.

MANY MYSTERY MURDERS OF 1922 STILL UNSOLVED

Slayings of Movie Man and Rector Lead List.

Every year the police departments of the nation are confronted with murder mysteries which at first appear easy of solution, but which, as the months drag along and clews are exhausted and "leads" grow cold, become more baffling than ever and go down upon the records for good and all as unsolved crimes.

The year 1922 leaves a heritage of but two such cases of national interest—the mysterious assassination of William Desmond Taylor, movie director, in his Hollywood bungalow, and the tryst of death on the outskirts of New Brunswick, N. J., in which the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, Episcopal clergyman, and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, were the victims.

Chicago, perhaps, has had more than its quota of unsolved murders, its Mafia slayings and tong war victims (in both of which a solution is the exception rather than the rule), its holdup killings and homicides of more mysterious motives and methods, but none of its crimes for the last year has been of such absorbing, widespread interest as the two mentioned above, the settings of which, strangely enough, were separated by the entire breadth of the nation.

Many Elements in Taylor Case.

The Taylor murder possessed all the elements calculated to intrigue public interest. Aside from the prominence of the victim and of those questioned in its connection there were the revelations of love affairs with nationally known film stars, of "dope" rings, of rumored blackmail plots, and of the wild orgies indulged in by the actors and actresses of Hollywood which already had been brought to light through the publicity given the "Fatty" Arbuckle trials.

And yet, despite the fact that a fund of $1,000,000 is said to have been raised by Jesse L. Lasky and other movie magnates to track down and punish the slayer, no one has even been indicted for the crime. It also was rumored that almost as much money was spent to befuddle rather than aid the investigation.

Man of Mystery.

Taylor's right name was William Deane Tanner. He was the son of Maj. William Tanner of the British army and a nephew of Dr. James Tanner, Nationalist member of parliament from Cork and a close friend of the late Charles Stewart Parnell. He had been an actor in New York, a soldier of fortune, a gold seeker in the frozen valleys of Alaska, an officer in the British forces during the war, and lastly one of the leading directors for the Famous-Lasky players.

Taylor was shot down from behind while alone in his bungalow on the night of Feb. 2. His body was discovered the next morning by his negro valet, Henry Peavey, who had been given a night off by his employer. Within an hour the police and movie heads of Hollywood were on the scene and an investigation was launched. Taylor's last visitor before the assassin the night previous had been Mabel Normand. Peavey had prepared cocktails for them. The glasses still stood on the tray in the living room where the electric lights were still burning.

Miss Normand's Story.

Miss Normand was able to throw no light on the murder. Taylor had walked with her to her car and that was the last she had seen of him. He evidently had been shot in the back shortly after he had returned to the bungalow from bidding her good-night. But love notes and messages from Miss Normand and Mary Miles Minter figured in the inquiry that followed.

At first suspicion was directed towards a former valet whom Taylor had discharged and who was said to have made threats against the director. The valet, Edward F. Sands, alias Edward Fitz Strathmore, had dropped out of sight and a country-wide search was instituted. Peavey, a strange character who devoted much of his time to embroidery, was held for a time and questioned, but was able to throw light only upon the lonely life led by his employer and the uses to which Taylor put certain filmy articles of lingerie found in the bungalow.

Gradually the interest in the murder case has died out and even the Los Angeles authorities appear to have given up hope of ever fastening the crime upon its perpetrator. Who killed William Desmond Taylor and why bid fair to pass into the book of unanswered questions.

The Hall-Mills Tragedy.

But more recently the columns which had been filled with the Taylor assassination have been devoted to the countless theories and exhaustive investigations growing out of the Hall-Mills tragedy at New Brunswick. Evidence since unearthed has developed the fact that the minister, rector of the Church of St. John the Evangelist in New Brunswick, and Mrs. Mills, the choir singer with whom he had been carrying on a clandestine love affair, were slain late at night on Sept. 14. Their bodies were found on Sept. 16 lying side by side beneath a crab apple tree near the Phillips farm just outside of New Brunswick on the road to Red Bank, N. J.

Both had been shot and the woman's throat had been cut, apparently after death. At first it was thought that they had been slain while they were keeping a tryst near the Phillips farm, with jealousy and revenge as the motives, but the theory was later advanced that they had been slain elsewhere and their bodies moved to the spot where they were found. It seems to have been definitely established since, however, that they accompanied their slayers, either willingly or unwillingly, to the death scene beneath the crabapple tree.

Hears Woman's Scream.

Mrs. Estelle Jones, who lives near the Phillips farm, told of hearing two automobiles race past her home at 11:30 o'clock on the night of the murder in the direction of the spot where the bodies were found. She heard four shots, she said, and a woman's scream and then the two cars sped back at high speed in the direction from which they had come.

The finger of suspicion has pointed at times to the minister's widow, Mrs. Frances Noel Stevens Hall, and then again at her eccentric brother, "Willie" Stevens, a town character in New Brunswick, but both appear to have proved to the authorities that they possessed no knowledge of the crime.

Another resident in the vicinity of the Phillips farm, Mrs. Jane Gibson, known as the "pig woman," claims to have been an eye-witness to the murder. She declares that a woman was a witness to the double murder and that that woman strongly resembled Mrs. Hall. The minister's widow appeared before the grand jury and offered to confront the "pig woman." Mrs. Gibson was classed as an eccentric and her story was given little credence.

Love Notes Bared.

A series of love notes which had passed between Mrs. Mills and the rector in which she addressed him as "Darling Babykins" and "Gypsy" were made public during the investigation, together with stories of many secret trysts and automobile rides. The Rev. Paul F. B. Hamborsky, a Hungarian Protestant minister and a close friend of the slain rector, came forward with the story of a conversation he had held with the Rev. Dr. Hall not long before his death in which the latter had confessed his relations with Mrs. Mills and told of a mysterious "H" who had threatened to "finish me if I am caught again with Mrs. Mills."

But despite the evidence gleaned from many persons, weeks of investigation, no formal charge has as yet been lodged against any one.

One of the most mysterious deaths in Illinois during the year was that of Miss Gertrude Hanna, 25 years old, whose body was found on a wide ledge in the basement of an unoccupied parsonage of the United Presbyterian church in Hoopeston, "the city of churches," on April 27.

The agency of death was not apparent at first, although the girl was to have become a mother and there were evidences that an illegal operation had been attempted. Marks on the wrists and arms indicated that the victim's arms had been bound with wire or rope, but there were no fetters on the body when discovered by a plumber who had come to make repairs in the building.

Elder in Church Quizzed.

John C. Wyman, a wealthy elder in the church and a former boarder at the Hanna home, was questioned by the authorities and admitted having had an affair with Miss Hanna, and even confessed she had refused to marry him, but he established what evidently appeared to the authorities to be a satisfactory alibi.

Another death mystery, the investigation of which centered partly in Chicago, was that presented on June 9 when a student of the Armour Institute of Technology, wandering among the Indiana sand dunes along Lake Michigan, came upon the charred body of an unidentified man lying on a kerosene soaked pyre at Waverly beach not far from Chesterton. The man had been struck over the head and shot. He evidently had been a hunter. The charred barrel of his rifle, the stock of which had been burned away, lay near the body. Scattered about were the remnants of a camping outfit, an old suitcase, and a few papers.

Clews obtained from the latter led to a search for Kenneth A. Anderson, a former vaudeville actor, chauffeur, and globe trotter, who, it was thought for a time, had been the victim. Relatives of Anderson, however, declared the slain man was larger than he and the body was buried as unidentified. Dwellers among the dunes were questioned, but none was able to throw any light on the murder and it, too, passed into the list of the unsolved.

Chinese Slayings Unsolved.

Two Chinese murders which were never fully cleared up were attributed by the police to the long standing feud between the Hip Sing and On Leong tongs. On the night of March 5 the police burst into the basement gambling house of Li Loy at 429 South Clark street to find Loy and Tom Fuey seriously wounded, and Joe Suey Quong, a Hip Sing laundryman at 2826 Armitage avenue, stretched out on the floor dead.

The usual shrugs and bland denials of knowledge of the shooting blocked all the leads which detectives attempted to follow.

Less than two months later, on April 27, Aloy Wong, 52 years old, of 503 South Clark street, for many years an interpreter in the United States immigration service, was shot to death in a poolroom at 2212 Archer avenue, supposedly by a man known only as "Jim the Chinaman."

Some Chicago Homicides.

There were many homicides in which the motive was robbery and in which the slayer was either never identified or acquitted when brought to trial. The more important cases were as follows:

Jan. 1—Adolph Schilling, 57 years old, was shot to death in his butcher shop at 3003 Montrose avenue by two youthful holdup men whom he resisted.

Jan. 4—Carl Freund, 70 years old, was killed while attempting to fight off two intruders in his harness repair shop at 1225 West 14th street. The police found $20 in the mattress of his bed and $1,392 in small bills, silver coins, nickels, and pennies in a heavy padlocked chest.

Bank President Slain.

Jan. 5—John Soffel, former village president of Maywood, president of the Maywood State bank, and a director in other financial institutions, was killed by one of five robbers as he was carrying a $12,000 pay roll to the American Can company in Maywood.

Jan. 28—The Rev. Father Florian Chodniewicz, 13145 Houston avenue, pastor of St. Florence Roman Catholic church, was fatally wounded while grappling with a burglar who attempted to steal sacramental wine from the parish house.

Feb. 10—Mrs. Bessie Greenberg, wife of a prosperous west side manufacturing tailor, was found murdered in her home at 3448 West 15th street. She had been suffocated with chloroform by an unidentified thief.

Canadian Farmer Murdered.

Feb. 22—James Weinand, a wealthy farmer of Liberty, Saskatchewan, Canada, reputed to have been worth $200,000, was found murdered in a barn at 2431 South Ashland avenue.

March 21—The body of Mrs. Bridget Jade, 71 years old, was found in her rooming house at 310 South Aberdeen street. She had been beaten and strangled with a handkerchief.

April 3—Philip Sommer, treasurer of the Royal Building and Loan association, 9223 Commercial avenue, and Policeman Ernest H. Cassidy, a world war veteran, were shot to death by one of five bandits who escaped with a satchel containing $4,200 in cash and $3,800 in checks, which Mr. Sommer was carrying to the Calumet National bank, 9117 Commercial avenue.

Junk Dealer Lured to Death.

April 3—Jacob Marcus, 1121 South Paulina street, a junk dealer, was lured into a basement at the rear of 522 West 41st street by three men and shot to death.

April 4—William Parlon, 4943 South Michigan avenue, a salesman, was killed by two men who attempted to make off with an automobile from which he had alighted in front of 908 Buena terrace. "Miss" Vaughn Long, upon whom Parlon was calling at that address, and her husband, Louis Zant, 1133 Ainslie street, were taken into custody and questioned.

April 5—John J. Colby was shot and killed in his grocery at 3131 Fox street by one of four Negro robbers when he resisted. They escaped with $400.

April 27—Louis Ruseski was fatally wounded by two unidentified holdup men in his saloon at 2359 Ellis ave

May 7—The body of John Patke was found by the roadside at 127th street and Cottage Grove avenue. H had been stabbed and shot to d

June 6—Anthony Abinanti, North Kedvale avenue, financial secretary and business agent of local Tracklayers' Constructive and Repair men's union, was shot down by thr assassins at Townsend and Ho streets.

Aug. 14—Mrs. Mary Talka was foun strangled in her home at 4203 Sou Wood street.

Aug. 29—Albert Schultz, a saloo keeper, was killed and Sergt. Edwar McEvoy, 4154 North Robey street, a tached to the Robey street station, John Horan, 2400 Lawrence avenue, brother of Ald. Dennis Horan, wer wounded in a mysterious bootlegger battle at Schnell's corners on Higgi road twenty miles northwest of th city.

Oct. 7—George W. "Billy" Heller, 4041 Wilcox street, ex-convict and a leader in the underworld, was found dead with three bullet wounds in his body in an alley in the rear of 9 West Madison street.

Crumbling of Lundin-Thompson Ring Feature of Local Politics During 1922

BY PARKE BROWN.

Experts say that 1922 will go down in Chicago's political history as the year of the crumbling of the Lundin-Thompson ring.

The final test of its strength, they admit, does not come until the mayoralty race this spring, but during the last twelve months the crumbling has been so persistent that political observers say the city hall leaders already are extremely discouraged about the possibility of cementing in new parts for the missing ones and again presenting the appearance of a solid organization.

The crumbling started soon after the admittedly smashing blow delivered by the voters in the judicial election of 1921, when Lundin tried to "complete the chain" of his control of local government and was met with the coalition and beaten by a 100,000 majority.

Realizes It Has a Foe.

That blow did not crush the ring—it still had the city hall, the state's attorney, the sanitary district, a hand in the county board, the election machinery, some county offices, and the local patronage of the state administration—but it shook it so thoroughly that it was not long before cracks began to appear and important parts began to fall away.

It was an off year, so far as major elections go, but Lundin decided early in the year to avoid any test of strength, and when it came to the county election the city hall was satisfied to keep under cover, without flying its banner publicly, and attempted merely to reëlect County Judge Frank S. Righeimer.

Righeimer maneuvered successfully through the primary, but when it came to the election, with his backers confident he would win by 100,000, he was defeated decisively by Edmund K. Jarecki, the Democratic nominee, running under several political handicaps.

—and That the Foe Can Hit.

The city hall concentrated its funds and forces behind Righeimer alone, and the loss of the election machinery increased the crumbling movement that already had left big holes in the ring.

So serious did the breaking away manifest itself to the insiders that as New Year's day approached several of the ring lieutenants were skeptical whether Thompson really would enter the race.

On the Democratic side, 1922 was marked with a steady increase of optimism that among many reached the extreme belief that "any Democrat can be elected mayor in 1923." This spirit produced a multiplicity of candidates that threatened to give the harmony leaders the most difficult job of patchwork they have faced recently in their effort to keep most of their organization unified.

Not all of the crumbling of the Lundin-Thompson ring was in the Republican camp. Much of the ring's success had been due to almost open Democratic support. This was said to come partly from Democratic pessimism about the chances of beating the machine.

Democrats Gain Heart.

But following the victory of the coalition judicial ticket—appearing in the Democratic column—the Democratic leaders found it becoming easier to persuade their people to break their city hall alliances.

The new spirit helped pave the way for harmony in the county election, and George E. Brennan's theory of ticket makeup and campaign enabled the organization to go through the primary with its front unbroken and to hold its forces solidly together through the election. The result was that the Democrats, in addition to holding everything they had, gained the county judge, an assessor, and three sanitary trustees.

That campaign was fought entirely on the local issue of Lundinism, and the Democrats figure they received none of the benefits of the landslide tendency they read in the returns from other parts of the country where national issues had been fought out.

For that reason the Sherman house leaders believe that, if unified, they will have better than an even chance of beating Thompson if he wins the Republican nomination.

Fear Independent Entries.

They now fear secretly that one or more independent candidacies in the election will spit the Democratic vote and increase the chances of the election of Thompson or, if the anti-city hall forces unite and beat Thompson, the chances of victory for the winner in the Republican tryout.

The first important split in the ring came immediately after the coalition election when Charles V. Barrett, member of the board of review, went to Springfield and openly fought Lundin's tax commission bill.

Then came the Crowe-Fitzmorris row. In some quarters it is believed that State's Attorney Crowe might have left the city hall regardless of the attitude of Chief of Police Fitzmorris about this time, but the chief's refusal to submit to his demands and Thompson's standing by the chief caused the departure of Crowe from the Lundin-Thompson camp.

In this way Crowe and Barrett became the nucleus for their present Republican group. They offered to enter into a triple alliance with the Brundage and Deneen groups, but the Deneen leaders took the position that the Brundage and Crowe groups were one. The effect was that the Deneen group has gone along alone while the Brundage and Crowe groups have been closely associated in several important matters.

The Crowe-Barrett forces accepted the country towns' organization headed by Weber, Hoffman and Busse as a part of their unit. Other additions to the anti-city hall group were four of the sanitary trustees—Lawley, Mueller, King, and Eller. Lawley and Mueller went down to defeat before the Democrats in November, but this shift in factional lineup paved the way for a reorganization of the sanitary district's affairs.

August W. Miller, clerk of the Circuit court next was counted in with the Crowe group. Other committeemen such as Walter E. Schmidt and George Hitzman left the city hall to join up with Crowe and Barrett.

After all this had occurred it was generally agreed that harmony between the Brundage, Crowe and Deneen groups, would defeat the city hall at the first party contest. Such inroads had been made upon the ring organization that as a matter of practical politics it was believed the machine could have been licked in the county primary. But the city hall avoided the fight and a sort of truce was patched up after the primary.

It All Hangs on Unity.

That truce did not bring coöperation in the election campaign and the question now before the anti-city hall Republican factional leaders is whether they will agree on a candidate behind whom they will unite in the mayoralty primary. One of the few reasons mentioned for hope in the Thompson camp is the theory that the enemy will not get together.

In the meantime, while the leaders have been delaying final action, considerable nonpartisan spirit has begun to manifest itself as a probably important factor in the mayoralty race. Without exception, this sentiment favors beating Thompson in the primary by unification of Republican anti-ring forces behind a single suitable candidate.

But it extends also to the selection of the best anti-Thompson candidate possible in the Democratic primary, and even, if that becomes necessary, to nominate an independent candidate.

Voters Seek Real Candidate.

This manifestation of nonpartisanship is said to have been expected by the bigger Democratic leaders for several months. They believe that the coalition battle and the fight against Righeimer on solely anti-Thompson grounds have demonstrated that Chicagoans have learned to disregard party labels more than they ever have done before, and they hope to bring about the selection of an organization candidate who will attract the big independent vote they see looking for the right place to light.

Leaders of this type do not share the feeling of some of their associates that "any Democrat can be elected" in 1923.

RECONSTRUCTION HAD ITS EFFECT ON 1922 BALLOTS

Insurgency and Deflation Paid For by G. O. P.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Post-war reconstruction tendencies manifested in almost every phase of national life were the outstanding feature of the political phenomena of 1922. It was a year of political unrest and dissatisfaction, of revolt against conservative leadership, of ebullitions of radicalism in spots, of gropings for new and more favorable conditions of existence, for new partisan alignments.

The political events of the year revolved around the election of the Sixty-eighth congress on Nov. 7. Compared with the landslide of 1920, which swept President Harding and an overwhelmingly Republican congress into office, the 1922 election registered a sharp check of the party in power.

G. O. P. Keeps Majority.

Nominally the Republicans retained control of congress—by a majority of ten in the senate and fifteen in the house. Practically, they will be unable to rely on these paper majorities for control of legislation, because some half dozen Republican senators and nearly a score of Republican representatives are out of sympathy with the regular leadership and are preparing to indulge in more or less insurgency and affiliation with the Democratic opposition in the new congress.

The insurgents, who call themselves progressives, virtually will hold a balance of power in the Sixty-eighth congress and will be able successfully to obstruct where they cannot dictate legislation.

In the present congress, elected in 1920, there are 59 Republican and 37 Democratic senators, a Republican majority of 22, and 301 Republican and 131 Democratic representatives, a Republican majority of 170. In the new congress will be 53 Republicans in the senate, 42 Democrats, and 1 Farmer-Labor senator, while in the house there will be 225 Republicans, 207 Democrats, 1 Farmer-Labor, 1 Socialist, and 1 independent.

Women Defeated Everywhere.

About a score of women were candidates for the senate and house, but none was elected, Miss Alice Robertson [Rep., Okla.], the sole woman elected to the present congress in 1920, being among those defeated. Mrs. Winnifred Huck [Rep., Ill.], was elected to fill the vacancy in this congress created by the death of her father, representative at large, William E. Mason.

On the eve of the election a woman became a member of the senate for the first time, Mrs. Rebecca Felton [Dem., Ga.], being appointed to the vacancy created by the death of Senator Tom Watson. She was sworn in when congress met in extraordinary session after the election, but a day later was replaced by Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.], who was elected to fill the vacancy on Nov. 7.

Want Dry Law Changed.

One of the significant aspects of the election was furnished by a concerted movement in many parts of the country for a modification of the Volstead act to authorize the manufacture and consumption of beer and light wine as nonintoxicating liquor within the meaning of the eighteenth amendment.

In this contest the drys lost considerable ground, but the wets did not gain enough seats to assure them of a majority in the next congress for their program. In the senate, as now constituted, there are 68 drys and 28 wets, while after March 4 next the lineup will be 57 drys, 30 wets and 9 doubtful, a dry majority of from 18 to 36. In the house at present there are 307 drys and 126 wets, while in the next house there will be 248 drys, 154 wets and 30 doubtful, a dry majority ranging from 64 to 124.

On referendums involving the question of liberalizing the existing drastic prohibition enforcement law, Ohio and California lined up on the dry side by decisive majorities, while Illinois and Massachusetts were recorded as wet.

Jersey Votes Very Wet.

Prohibition was the predominant issue in New Jersey, where Gov. Edwards [Dem.], who championed immediate modification of the Volstead act and eventual repeal of the eighteenth amendment, defeated Senator Frelinghuysen [Rep.], defender of prohibition, in the senate contest.

New York was the scene of a spectacular struggle over the governorship between Gov. Nathan L. Miller [Rep.] and former Gov. Alfred Smith [Dem.] and the prohibition question furnished one of the major issues.

Miller was on the dry side, standing on a platform from which the Republicans had excluded any expression favoring modification of the prohibition régime, while Smith appealed strongly to the wets, the Democratic platform having advocated restoration of beer and light wine. Smith defeated Miller by an overwhelming and unprecedented plurality.

The year began with the Republicans entertaining grave forebodings of disaster, for the country was in the grip of hard times, with widespread unemployment prevailing, and the farmers suffering from the drastic deflation in the values of their products.

Administration Is Scapegoat.

With laborers out of work and farmers on the verge of bankruptcy buying was at a low ebb and business was stagnant. Discontent was spreading and the party in power became the scapegoat, being popularly held responsible for all the ills of the hour.

Before the year had half run its course the strikes of miners and railway shopmen still further disturbed economic conditions and furnished more material for complaints leveled at the Harding administration and at congress.

The first concrete political manifestation of the forces at work beneath the surface was furnished by the Republican primary in Indiana the first week in May, when Senator New was defeated for renomination by former Senator Albert J. Beveridge.

Pinchot Jars Old Guard.

As Mr. Beveridge was one of the leaders of the defunct Bull Moose party, and as shortly afterward Gifford Pinchot, another Rooseveltian, won the Republican nomination for governor of Pennsylvania, it began to look as if the progressive insurgency of 1912 was reappearing as a potent political factor.

In the first week of June the Republican primary in Iowa disclosed the extent to which radical policies were gaining support among the farmers. The leading candidate for the nomination for senator to fill the Kenyon vacancy was Smith W. Brookhart, formerly a close political associate of Senator Cummins.

Brookhart Sweeps Iowa.

He was opposed by a field of five candidates, shading all the way from conservative to progressive, among them being Clifford Thorne, who was relied on to poll enough farm votes to compass the defeat of Brookhart. The effort to check radicalism was futile, however, Brookhart winning with 40 per cent of the primary vote.

Less surprising was the radical victory in North Dakota, where Senator McCumber [Rep.] was defeated for renomination by the Nonpartisan leaguer, former Gov. Lynn Frazier.

In the Republican primary in Nebraska the more radical candidate, R. B. Howell, was nominated for the senate, while in Wisconsin Senator La Follette [Rep.], an outstanding radical leader, was renominated by an unprecedented plurality.

Newberry Is Michigan Issue.

The Republican primary contest in Michigan opened with Senator Townsend assailed by two opponents, Representative Pat Kelley and Maj. John G. Emery, chiefly for his defense of Senator Newberry [Rep., Mich.], who had been under fire for excessive campaign expenditures in 1920. The issue of radicalism was injected later when State Senator Herbert Baker entered the race with the backing of labor and the radical agrarian element. Conservatism triumphed in this state with the victory of Townsend, Baker running second, Kelley third, and Emery fourth.

The outburst of radicalism in the Republican party, it turned out, was practically confined to the states west of Ohio. George L. Record, a former Bull Mooser, opposed Senator Frelinghuysen in the New Jersey primary, but was disastrously defeated. Joseph Walker, another Bull Mooser, was snowed under in an atempt to defeat Senator Lodge [Rep., Mass.] for renomination.

The only nominating contest in New York was in the Democratic party as a result of the ambition of William Randolph Hearst to run for the governorship as a stepping stone to the presidency. While the Hearst boom was being developed Al Smith, who nurses a deep hatred of the publisher, announced his candidacy for the purpose of beating Hearst.

He carried the fight on Hearst into the convention and, brushing aside Boss Murphy's flirtations with the Hearst crowd, forced the withdrawal of the publisher. To placate the Hearst-Hylan faction, Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner of New York, was nominated for senator. Hearst accepted the compromise and supported the ticket.

Hot Fight in Missouri.

Missouri was the scene of a bitter Democratic primary struggle. Renomination of Senator Reed was opposed by former Third Assistant Secretary of State Long with the active epistolary backing of former President Wilson and all the elements of the party at odds with the senator. Reed won by a large plurality.

The only other contest in which Mr. Wilson took a hand was the Democratic primary in Mississippi, where Hubert D. Stephens with the Wilson indorsement defeated former Senator Vardaman, for whom the former president entertains a pronounced aversion.

The Ku Klux Klan figured conspicuously in the contests in a number of states, being instrumental in the nomination and election of a governor in Oregon and a senator in Texas, Earle B. Mayfield. In Georgia, the nomination of Walter F. George for the senate was largely due to the klan opposition to his chief rival, Gov. Hardwick. In the Oklahoma elections the klan was active, but was worsted.

The upheavals in the primaries were only equaled by those in the election. Senator Calder [Rep.] was buried by the Democratic landslide in New York and the Democrats gained thirteen house seats. Senator Lodge squeezed through with only 8,000 plurality. Senator Du Pont [Rep., Del.] was defeated by Thomas F. Bayard [Dem.], while in Maryland Senator France [Rep.] was replaced by William Cabell Bruce [Dem.], and in West Virginia Senator Sutherland [Rep.] was retired by M. M. Neely [Dem.].

Beveridge Finally Beaten.

The comeback of Beveridge was short lived, for he was defeated by former Gov. Ralston [Dem.], conspicuous factors in the outcome being the opposition of the railway and other labor organizations to Beveridge and the knifing of the former senator by old line Republicans.

The election in Michigan proved that the Newberry issue had not been buried, despite the vindication of Townsend and Newberry in the primary.

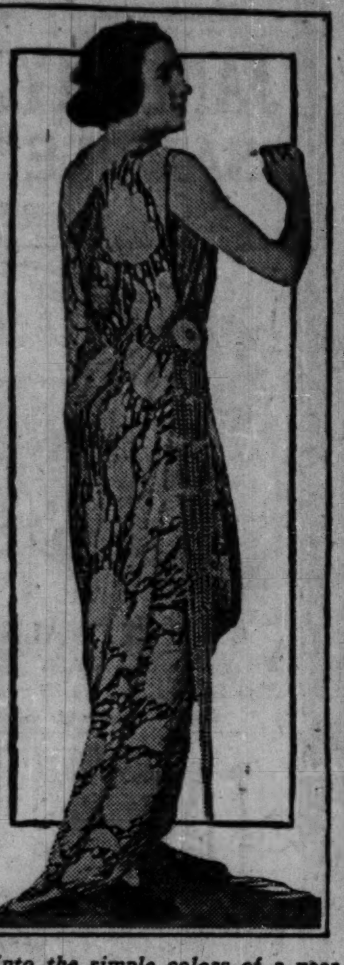
Ferris Defeats Townsend.

Former Gov. Ferris [Dem.] defeated Townsend with the aid of Republican anti-Newberry support. Ferris announced he would move to reopen the Newberry campaign expense case as soon as he should reach the senate and endeavor to have Newberry unseated. It was apparent that enough anti-Newberry senators had been elected in other states to assure a majority for unseating, and shortly after the election Newberry resigned, Mayor Couzens of Detroit being appointed to fill the vacancy.

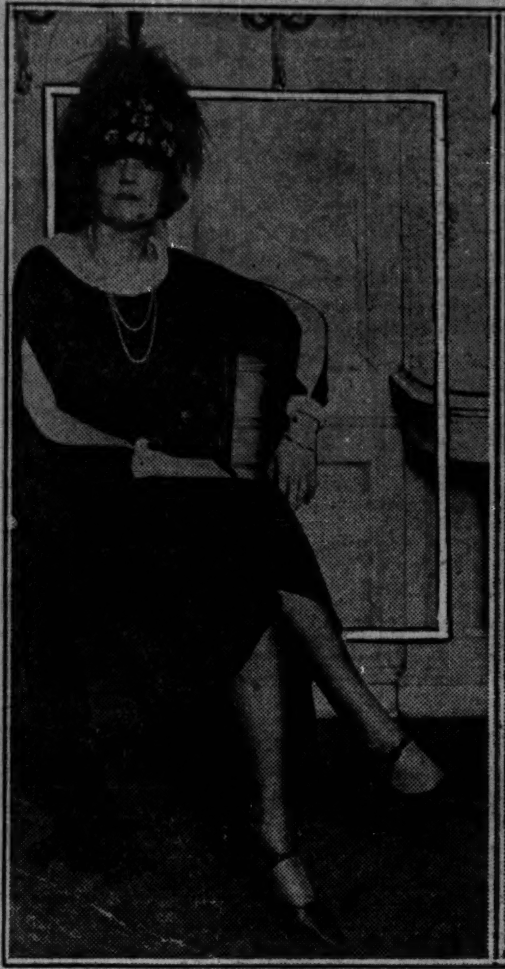
Majority Leader Mondell had retired from the house to run for the senate in Wyoming, but was defeated by Senator Kendrick [Dem.]. In Washington Senator Poindexter [Rep.] was defeated by C. C. Mill [Dem.].

In the house contests the Democrats regained about eighty seats, including districts in the southern states captured by the Republicans in 1920.

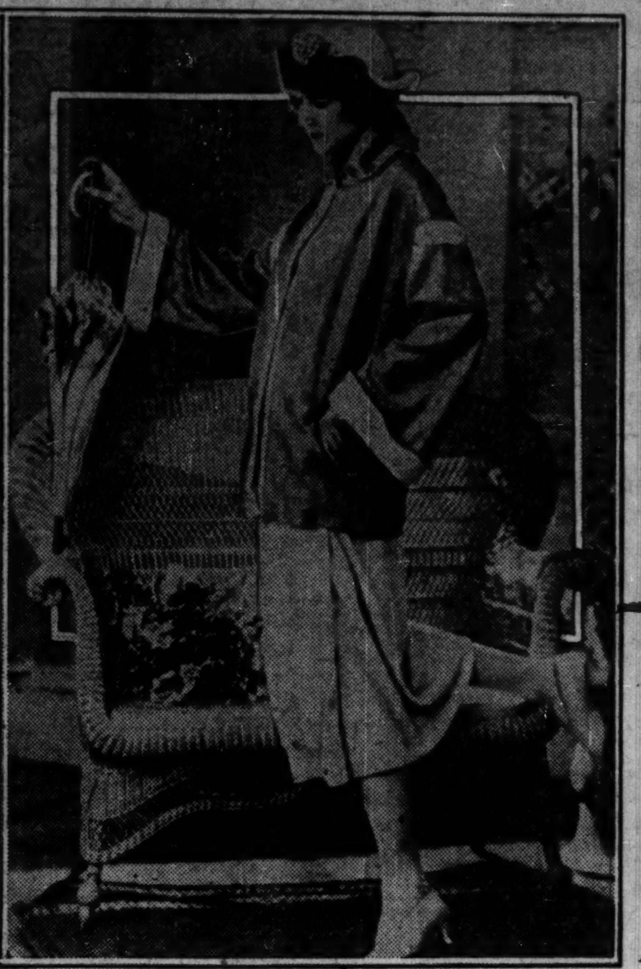
THE PASSING SHOW OF FEMININE FASHIONS DURING 1922



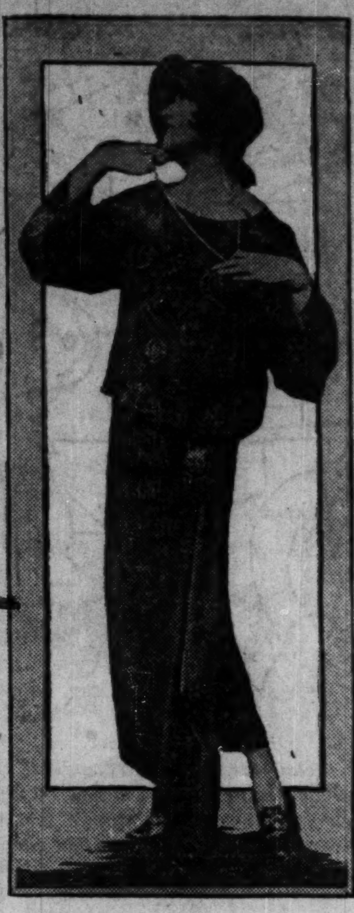
Into the simple colors of a year ago have been woven the subtleties of peacocks' and parakeets' tails.



Before the fashion doctors lowered the skirt temperature. The wearer doesn't seem to mind, however. In fact, last year she wouldn't have been out of place at all.

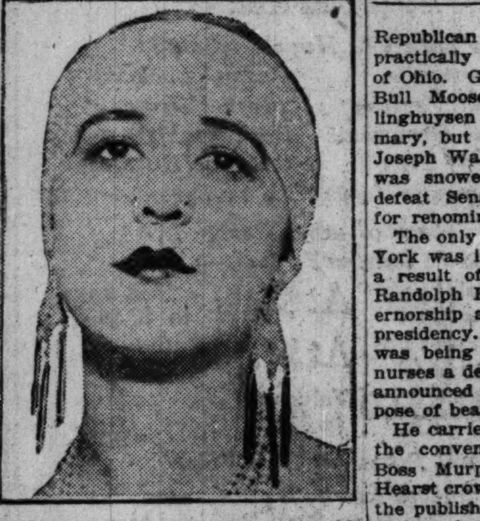


Sport clothes were among the last to heed the call to more length. This was worn early in 1922 and didn't really feel out of place for some time.



A year ago she was a flapper. Now she is long and slim, draped almost to her ankles.

[Kadel & Herbert Photos.]



Headdresses and earrings this year would make three or half a dozen of the ones worn a year ago. Pearl and jade are used here.

Short Skirt Passes in 1922; Flappers Turn to Slinkers

one, can be eight inches from the ground, and not bring the slightest flicker to the most supercilious of eyebrows.

Another whisper, this one straight from our eastern fashion mart, New York City, which, by the by, we are learning to look to as we always have to Paris, gives a hint as to the new thing for spring street wear. Instead of the long, strictly tailored effect of a year ago, or the short, bloused jackets of this winter, we will wear with a long, narrowly plaited skirt of one color, a short boxy coat of another. This duotone innovation ought to prove mighty attractive to those of us who tire of monotones.

"Knickers" Come Into Own.

Sport clothes haven't varied much during the last twelve months. The Navajo sweater edged its zig-zag, round and round striped way in last winter, and then proceeded to get even more violent in tone during the spring and summer. Belts found their way nearer and nearer the lower line of the sweater, and many of them slipped off altogether. Skirts lengthened a bit, but kept the fullness and abbreviation necessary to ease on golf links and tennis court.

The position of knickerbockers, especially for winter activities, is now practically unimpeachable. A year ago we wore them a little self-consciously, but they proved too comfortable to be discarded, except by those of us built on unfortunate models.

Some Other Changes.

There have, of course, been any number of minor changes in the styles of women's clothes. Their name each year, even each season, is legion. And the American woman with her passion for perfection of details accepts each one and puts it to use. For one thing, there is the preponderance of the slip-over-the-head-and-to-the-dickens-with-the-hair dress.

A year ago we had two or three in our wardrobe. This year one of the old button in the front, back or side kind feels lonely. Because of this, super smart and super careful women have light little robes that they slip on over the gown that is to be worn, so that they may dress their hair the last thing.

Then there is the great popularity of Bertha. We learned to shudder at her name during the war, for she brought with her death and destruction. Now we smile at her, she is so dainty. She is made of lace or sheer lawn and embroidery, and softens the bateau neck line that so many of us hesitate to try in spite of its prevalence. Bertha solves this difficulty and overcomes our objections in her own modest little way. It has been years since we even heard of berthas. This year not to know her is to miss much.

We have never been furrier than we are this winter. Last year we thought we did pretty well, but it couldn't hold a candle to this year's efforts in that direction. We trim our evening gowns and our best hats in ermine. We let caracul gambol where it pleases. We wear wound hats of fur, suits of fur, short coats of soft white bunny skin, and long evening wraps of the same, with brocade and velvet linings. So fur we go, and even further. Wherever there is an empty spot we add fur.

Mark Passing of Flapper.

The ornamental strings of all shades and conditions of oriental beads, of jade and white and golden brown, from which we used to suspend queer matching "do-dabs" or bits of carved amethyst or ivory, have yielded first place to amber and crystal chains that reach almost to the knee.

These are the changes that 1922 has brought. They have caused the passing of the flapper, the flapper that teachers and parents warred over, the flapper mother and grandmother that sons and daughters sighed over, the flapper that was gay and careless and happy. They have forced her to grow up.

She has been transformed into a slinker, sinuous, graceful, and dreadfully dignified. This is the work of the year that has just slid away. What, do you think, will 1923 do to this new woman? Will she have her fling, or will the whims of the fashion mongers let her have a small taste of popularity and then change her into some one else again?

HOME BUILDING FEATURES 1922 CONSTRUCTION

Other Vast New Projects for the Year Told.

BY AL CHASE.

[Real Estate Editor of The Tribune.]

Home building, and that includes everything from the tiny bungalow to the palatial Gold Coast hostelry, was the principal feature of a year of record breaking construction work of every sort. Although exact figures are not obtainable at the time this is written, it was estimated at the Building Commissioner's office that building permits for 1922 will total $220,000,000. The next best year was 1921 when they were $125,000,000. The third best year in the citys' history was $112,000,000, in 1916.

Placed end to end in a single line, all the buildings for which permits were taken out in 1922 would reach from Madison street to South Milwaukee.

The most spectacular and significant building project of the year was the new Tribune Tower on upper Michigan avenue. This magnificent structure, as well as its rivals in the $100,000 architectural contest, it is conceded will have an important influence on middle west architecture.

3,000 Room Hotel Planned.

So far as actual size is concerned the new Hotel Stevens farther south on Boul Mich, looms up as the biggest building project of the year. This 3,000 room hostelry and a big addition on Wabash will involve an expenditure of around $16,000,000. Work will start in the spring, it is expected.

A third great building project is the proposed Straus building, to house S. W. Straus & Co., on the old Stratford hotel site. This will cost in the neighborhood of $8,000,000 and its height will depend considerably on ordinances; that is, if the "set back" is adopted, the new Straus structure may climb to 500 or 600 feet. In any event, it is the avowed intention of the company to make it one of the world's finest structures.

Some other big office projects announced during the year for early construction are the $7,500,000 U. S. Insurance exchange at upper Michigan and Delaware; sixteen story Central Life Insurance company building, Michigan and Superior, and the annex to the People's Life at Randolph and Wells.

Huge New Office Building.

One of Chicago's biggest office buildings is announced for upper Michigan and Pearson—the National Life—but no definite date for construction has been made public.

Some of the big office buildings started during the year are the Illinois Merchants, annex to Chicago Trust building, London Guarantee and Accident building, annex to Wrigley building, American Fore building, Harrison-Clark building, Telephone Square building, and the Chicago Temple.

Getting back to our opening paragraph about home building, the wave of owning the home which got under way as a result of high rents continued through 1922 at high speed. Thousands of bungalows, two flats, small houses, and large flat buildings were erected in the outlying sections and suburbs.

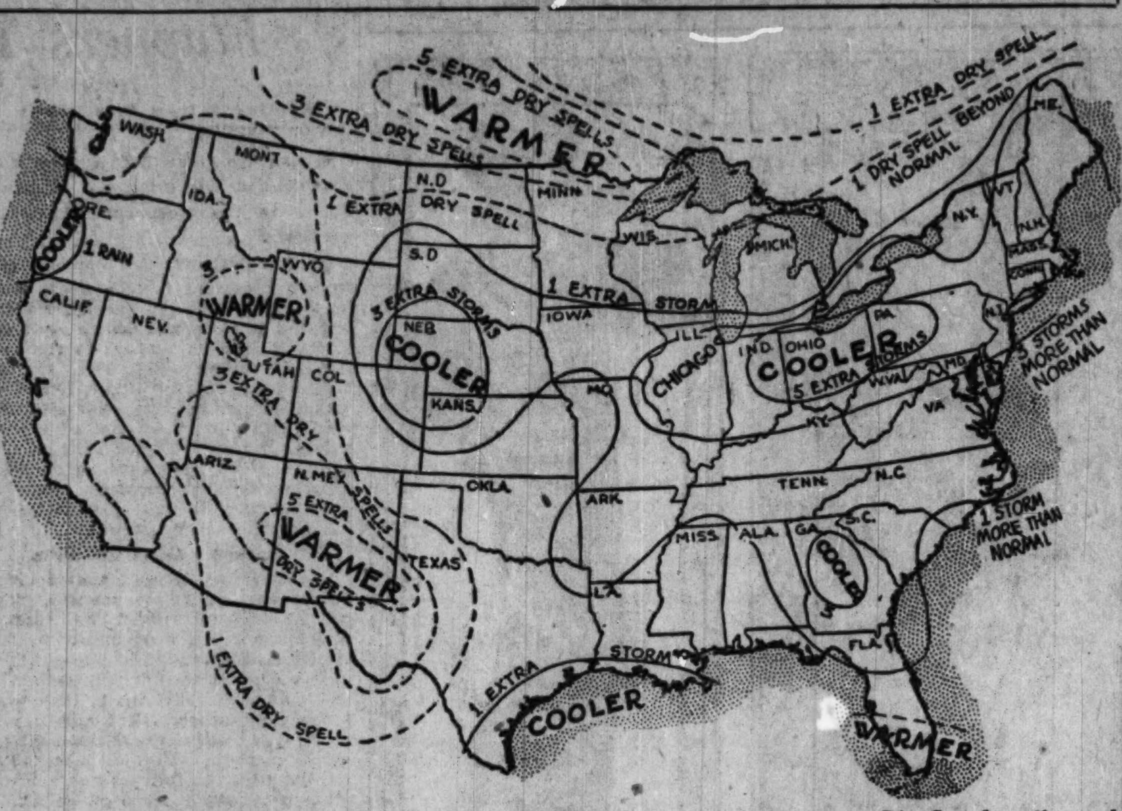
Closer in, the home building wave resulted in more tall apartment buildings and hotels than ever before. The loop apparently was the only section not affected, the nearest thing to actual construction was the announcement of one more big downtown hotel soon—the Thompson, at Madison and Dearborn.

Probably the most significant building announcement in the industrial field was that Henry Ford actually would manufacture cars as well as assemble them at his $6,000,000 Hegewisch plant. He will employ more than 16,000 when the first four units are completed. It is believed that at last Chicago is going to get her share of the automobile industry, for other motor concerns will follow Ford, it is predicted.

One of the biggest industrial announcements of the year was the plan of the W. F. Hall Printing company to build an $8,000,000 plant several miles northwest of its present one.

Among the realty deals of the year some of the largest were: The purchase of the Fort Dearborn National bank by the First Trust and Savings bank for $3,606,000; the sale of the Masonic temple for a reported $3,100,000; the Western Union building for $2,000,000, and the Reliance building and leasehold.

WEATHER FOR 1923 FORECAST FOR UNITED STATES



This map shows the weather predicted for the United States for 1923. In some areas coolness is expected. The most pronounced cooling area will range from about Fort Wayne, Ind., to Pittsburgh, Pa., and between the Ohio river and the great lakes.

It appears that the upper Rio Grande valley and the Canadian wheat belt will be hotter and drier than usual. These weather areas are permanent features in the air, and change in obedience to radiation from the sun.

COOK COUNTY'S FUNDS' INTEREST SETS A RECORD

Interest earnings on public moneys for the fiscal year of $1,029,352, a record amount for Cook county and an increase of $400,000 over the previous year, is reported by County Treasurer Patrick J. Carr, in his annual report.

General taxes amounting to $123,610,025 and special assessment taxes of $4,500,000 were collected, according to the report, which asserts that these figures represent a 50 per cent increase over 1921 collections. Forfeitures of general and special assessment taxes netted the county $388,374.39. Forty thousand delinquent taxpayers were notified of impending sale of their property.

Sixty thousand tax sales resulted in the collection of $2,500,000, of which amount, $1,709,485 was net earnings. Cash on hand at the end of the year was $23,028,225.

WARMER SPRING, HEAVY RAINFALL, 1923 FORECAST

Maxwell Tells You What Is Coming.

explanation lies on the sun, but they have still to prove their case.

This cycle has been known since Biblical times. Pharaoh's dream, which Joseph interpreted correctly, is a legend based on its peculiar truth. And 1923 is to be at the top of "Pharaoh's seven year cycle," as meteorologists term the value. We are to have some unusually heavy rains during the year. The moisture for them is already gathering. You can see it any day in the hanging clouds.

It seems probable that the winter will continue fairly dry. Then in April there will come some hard, warm rains, which will pile up a total for the month of six and three-quarters inches.

Heavy Downpour in Fall.

In June there will be another wet spell, with a total of five and one-half inches. In September the heaviest rains of all will come, carrying that month's total up to seven and three-quarter inches. After this the rest of the year will average two and two-thirds inches per month, which will be dry.

The moon also affects weather. It sends us an excess of heat in the shape of long, readily absorbable waves at each full moon, and causes monthly swings of temperature of about 23 degrees at a maximum and about 6 degrees at a minimum.

The moon also affects rainfall. There are well defined cycles of 18.6 years in precipitation records, due to the shifting of the moon's orbit. The next such maximum will come in 1924-5. This year is due to profit by the proximity to the extent of probably two good soaking rains.

The earth, being no mean astronomical body in itself, has peculiarities in its weather all its own, yet which are indirectly influenced by outside bodies. The violent wind and accompanying zero weather of Dec. 12-18 last, was due to the action of the moon on a terrestrial cyclone.

Top of Area Gave Way.

A storm area is always warm from the inrush of heated air from along the surface of the ground. On Nov. 12, when the effect of the full moon was not yet over, a moderate low pressure area passed Chicago. Somewhere near here its top gave way, due to the air's inability to continue both wet and extra warm at the same time. The storm circled the globe, and got back just at old moon. Its cold was now added to the normal chill of the time, and 3 degrees below zero, the coldest of the year, resulted on Dec. 18-19.

The sun's storms usually affect the earth second hand. Whenever the rate of solar radiation is altered, either for more heat or less, the thermal balance of the earth is disturbed, and greater heats and colds, as well as more storms, result as we drop into a new equilibrium. It will be stormier in 1923 than it was in 1922 for this reason. The declining 11.9 sun spot cycle will certainly make next summer rainier than last.

Here's Prediction for You.

Here is a list of the average monthly temperatures which we may expect for the next six months:

	1923.	Normal.
January	20	27
February	33	28
March	45	30
April	45	41
May	54	53
June	74	65

AUTOS TAKE TOLL OF 641 IN YEAR ENDING OCT. 31

Coroner Peter M. Hoffman in his annual report states that the automobile causes higher number of sudden and violent deaths in Cook county than any other agency. Six hundred and forty-one persons were killed by automobiles in the fiscal year ending on Oct. 31.

Disease came second, with a toll of 495. Suicide stood third on the list, with 468. The next form of death was homicide, with 386 deaths.

Inquests numbering 3,791 were held in the year, which was about the same number as in 1921.

The physician's department performed 1,977 postmortem examinations and made 442 autopsies, in which no inquest was held. Two thousand two hundred and thirty-seven death certificates were issued.

The total number of coroner's cases was 6,028. The laboratory report shows a total of 2,317 specimens of various sorts analyzed. The court reporters' department reported 3,199 inquests, writing therefrom 89,934 pages of testimony.

Writs of various kinds served by the coroner's department numbered 118, which brought $186 in fees. Inquest fees amounted to $759 and the department received $6,210 for copies of transcripts of testimony.

8,523 TAKE OUT HUNTING PERMITS, CLERK REPORTS

Sportsmen numbering 8,523 applied at his office during the year for hunting licenses. Fourteen persons living outside of the state applied for nonresident licenses. Trappers' licenses totaling nineteen, and fifty-six fishing licenses of various kinds were also issued.

Recorded in the vital statistic department are 7,695 births. Deaths in all forms number 4,737, not including 247 still births. These figures cover that territory of the county outside of Chicago.

PRESENT day traffic clearly emphasizes the need for street and highway pavements of the most durable construction if taxpayers are to be protected from the necessity of financing frequent and costly repairs with prospects of early reconstruction. Under modern traffic conditions a dollar saved in first cost too frequently is several dollars lost later on in repair and maintenance.

VITRIFIED Brick PAVEMENTS

last so long under heavy traffic and cost so little for annual repair and maintenance for the reason that the brick surface carries more than its share of the burden instead of thrusting this burden entirely upon the foundation. Each brick—smooth, hard, tough and dense—not only is immune to the wear and tear of traffic, but absorbs so much of the shock and impact of very heavy vehicles that the foundation is less easily disturbed.

VICTORY OF HAGEN IN ENGLAND TOPS GREAT GOLF YEAR

Sarazen's Rise to Fame Is Notable.

BY JOE DAVIS.

The golf results of 1922 as far as this country is concerned reflect the spirit of the United States. Youth has no respect for age athletically speaking, and the year that has gone saw younger golfers topple the veterans who have made golfing history from their positions.

Taken by and large the success of Walter Hagen, in the British open championships, was the crowning success of the year, as it signalized the first victory of an American born player in the British classic.

Sarazen Victory Notable.

Almost as notable as the victory of Hagen, was the success of Eugene Sarazen in the national open championship at the Skokie club, where the former New York caddy boy finished in front in a field which was quite as strong as that in the British open event. Quite as notable as Sarazen's win was the game fight made by John Black, the veteran Scotchman, who finished one stroke behind the champion.

It was a good year for Jesse Sweetser, who after winning the Metropolitan championship, took the national amateur honors at Brookline, by defeating Chick Evans Jr. in the final.

Miss Glenna Collet of Providence won a well deserved victory in the women's national championship, and hereafter must be counted in the reckoning.

Evans Retains Title.

Charles Evans Jr. was the only veteran to retain his title and was lucky to be in the final as in the first round at Kansas City Eddie Held of St. Louis carried him to the 21st hole, and should have won at the 19th.

Mike Brady's victory in the western open event at Detroit, was well earned, and few could have beaten him over his home course at Oakland Hills.

Mrs. David Gaut, was the class of the women's western event at St. Louis, and her success after years of endeavor, was well merited.

SOCCER

Soccer during the year of 1922 made great advances and the games were watched by larger crowds than ever witnessed them before. This was particularly true in the game in Chicago, where large throngs attended soccer contests in the Chicago and District league and the Peel cup competition games.

This year saw the organization of the first professional soccer league. The league was composed of seven clubs, one of which was the Philadelphia eleven which copped the American Soccer league title.

TWO CUE STARS LOSE AND REGAIN TITLES IN 1922

CUE CHAMPIONS

Balkline—William F. Hoppe, New York.
Three cushion—John Layton, Sedalia, Mo.
Pocket billiards—Ralph Greenleaf, Monmouth, Ill.

The billiard season of 1921-'22 was marked by the dethronement of William F. Hoppe of New York after a long reign, Jake Schaefer, a Chicago born boy, now living in San Francisco, being his successor. Schaefer held the title for a year and then, in the recent international tournament at New York, was displaced by Hoppe, who goes into the New Year as the international balk line champion.

He will have to defend his title once again this season, meeting the winner of the Schaefer-Roger Conti match, which will be played early in January in Chicago.

John Layton, the three cushion champion, after losing his title temporarily in the 1921-'22 season, wrested it from Augie Kieckhefer, and has held it since. Under the new system by which the championship is being decided by means of the Interstate Three Cushion league, Layton holds his title until the end of the tournament.

Ralph Greenleaf, the young player from Monmouth, Ill., has established himself as one of the greatest pocket players of all time. He has not lost a match in several years, and recently by the forfeit of Arthur Church of Yonkers, he gained permanent possession of the Brunswick diamond medal, a feat which Alfredo de Oro, Bennie Allen, and Frank Taberski had accomplished in previous years. Greenleaf will hold the title until a new tournament is staged.

Augie Kieckhefer, the Chicago southpaw, who is not competing in the Interstate league, holds the championship of the Chicago Billiard league, the strongest local league in the country.

1,476 Persons Sentenced to Cells in Criminal Courts

The reports of the criminal courts show that for the year ending Dec. 1 1,476 persons were ordered incarcerated in the different institutions. Of this number 485 persons were sent to the penitentiaries, 263 to the Pontiac reformatory, 591 to the House of Correction, and 137 to the county jail. The figures show that 678 files resulted in verdicts of not guilty.

1922 BASEBALL FULL OF THRILLS NEAR RACE'S END

Ruth a Disappointment; Fans Pay Piper.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Major league baseball magnates and fans have no cause to regret the season of 1922. From an attendance standpoint the game showed a marked revival over the season of 1921—a revival so noteworthy that the year is in the books as the second biggest ever enjoyed financially. The high water mark was 1920.

Old George Fan, who helped to create days of real sport for the owners, was partially rewarded for his faithfulness and liberality. The American league race paid dividends in the shape of a great race between the Yankees and Browns, with a couple other clubs threatening occasionally. In the National league the race wasn't quite so keen, but toward the finish the possibility was there that the Giants, looked upon as sure things from the getaway, might falter under pressure from the late starting Pirates.

Plucky Fight by Browns.

The real feature of the American league campaign was the plucky fight of the Browns. Apparently outclassed on paper when the contenders got under way, the Fohl gang stayed in the fight almost to the last day. They did this with a pitching staff that was ordinary at its best and that was without its one star hurler a part of the time. The real secret of their success was team effort, a thing the Yanks were not guilty of, as they proved so conclusively when they busted before the Giants in the world series.

Gleason's White Sox and Cobb's Tygers contributed their share to maintaining interest in the race. Both teams started the season with no prospects whatever. Gleason surprised the world by developing some pitching strength that at one stage carried him to third place. The Tygers pulled the unexpected through sheer power in their attack.

Babe Ruth a Failure.

One of the dismal failures of the year was the inimitable Babe Ruth. Off to a bad start because of his suspension by Commissioner K. M. Landis, the home run specialist didn't specialize, and in place of the whoops and cheers received the year previous he was handed the highly expressive "razz." His year's salary of $47,500 was shaved down by fines that exceeded $10,000. His home run mark reached only thirty-five, whereas Ken Williams of the Browns slapped out thirty-nine and Tillie Walker of the Macks thirty-seven. In 1921 Ruth tore off fifty-nine homers.

The National league lacked the junior circuit side show thrillers, such as home runs and a batting race such as Ty Cobb and George Sisler waged. This was amply made up, however, by the surprising spurts of the Cubs and Reds, not to mention the persistency of the Cardinals and the pennant aspirations developed by the Pirates at the close.

Reds Prove Sensation.

Pat Moran's Reds really were a sensation. In the training camp last spring the venerable Pat's outfit looked terrible. Apparently he had nothing but a few veterans to rely on. He unearthed some pitching strength, however, put full reliance in his two Coast league infielders, and then went to it. Toward the finish he was going so well that folks are still talking and wondering just how formidable he will be in the 1923 flag jamboree.

Killefer also pulled the unexpected with the Cubs.

TENNIS HANGS UP MOST HANDSOME YEAR IN HISTORY

U. S. Keeps Davis Cup; Mallory Beaten.

TENNIS CHAMPIONS, 1922

Davis cup winner—The United States (William Tilden II., Philadelphia; William Johnston, California; Vincent Richards, Yonkers, N. Y., and Norris Williams).

National championship — Singles, William Tilden II. Doubles, Tilden and Johnston.

Women's singles—Molla Bjurstedt Mallory

Illinois state championship — William Tilden II.

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Tennis, both grass and clay courts, had its most prosperous and growing year in 1922. The United States, dethroned at Wimbledon, where Mrs. Mallory was unexpectedly defeated by Suzanne Lenglen, swept through the Davis cup matches at Garden City, L. I., before the largest crowds ever assembled to watch tennis and finally triumphed over Australia, represented by a fine team which captured the doubles from Tilden and Richards, although overwhelmed in the singles.

The National at Philadelphia resulted in a triumph for Tilden over his great rival, Johnston, in the most sensational match of the year, Tilden wearing down his opponent at the end and winning, three sets to two, after Johnston had the championship almost within grasp. Tilden's rally after losing two sets and being three games down in the next was one of the greatest of tenis history and gave him the lead over the little Californian in their lifetime struggle for supremacy. The next week, in the East vs. West at Garden City, Johnston evened the score again by beating Tilden in an unsatisfactory match, Tilden stopping badly in the final set.

Kinsey Brothers Shine.

The tremendous revival of tennis continued, and many fine players appeared in competition, notable among them being the Kinsey boys from California.

In the Chicago district tennis had a great revival, the Western championships attracting the largest field in their history, with many newcomers. The event brought Walter Wesbrook, the young Detroit star, and John Hennessey of Indianapolis, together in the finals for the singles championship and, playing doubles together, they captured that event, finally dethroning Walter Hayes who had led Western tennis for years.

Injury May Affect Sport.

The injury to Tilden, which cost him part of the forefinger on his service hand, may affect tennis in the United States this year and change the outlook in Davis cup tennis.

In the politics of the game, the change of sentiment on the part of the British tennis leaders promises better understanding between Wimbledon and the world, with the Davis cup matches in the ascendency.

Louis Joliet and Pere Marquette, weeks after they left Montreal on their long voyage down the Great Lakes, floated finally upon the Mississippi River, discoverers, in 1673, of the "Father of Waters." As they paddled southward, near where Alton now stands, they came suddenly upon great, crude, Indian monster idols, painted on a jutting rock high above the water, and so horrible as to shake even their strong nerves.

But they didn't turn back — they kept on. Illinois still would be an Indian hunting ground, if danger had scared away its explorers and settlers.

Compared to theirs, our lot is easy. But our duty is just as plain. Illinois needs men and women who set high standards and live up to them; who are determined to make money and to save it.

FULL BACK MUST CIRCLE ENDS AS WELL AS PLUNGE

New Development in Football Attack.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

The 1922 football season, one of the greatest in history, emphasized the absolute necessity of developing full backs who can run the ends as well as drive through the line. The same as the quarter back position is a feature of the past because of direct passing, so has the new game placed greater importance on the full back.

In the old days the leading qualification of a full back was his line plunging ability. Regardless of his other capabilities, he was considered a fixture on any team if he could buck through an opposing line for the yards which resulted in first downs. He was supposed to be an average interferer and defensive player.

Owen and Locke Examples.

The end running full back is now a matter of dire necessity. Harvard showed what could be accomplished with such a player by the way George Owen, one of the greatest backs in the country, plunged through the line and ran the ends. The same condition was true in the middle west where Gordon Locke of Iowa did practically the same thing. In the Missouri Valley conference Capt. Hartley of Nebraska was used for the same purpose, while Morrison of California did the same thing on the coast.

The same sort of tactics were used at Princeton where Cleaves skirted the ends of all opponents on the famous Tiger sweeps. In fact, this player is deserving of a lot of credit for Princeton's great record on the gridiron this last fall. The Tigers were one of the undefeated elevens of the country and many critics in the east have stated it was the most powerful in the section. At any rate, Princeton achieved what it has tried to accomplish year in and year out and that was to defeat both Yale and Harvard in the same seson.

Cornell, Army, Undefeated.

Cornell was another undefeated eleven of the far east, as was the Army. The Cadets, however, were held to a tie score by Notre Dame, which afterward was defeated by Nebraska. This is the only blot on the Army's record, but its victory over the Navy was the morsel most cherished every year.

In the south, West Virginia and Vanderbilt stood out prominently. The Mountaineers were every bit as strong as any eleven in the east and are entitled to national championship consideration. They defeated Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson, two of the really powerful elevens of the section. Vanderbilt won its southern games in commanding fashion.

Michigan and Iowa went through the western conference season undefeated. Both were represented by powerful elevens which played consistent football. The tie score with Vanderbilt was the Wolverines' only blot on what otherwise would have been a great year. Despite this result, those in charge of the situation at Ann Arbor are well pleased with the season, because it is the first time since 1904 that Michigan can lay claim to a share of the conference championship.

Iowa, which won the championship in 1921, came back with another powerful eleven last fall. Aside from winning its Big Ten engagements, Iowa went east and defeated Yale, 6 to 0, in one of the most important intersectional struggles of the year. The team was well coached by Howard Jones, who has made the Hawkeye institution a factor in western conference athletics.

Nebraska was the strongest team in the Missouri Valley conference, although Drake completed its schedule without defeat. The Cornhuskers were defeated by Syracuse in an important intersectional clash, but they wound up their season by winning from Notre Dame, 14 to 6, before the largest crowd which ever saw a football struggle in Lincoln.

Drake also had a successful season. While it did not have as hard schedule as Nebraska, the fact remains it was not beaten and is entitled to some credit. It is seldom that Drake has been in a position to claim Missouri Valley conference honors, but its record is deserving of a few words of praise.

Bears Supreme on Coast.

On the Pacific coast, California reigned supreme. The Bears, coached by Andy Smith, former Pennsylvania player and coach, won the title for the third successive year. The team was composed of a number of veterans who understood Andy Smith's tactics thoroughly and were able to carry out his ideas to perfection.

Important games, especially in the middle west, attracted the largest crowds in history. In fact, the same was true of other sections and it is only reasonable to assume that the great old game will continue to grow in popularity if curbed and held in check properly by those authorized to make the rules and adopt requirements for players.

Racing Champions, 1922

Three year old—R. T. Wilson's Pillory.

All ages—Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Exterminator.

Winners of Principal Races.

Futurity—Sally's Alley.

Preakness—Pillory.

Belmont—Pillory.

Suburban—Quincy Stables, Captain Alcock.

Kentucky Derby—Benjamin Block's Morvich.

Largest winning stables—Sam Hildreth's Rancocas stable.

Racing for 1922 was marked by extraordinary prosperity on the eastern tracks, the revival of racing in Chicago, and two near tragedies caused by the collapse of the championship hopes of two horses which promised great things.

Sally's Alley, from Willis Sharpe Kilmer's stable, was awarded the leading honors among the 2 year olds, on the basis of capturing the Futurity and being the largest money winner of the year, while the greater honors went to old Exterminator, which, after one of the most sensational campaigns in racing history, in which he threatened to break all records for purse winning, collapsed late in the season.

The tragedy of the year was the failure of Ben Block's Morvich, which opened the season as if to shatter all records and, after establishing a record for straight victories and winning the Kentucky Derby, failed utterly, and, after repeated efforts to come back, was sent home to rest and probable retirement.

A Reminder Tomorrow is the first day of this "Wonder" Sale for which we have collected from prominent manufacturers of the East coats of such elegance, beauty and character that we believe will not be equaled in the entire coming year at the low price of 19.75. Here is a miniature reproduction of Sunday's advertisement of this "The Greatest Coat Sale for the Coming Year."

The Greatest Coat Sale for The Coming Year

4,000 Stunning Fur Trimmed Coats From Foremost New York Manufacturers in a Selling Event in Which We Will Endeavor to Establish an Unsurpassable Record for the Coming New Year 1923

A record unsurpassable in greatness of values, in diversified collection of styles, in character of fabrics, workmanship and in fineness of trimmings that would be impossible at a price as low as 19.75—has been our aim in the weeks we have spent preparing for this marvelous event.

The Markets Were Thoroughly Scouted for the "Supreme" Values and We Have Succeeded in Gathering This Unequaled Assortment of 30.00, 40.00, 50.00 and up to 60.00 Fur Trimmed Coats to Sell at 19.75

The manufacturers were willing to make great sacrifices. The late winter had caused a backward season and left them with immense surplus stocks which they were desirous of turning into cash rather than carrying over to the next season. We went only to the makers of "better" coats, whose creations enjoy wider popularity; we selected a hundred or more from one, dozens of styles from another; a score or more from still others, until now we have in this assortment 4,000 winter coats which we believe women will not again in the entire coming year see priced anywhere near as low as 19.75. You will find every new style—straightline, blouse effects, wrappy models, draped effects and some elaborately embroidered and trimmed with silk fringes, tassels, clever tucks, buckles and ornaments. Also plain tailored styles. Every coat silk lined throughout and warmly interlined. And every coat an amazing value for this low figure—19.75.

ECONOMICAL WOMEN must have The Tribune—because much of its advertising — merchandising news—is not found in any other newspaper.

THE BLUM BUILDING

624 Michigan Boulevard, South-Adjoining Blackstone Hotel

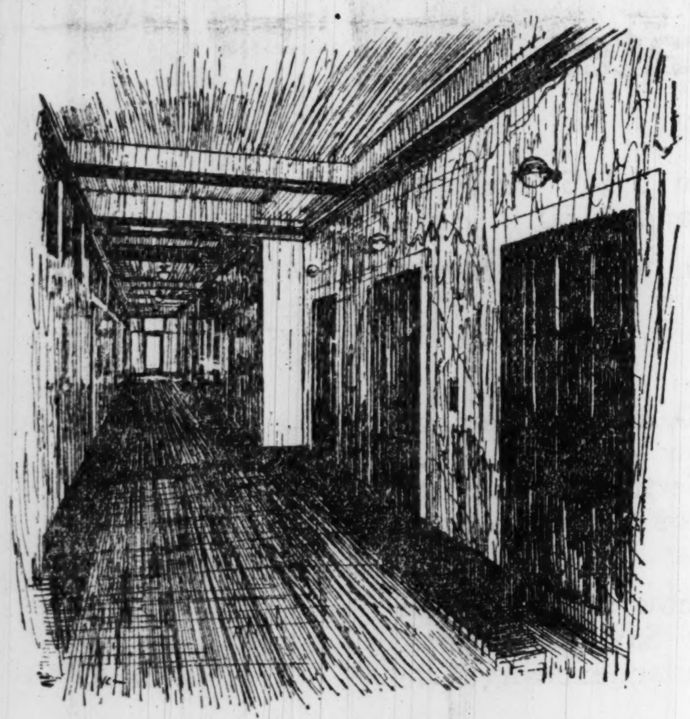
THE realization comes, in this modern day, that man cannot live for gain alone, but that beauty must form an essential part of his existence. And it is in the expression of this idea that the new Blum Building stands out. Overlooking the wide stretches of Lake Michigan, it stands a lovely sentinel on what will be the world's most beautiful boulevard.

It would have been an easy matter to have erected a mere "building" here. But vision—that blending of common sense with a taste for the beautiful—dictated that from foundation to the full height of its fourteen stories this structure should be a step forward in utility as well as one in lasting grandeur.

Viewing the building from Grant Park, one is at once impressed with the dignity of its exterior—a building exemplifying the best architectural ideas of the Georgian period.

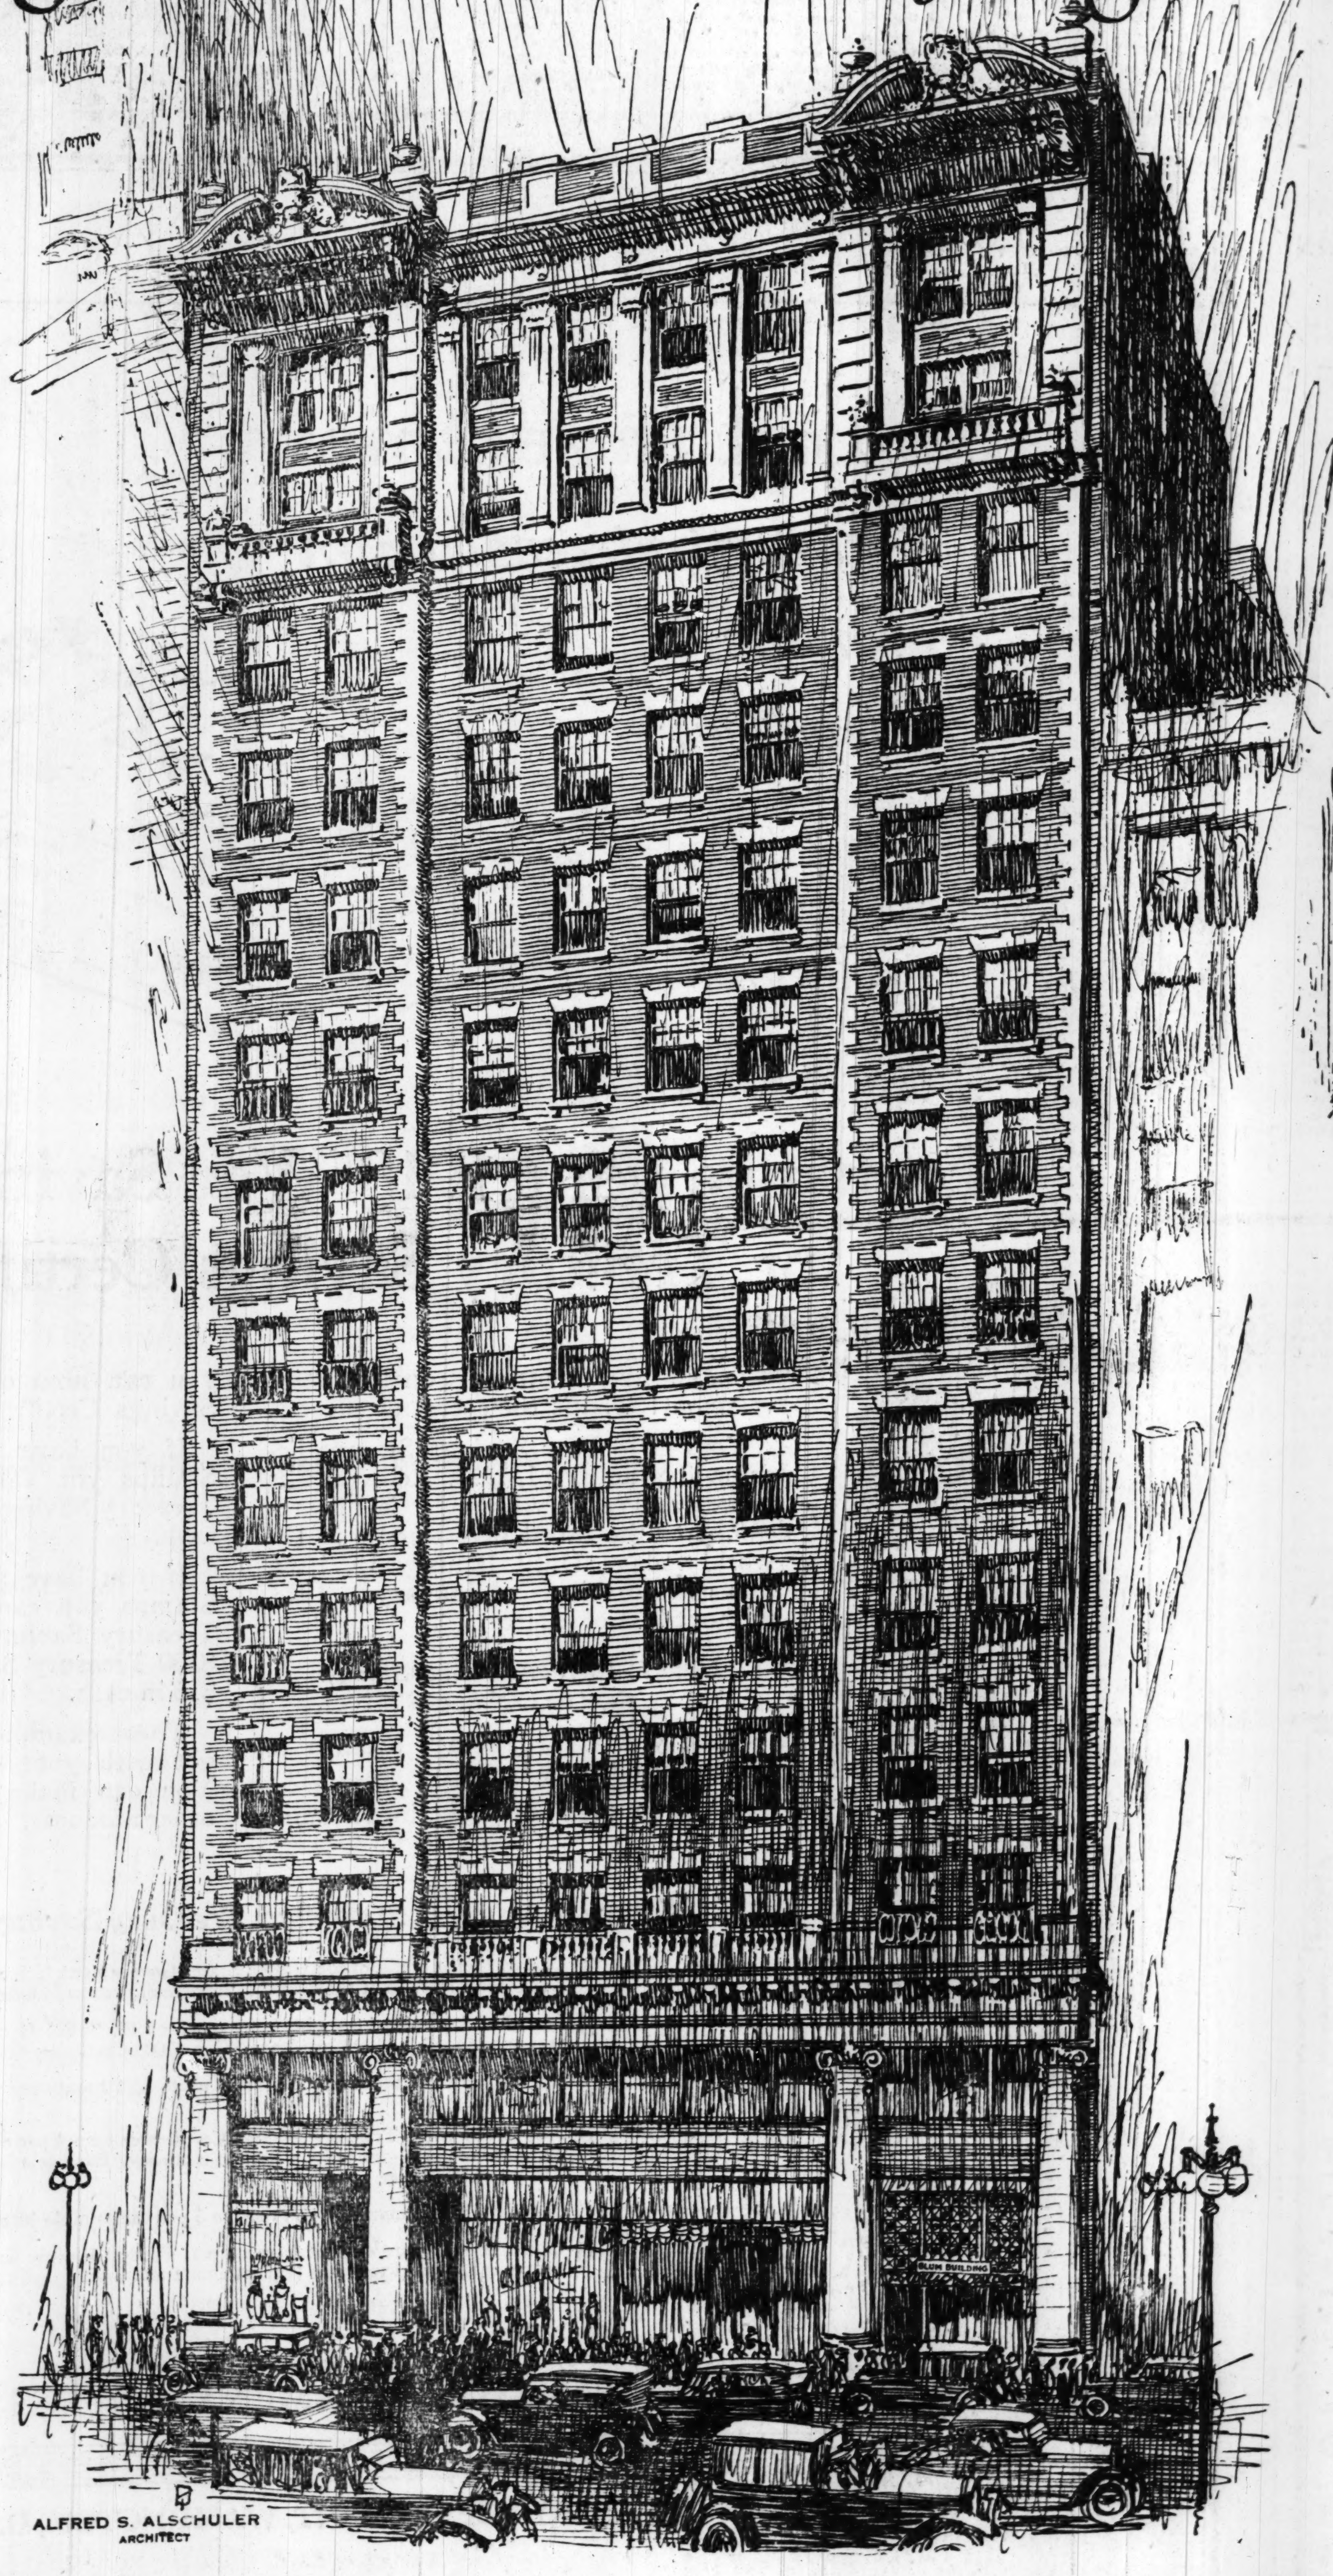
Hand-chased bronze doors claim your first attention on entering, and the entrance is framed in Verde Antique marble. The walls of the outer foyer are cut from solid blocks of Skyros marble, imported from Greece. Of rare beauty are its rose and violet tints. A marble staircase leads to a smart cafe, soon to open on the floor below.



A Typical Corridor

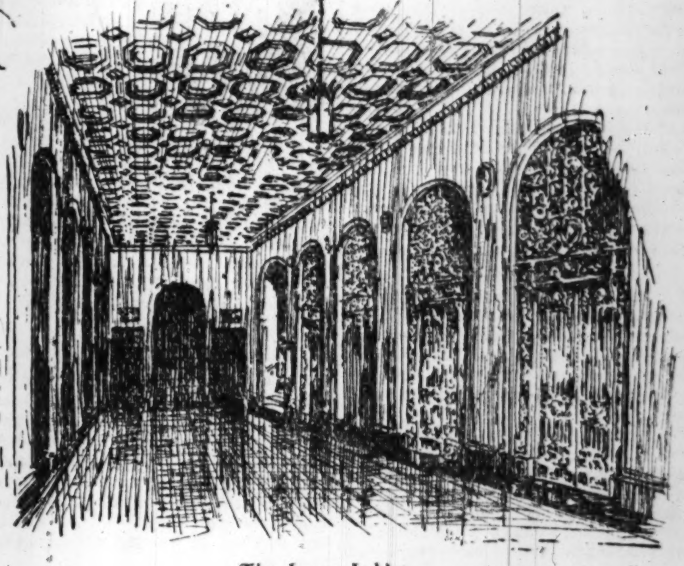
A second set of handsome bronze doors opens upon the main lobby—a true work of art. Decidedly out of the ordinary are its walls of exquisite Skyros and its floor base of black and gold marble richly molded. The wall medallions are artistic circular insets of marble from France—Bon Garde Famosa, almost agate-like in its mottled veinings.

The ceiling is an artistic masterpiece—Italian Renaissance in design, with decorations of bronze and gold leaf and background of old rose and blue. The chandeliers were specially hand-wrought.



Such art as is expressed in the elevators of the Blum Building one expects to find in only the art centers of Europe. The grills are of hand-chased bronze elaborately wrought, rich beyond description. The cabs are of fine American walnut, carved after the manner of the Louis XVI period.

Stepping out on one of the upper floors, one cannot but be impressed with the elegance of the corridors. A seven-foot marble wainscoting with verdigris base extends along the entire length, and the elevator fronts have marble walls from floor to ceiling. The floors have a stunning border of black marble. The woodwork throughout is finest Mexican mahogany.



The Inner Lobby

Naturally, it is to be expected that in a building of such beauty the practical features should be minutely considered. And one finds that every detail measures up to the high standard which sponsors the entire enterprise.

Each floor contains approximately ten thousand square feet of rentable area.

All rooms have direct outer exposure.

The Otis high-speed elevators have the very newest and best safety devices, and the Micro-drive automatic stop attachment.

The heating system is the very latest word in modern equipment.

Illumination is unsurpassed among office types.

The situation is ideal. Across from Grant Park and the Public Stadium now in course of construction, in the center of the finest hotel district, and with I. C., elevated and surface transportation immediately accessible, the Blum Building stands as a symbol of the spirit which has made Chicago what it is today.

There is attractive space—rental surprisingly moderate—in the Blum Building still available. Single offices, suites or entire floors. Interior arrangements made gratis to suit lessees. Representative will call upon application to H. E. Bach, Building Manager, 508 Blum Building, Harrison 9340

CHICAGO MAILS SHOW BIG GAINS IN ALL BRANCHES

Still Hold First Place for Money Orders.

The Chicago postoffice in 1922 did 10 per cent more business than in 1921, and most of the increase came in the latter part of the year. Postal revenues amounted to more than $46,000,000, an increase of 9.5 per cent over 1921; 1,200,000,000 pieces of first class mail were received. The total of all kinds received is almost 2,500,000,000 pieces.

Insured parcel post packages numbered about 3,600,000; C. O. D. parcels about 5,400,000; registered articles 14,300,000, and postal savings on deposit at the end of the year totaled more than $6,000,000.

Over 35,000,000 domestic money orders were issued, amounting to more than $30,000,000. More than 38,000 international money orders for $560,000 were issued. About 35,000,000 domestic money orders were paid, amounting to $255,000,000. Internafor $282,000. More than 38,000,000 transactions were recorded, the total amount of money involved being $528,903,643. This is an increase of over 11 per cent over the previous year.

Money Order Business Grows.

"The money order business has long been regarded as a rather reliable barometer of business conditions," the postmaster reports. "This office still maintains its preëminence as the greatest money order office in the world, and pays fully one-fifth of all the money orders issued in the United States.

"There has not been, however, any notable revival in the international money order business, although the department changed the former plan of adhering to a fixed rate of exchange, and now endeavors to conform, as nearly as is practicable, to the commercial, or market, rates for foreign money.

"It has not yet been practicable to resume the transaction of money order business with most of the central European countries, but negotiations are now under way with some of them, and it is probable that conventions will be adopted in the near future.

12,000 Employés Used.

"A total of 12,000 employés was required to handle the Chicago postal business, of which approximately 6,000 are clerks, the others being miscellaneous employés in the motor vehicle service, special delivery service, and others.

"Fortunately for the Chicago postal service, additional space has been provided at the new Van Buren station for the handling of parcel post mails originating in Chicago. The bulky mails originating here have been handled with great difficulty in past years and the increase in volume has been so tremendous that additional space was a real necessity. As an example, over 700 tons of mail were handled on the heaviest day during the recent Christmas rush."

PROVISION TRADE HEALTHY IN U. S., BUT POOR ABROAD

The provision trade had many unsatisfactory features and was not a profitable one for the packers on the whole in the handling of hog products. Supplies of hogs were large and prices a good part of the year relatively higher than the product. Export business is lighter, foreign consumers buying only as supplies were required, particularly on the continent, owing to difficulty in financing their operations.

In the domestic trade business throughout was healthy with stocks not large and easily obtainable. Supplies of cured product were taken by the south, owing to the large cotton crop, and business in that section was better than in a majority of others. Prices in coal mining districts affected trade during the spring and summer.

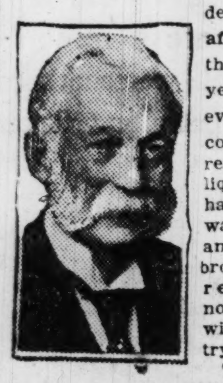
REAL PROSPERITY NEAR IF EUROPE HELPS—FORGAN

Banker Positive U. S. Rides Securely.

BY JAMES B. FORGAN.

[Chairman, First National Bank.]



JAMES B. FORGAN.

The year 1922 showed little change from 1921. The conditions in both years have been determined by the after effects of the war. The year 1922, however, has shown considerable progress in that the liquidation which had been begun was continued and in many ways brought about a restoration of normal conditions within the country.

Thus, for example, the currency situation is a satisfactory one, and there is no longer any danger of a catastrophe overwhelming our banking and industrial structure. The natural resources and recuperative powers of this country are still so great that to some extent it prospers independently of conditions in the rest of the world.

Europe Prevents Rapid Pace.

Nevertheless, in spite of improvement in our own country, conditions would be by far better if outside of our boundaries matters were being adjusted satisfactorily. The condition of Europe has prevented a proper disposal of the surplus of many of our crops and has disarranged the customary method of financing our agricultural industry.

On the whole, the European situation is more serious than it was even a year ago. The question of the German reparations and the interallied debts is as far from settlement as ever. There has been endless discussion, but no concrete proposals have been brought forward satisfactory to all parties. Public sentiment all over the world is still unwilling to consider dispassionately these questions which are really economic rather than political.

Public Opinion Must Change.

Little improvement in Europe can be expected until there is a change in public opinion, and until there is, there can be little hope of a restoration of complete prosperity in the world and in our own country.

We have probably progressed on the road of recovery as far as we can by our own unaided efforts. Further improvement depends upon developments which are not entirely within our control, but the government of our country can accomplish much if it will use its best efforts to induce other countries to enter into discussions with frankness and good will in order to discover ways and means which will bring real peace and prosperity to the world.

9,964,000 BALES OF COTTON WERE RAISED IN YEAR

Price Rises Toward Last; More Acreage In.

A cotton crop of 9,964,000 bales was raised in 1922, compared with 7,953,641 bales in 1921, and a five year average, 1916-'20, of 11,930,641 bales.

The firm price Dec. 1 was 23.8c per pound, compared with 16.2c in 1921. High prices have induced farmers to prepare a larger acreage for 1923, in expectation of continued high prices.

PRICE OF MILK GOES UP.

Laporte, Ind., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The new year will begin with one unpleasant thing for the housewife, for it was announced today that, effective at once, the price of milk will advance from 10 to 12 cents a quart and from 6 to 7 cents a pint.

PRICES OF MEAT NEARLY BACK TO PRE-WAR LEVEL

The wholesale prices of beef, pork, and veal have become virtually stable at levels close to those which prevailed in 1913, according to Charles E. Herrick, president of the Institute of American Meat Packers, in a statement issued by the institute reviewing the meat trade during the year just closed. Two other important elements in the present situation, Mr. Herrick said, are that domestic consumption of meat per capita in 1922 shows an increase and that the British pork market, an important export outlet, shows a recent and present slump in values.

In commenting on the present relatively low prices of meats, Mr. Herrick pointed out that, in the case of fresh pork cuts, light pork loins were selling at wholesale at Chicago the week of Dec. 16 only 2 cents a pound higher than during the same week in 1913; fresh hams, 4 cents a pound higher, and leaf lard, spare ribs, and skinned pork shoulders, only 1 cent higher.

CRIME DECREASE IN 1922, SAYS FITZMORRIS

Crime decrease in Chicago, steadily recorded since 1919, was marked in 1922, according to the annual report issued last night by Chief of Police Charles C. Fitzmorris.

The greatest cut was in the number of automobiles reported stolen—from 6,799, last year, to 3,863, this year. During the first eleven months of 1922 3,880 automobiles were recovered, the report indicates. Automobile thefts in most other cities are increasing in number, according to Chief Fitzmorris.

The chief's report shows the number of burglary complaints was 3,997 up to Dec. 1, 1922, as compared to 4,332 for the corresponding months last year; robbery complaints numbered 1,841 year and 2,312 in 1921; the number of larceny complaints was cut from 3,475 to 1,848, and "other crimes" from 542 to 446.

The total number of crime complaints was cut from 10,661 in 1921, to 8,132 in 1922, according to the report.

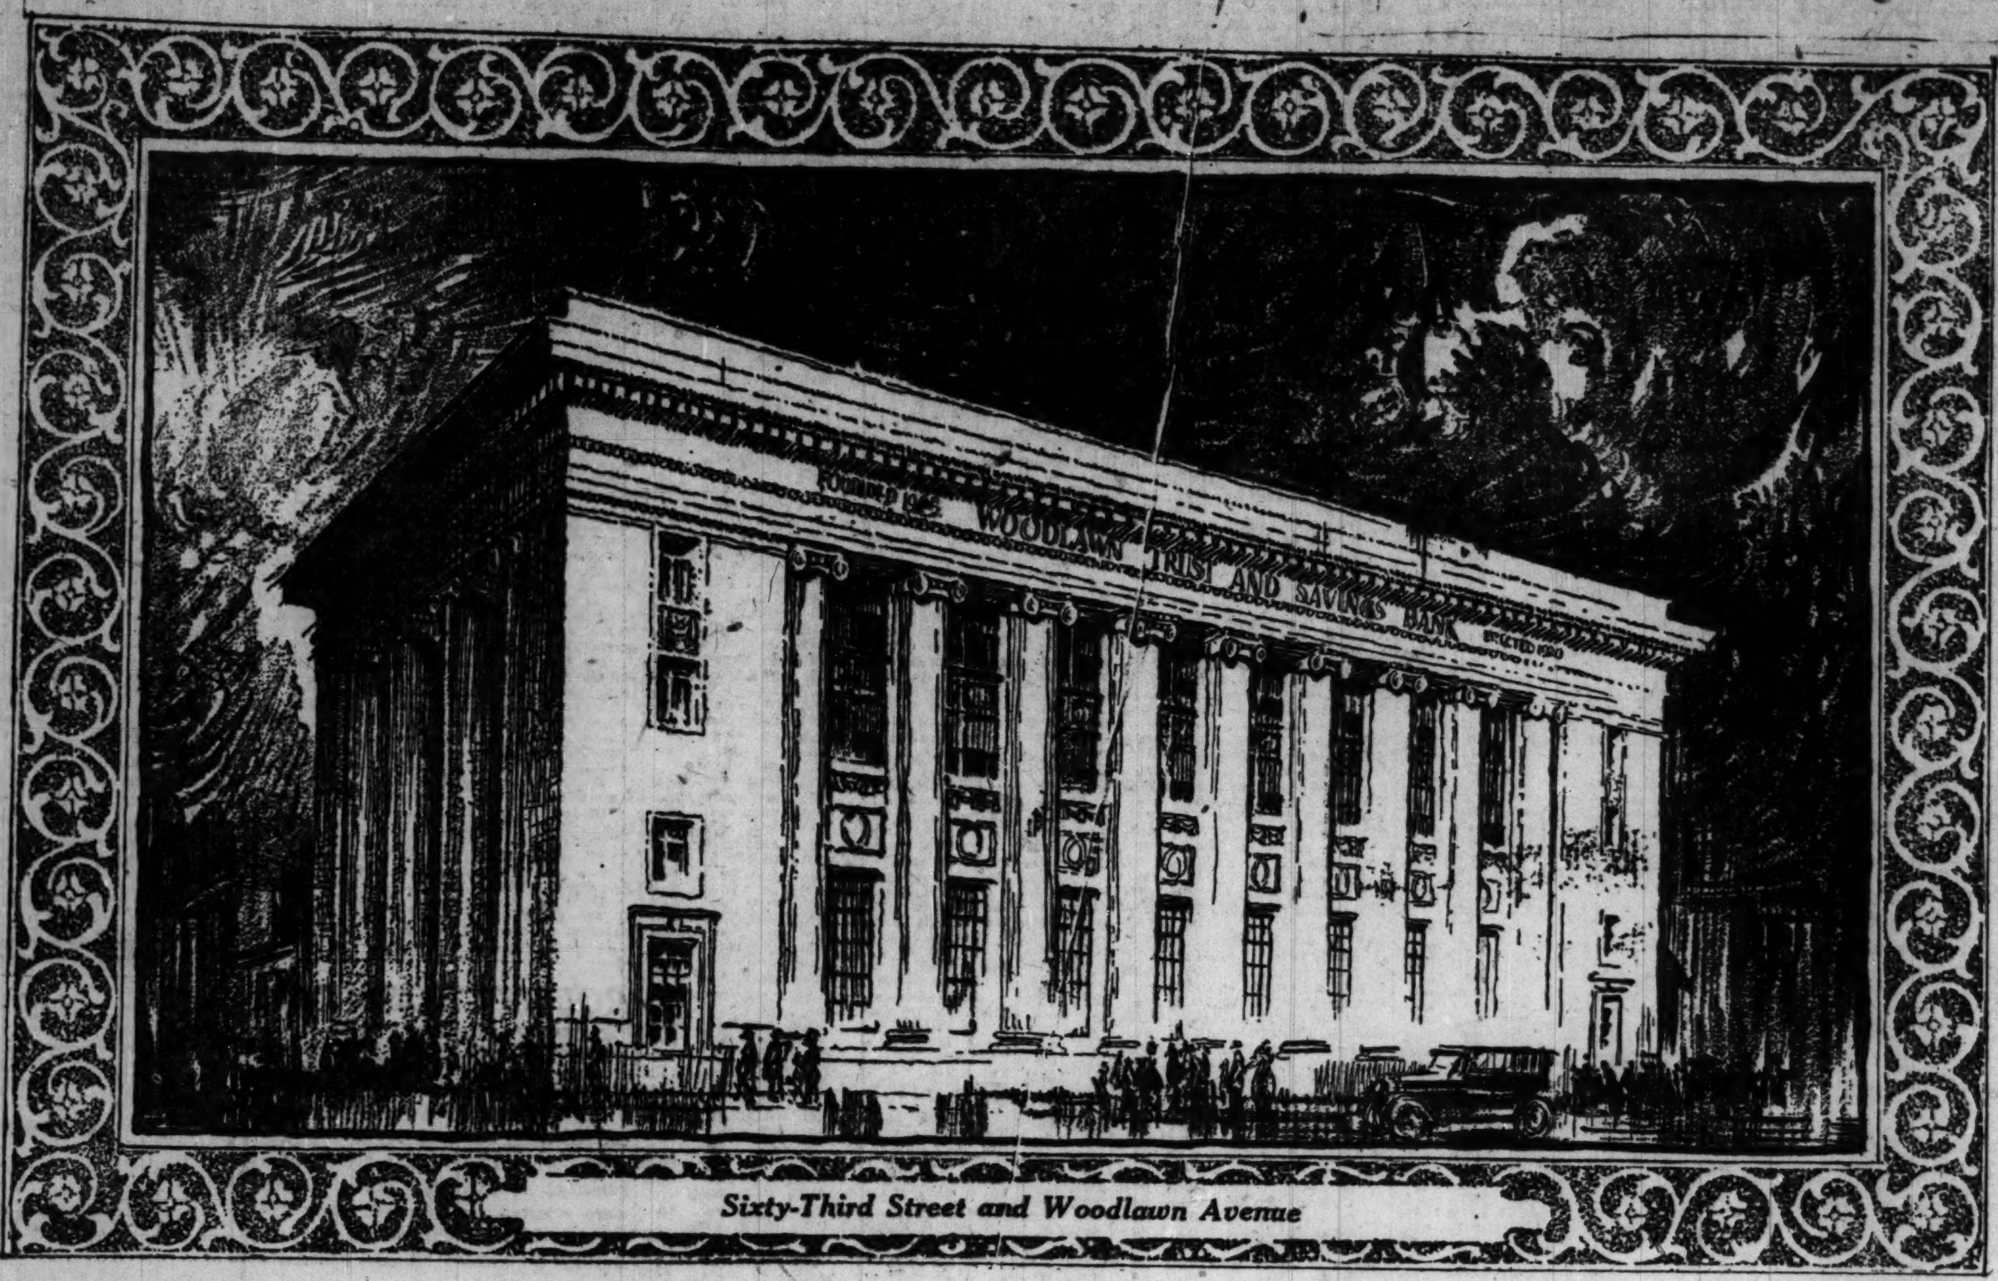
Formal Opening

WOODLAWN·TRUST·AND·SAVINGS·BANK·



WOODLAWN TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK

Sixty-Third Street and Woodlawn Avenue

You are cordially invited to attend the reception and opening today and tomorrow, January 1 and 2, from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.

WOODLAWN'S oldest bank, having outgrown its quarters, found it necessary to secure a new and larger home. It was determined that the highest standards should be fully maintained. Its architecture should be of the noblest type. Its construction should be strong and durable. It should have a beautiful Banking Room, providing every comfort for its patrons. Its equipment should be the best for maximum service. Customers' valuables should be safeguarded by the strongest and most modern steel vaults. Offices above the Bank should be of easy access by elevator and stairway. The new home of the Woodlawn Trust & Savings Bank, erected to serve the community, fully maintains these standards. The beauty of its classic architecture, harmonizing massive Ionic and slender Corinthian, is universally conceded. The exterior is of fine, hard Bedford Limestone from the quarries of southern Indiana. There is no material that lends itself more to nobility of design and beauty of sculpture than this stone. The great columns and the lovely carving ornamenting this structure are notable examples of its use.

On entering the building, the beautiful main Banking Room is directly ahead. The walls are of Caenstone, imported from France, relieved at intervals by tall Corinthian columns. This style has been maintained throughout in exquisitely carved Botticino marble brought from Italy, and ornamental bronze, as artistically and delicately wrought as a piece of jewelry. The buff tiled floors, blending with the walls and window draperies, form a perfect setting for the lofty ceiling, rich in delicate tracery and harmonious color. Suspended from the ceiling are eight great chandeliers, fashioned from bronze and cathedral glass, flooding the room with mellow light, while upon every desk stands a handsome lamp of special design. The use of carefully selected patterns in ornamental iron represents the last note in interior decorating, making a delightful combination of utility and artistic beauty. Adjacent to the main Banking Room is the Ladies' Room, finished in ivory—delightfully and completely appointed for Madame. Nearby is the Conference Room, an example of the beauty of wood wainscoted walls and decorative ceiling. On the mezzanine floor is the Directors' Room, a contrast of walnut paneling and deep color tones. All woodwork and cabinet work is of the finest and produces an effect of richness and distinction.

The high standards of excellence determined upon have been further maintained throughout the building. Beautiful imported seamless chenille carpeting was selected for the Conference and Directors' Rooms. Battleship linoleum is used in all cashiers' spaces and for the Accounting Room. The draperies are of the best sunfast materials and blend with the decorations and floor coverings. The furniture is a rich brown American walnut of Georgian design. The officers' and directors' chairs are upholstered with top grain morocco leather that matches the inlaid leather tops of the desks. Extreme care has been used in securing a design and color scheme to thoroughly harmonize with the whole bank interior.

In order to give the maximum service to the public, special steel furniture and equipment of the most modern and efficient design have been installed. To this end, pure air at a constant temperature is maintained by a wonderful heating and ventilating plant, and a comprehensive electrical system for lighting and power has been provided throughout the bank. Everything possible has been done to maintain efficient service.

Above the banking floor are the offices, which can be reached by the elevator or stairway at the main entrance. They are light and airy, with sound-proof partitions. Every convenience, such as compressed air, adequate lighting and water connections, has been furnished for the tenants.

Below the Main Banking Room is the Community Room, reached by elevator or stairway. This room, with its comfortable furniture, has been set aside for public use at any time, day or evening. Business, neighborhood, and club gatherings are always welcome here.

Customers' valuables are safeguarded by the massive door of the Safety Deposit Vaults, which weighs over 50,000 pounds, and with its necessary attachments over 60,000 pounds—30 tons. Yet so perfectly is it poised that you can easily swing its tremendous bulk. It is one of the largest doors on any Safety Deposit Vault in Chicago or the middle west. The entire building is perfectly appointed and is of fireproof construction throughout. This high standard has been maintained and the result achieved through the co-operation and effort of the following contractors:

COUNTY HOSPITAL BUSY LAST YEAR; 90,000 EXAMINED

Almost 90,000 persons passed through the receiving wards of the county hospital during 1922. Some 37,000 were admitted as patients; about 28,000 were rejected, and approximately 21,000 were treated at the dispensary, according to Warden Michael Zimmer's annual report.

Weekly conferences were held in the pathological, x-ray and surgical divisions, which contributed to efficiency. Heart clinics were also established.

Work of the x-ray section has increased vastly, and installation of a machine for treating cancer is planned. The dental division was greatly employed.

The charity wardrobe gave out almost 200,000 garments to needy persons. This service did not cost the county one penny.

PRICES OF GRAIN ERRATIC IN ALL PARTS OF WORLD

Deflation and Supply and Demand Big Factors.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

World's economic, political, and financial conditions have exerted more influence on the price of wheat in the United States and other countries the last year than the mere shifting of a few millions of bushels of grain around in the supply and demand columns.

For two years the grain trade has failed to a great extent correctly to weigh and balance various factors which have had such an important bearing in increasing or decreasing the demand. This accounts to some extent for the heretofore almost inexplicably erratic fluctuations in the price the world over.

At the beginning of 1920 statistics indicated there was an extremely close adjustment of supply to demand throughout the world. This condition also existed during 1921, yet values worked steadily lower during the two years, and, barring a rather sensational upturn in March and April, 1922, the break did not culminate until September this year, when the May delivery at Chicago touched 99⅝c.

Three Years of Deflation.

During the three years the world's economic and financial position was going through the process of deflation from a war to a peace basis, and until such a time as the world's position was corrected, the decline could not be stopped, except for a brief period.

This prolonged decline in the price can only be compared with that which came after the American civil war. Then it was not until approximately 1870 that the trend became upward once more. It continued upward for several years, then was followed by a period of irregular declines and bulges lasting until around 1895. This, however, was due largely to the fact that production in the United States during that period was increasing by leaps and bounds, whereas now there is a gradual narrowing of the margin between the average crop and the average home requirements.

World's Production Increases.

From 1893 to 1913 there was an average increase in the world's production of wheat, as shown by the Department of Agriculture Year Book of 1921, of approximately 50,000,000 bu per annum. This data is compiled from countries that have reported their crops for many years. The same upward trend of production was shown in the total of all the countries, including Russia, Bulgaria, Roumania, and Austria-Hungary.

The average around 1893 was about 1,500,000,000 bu for the countries reporting regularly, while by 1913 it had been swelled to around 2,500,000,000 bu, a figure at which it remained in 1922, although the crop based on the annual average increase should be close to 3,000,000,000 bu this year.

World Misses Russian Rye.

World's consumption of wheat has been swelled to some extent by the impossibility of obtaining rye from Russia, which before the war was by far the largest exporter. Owing to the demand for this grain the production in the United States has more than doubled in the last ten years to around 95,000,000 bu, while in Canada the rye crop this year is around 50,000,000 bu, compared with 1,000,000 bu less than ten years ago. A good part of the increase in the latter country, however, is due to better farming methods, rye being seeded on land that has been summer fallowed for many years.

Consumptive and seed requirements for the 1900-20 period averaged approximately 6 bu of wheat per capita for the United States, compared with around 5.5 bu during the previous twenty years. Population has been steadily increasing, and so has consumption, so if the consumption for 1922 should be about an average, home bread and seed requirements should reach 650,000,000 bu out of a total crop of 856,000,000 bu, suggesting 206,000,000 bu available for export without allowing for carryover either at the beginning or the ending of the season.

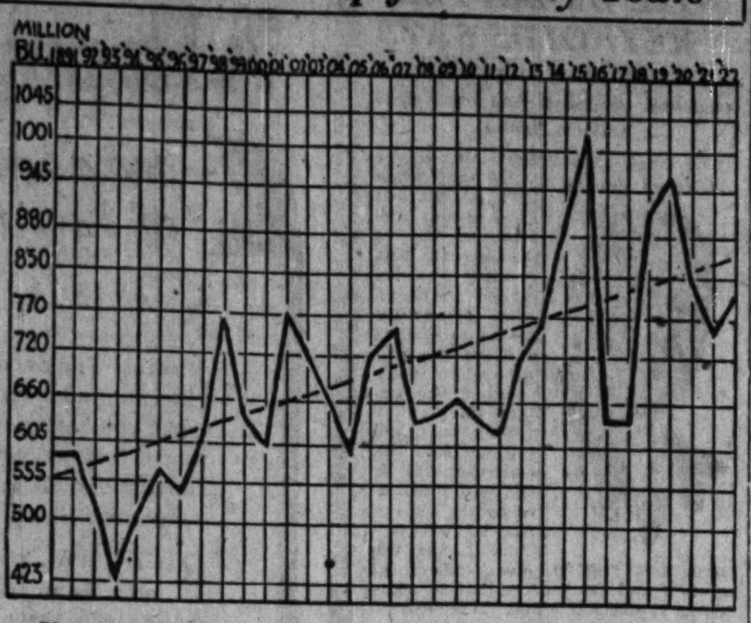
So far this season actual clearances have been around 150,000,000 bu, suggesting that the United States and the world in general are closer to a domestic basis, from a theoretical statistical position than any one in the trade believes. The general estimate as to the surplus of the United States is 225,000,000 to 250,000,000 bu, although such figures can only be secured by subnormal consumption.

New Wheat Acreage Short.

With the winter wheat acreage in the United States for the 1923 crop around 1,600,000 smaller than the previous year, and the condition on Dec. 1 the third lowest on record, it would seem as though importing countries of the world would do well to increase their acreage of fall sown grain as much as possible.

Latest authoritative figures as to world's supply and demand show that theoretically there is a surplus of only 26,000,000 bu wheat for carryover at the end of this season on July 1, 1923, whereas at the end of the 1920-21 season it was 128,000,000 bu, and compares with a pre-war average of well over 200,000,000 bu.

U. S. Wheat Crop for Thirty Years



Since 1891 the wheat crop of the United States has shown a gradual tendency to increase, the greatest fluctuations being caused by the war conditions in 1915, '16, '17, and '18. The peak was reached in 1915, when the crop exceeded the billion bushel mark.

Finance Big Influence.

Owing to uncertainty as to the future, due to economic, political, and financial conditions, the tendency of all countries of the world for many months has been to run on limited supplies of grain. As a result of this policy the invisible supply, usually sufficient to last a country two months or more, has been greatly reduced, a factor which has heretofore not received the attention it should. European buyers, however, seem to be keenly awake now to the danger of allowing supplies to decrease further, yet foreign markets have not been affected materially by the fact as stocks on ocean passage are now well in excess of last year.

Argentine and Australia, which commence to ship new wheat around Jan. 1, start the season with practically no reserves of old wheat for the first time in years. Should anything happen to bring about a short crop in any two of the leading world's exporting countries at the same time the grain trade would be confronted with a situation wherein the theoretical demand would exceed the supply. As long as Russia is not an exporter this fear will continue to hang over the wheat consuming countries.

Await Credit Bills.

Financial conditions in Europe would seem to furnish the key as to whether or not values in the United States are to be high in 1923. There is always the danger of financial disturbances of international magnitude due to the inflation of the currency in many European countries. Financially the United States and Canada, with a few of the smaller European countries, are the only ones whose money is equal to the pre-war parity with gold.

Great Britain is rapidly recovering, as shown by the material advance in sterling of late. Should congress pass the proposed foreign grain credit bill for $250,000,000 and the farm credit bill, there should be no reason for financial conditions standing in the way of large purchases of grains in the United States by importing countries.

Corn Values Erratic.

Corn values, like those of wheat, have moved in a most erratic manner, but the break ran its course and values turned upward, due to the same influences as dominated the major grain. For all practical purposes, all the corn the United States raises is required at home, and up to the last few years exports have not been large for a long time.

Owing to the shortage in feed crops of Europe the latter has found it necessary to buy corn from us rather heavily, and to some extent this has affected the market. However, this was offset by the fact that the quantities which left the farmers during the 1921-22 season were unusually large, in comparison with the total crop, even when it is considered that aggregate holdings at the beginning of the season were the largest on record.

Corn Crop All Needed.

As far as commercial grain goes, the United States never raises the amount of corn it is credited with. In 1919, according to the department of agriculture's reports for 1921, there was 4,000,000 acres that went into silos, which, on an average yield of 28.9 bushels per acre for the country, would suggest 115,000,000 bushels. Likewise, 14,500,000 acres were used for fodder and forage, accounting for 420,000,000 bushels more.

In fact, the census returns disclose that, outside two distinct districts, the amount of commercial corn that enters interstate commerce is extremely limited. The largest shipping area is in northeastern Illinois, within a radius of 150 miles of Chicago, and the other in northwestern Iowa and the adjoining portions of Nebraska and South Dakota, within a radius of about 150 miles of Omaha.

During the 1910-20 period about 38 per cent of the total Illinois crop was shipped out of the county where grown, although this does not necessarily mean that it left the state.

While corn values have worked back to around a prewar level, or slightly above, the financial return to the farmer is not as great as during that period, due to the increased cost of production and of getting the grain or live stock to market. Further readjustment is needed between the price of corn and other commodities, and the general impression of the trade is that corn will have to advance.

Less Oats Needed.

The oats crop of the United States has been gradually declining, partly due to adverse weather conditions and partly due to the fact that a large yield is no longer needed. The increased use of auto trucks has reduced the consumptive demand in the leading cities of the country to a great extent, and the horseless age promises to force a change in farm rotation schemes in many sections of the west and northwest.

SIMPSON WARNS AGAINST PERILS TO PROSPERITY

Reports Good Business, but Sees Dangers.

BY JAMES SIMPSON.
[Vice President Marshall Field & Co.]

The year has closed with indications of vigorous revival in business. The movement of general merchandise has been good; the continued rise in farm products, especially cotton, corn and wheat, has resulted in better buying on the part of more than one-third of our population. There is at least some indication also of firmer export demands.

Chicago and the mid-west generally have experienced the best retail holiday trade in their history. It is estimated to have run around $100,000,000 in Chicago alone. Our own retail store handled over 500,000 shoppers daily for a number of days and broke all records in the volume of its holiday business. The demand was for staples and for luxuries and semi-luxuries alike; for house furnishings, toys, radio sets and other mechanical devices.

All this indicates a very real improvement over the conditions that have prevailed during the past two years, and may well be viewed with restrained optimism. Crops have been good, stocks of merchandise low, factory output until recently below normal, building operations very active, and basic industries progressively better engaged.

Conditions in Europe.

We should not shut our eyes, however, to the unfavorable conditions unless we want to invite the same violent reaction experienced during 1920. Conditions in Europe are anything but satisfactory, and show no pronounced betterment, resulting in light exports for us and increased prices for our imports.

Higher price levels absorb increasing proportions of capital and credit, and thus tend to raise the price of goods and wages. Operating costs tend upward, while consumer resistance must be reckoned with by the retailer as prices go higher. Taxes are exceedingly high and absorb a considerable part of the total national income.

The banks are in strong condition and can supply credit, at reasonable rates, for any needed business expansion.

Some Danger of Future.

It is not unlikely that there will be some recession in the recent acceleration of business on account of excessive wages in some lines, unduly high commodity prices, the maladjustment between manufactured goods and farm products, and somewhat higher capital and credit.

In such times of readjustment as these we are now going through the tendency towards ill-advised legislation is one of our greatest dangers. With the purpose back of the proposals to help the farmer there can be much sympathy, but if credits are made easy to business generally by bank inflation, or to the agricultural interest by special legislation, the results are almost certain to be that viciou circle of higher wages, higher materials, higher crops, and higher costs in general all along the line.

This may be exhilarating while it lasts, but the reaction and depression which ensue bring forth further proposals to cure the inevitable hardships by legislative patent medicines.

In the light of the conditions that now prevail business ought to be good during the year ahead, but the merchant should strive to get and keep his business in a safe, well fortified, and conservative position. There is need for maintaning ample working capital well in hand, especially during times when charges are rapid in the margins of profit or in general money conditions.

RECEIPTS OF CORN IN CHICAGO MARKET SHATTER RECORDS

Receipts of corn at Chicago for the year 1922 broke all records, aggregating around 193,000,000 bushels, an increase of 10,000,000 bushels over the previous year. Shipments of 119,000,000 bushels were the second largest on record, being exceeded only by the 131,000,000 bushels in 1898.

Arrivals of wheat increased 11,135,000 bushels over last year, and with five exceptions were the largest on record. Shipments exceeded last year's by 9,137,000 bushels. Aggregate arrivals of the five leading grains were 29,068,000 bushels more than the previous year and shipments increased 26,130,000 bushels. Flour receipts and shipments were the largest in the history of Chicago.

There was a material falling off in the movement of packing house products, with arrivals of cured meats nearly 23,000,000 pounds and fresh meats 202,000,000 pounds less than in 1921, while shipments of cured meats decreased 242,000,000 pounds and of fresh meats 181,000,000 pounds.

Sixty-eight years ago, the House of Greenebaum was founded upon a policy that today is maintained in all its full strength. To make this institution a financial center for all who sought sound investments that would withstand the most severe tests, was the chief object of its founder.

To aid in the development of progressive communities by the financing of worth-while enterprises, and to disseminate the benefits of thrift through conservative investments—these have been the aims of Greenebaum Sons since 1855.

Two-thirds of a century's activities have become history and many unforeseen conditions have arisen, but, through it all, the House of Greenebaum has upheld the original purposes of its founder, grown with the strength of duties fulfilled and today looks toward the future with a vision of still greater service in the field of safe investments.

DEALERS TAKE HOPEFUL VIEW FOR LIVE STOCK

Predict Prices to Farmer Will Be Satisfactory.

An optimistic view regarding the live stock industry for 1923 is taken by leading stockyards interests, with the belief expressed that while the movement of cattle and hogs to market during the next three months may be heavy, the financial return to the farmer will be fairly satisfactory.

Consumption of meat in this country and in Europe will be on a larger scale than in 1921 and in 1922, and financial conditions are also better. Export demand for hog products had considerable influence on prices at times in 1922, and may have even more effect this year.

At the close of the year the average price of cattle was $1@2 per 100 lbs. higher than a year ago, while hogs were up around $1 and lambs $3@4 higher.

Movement of live stock to Chicago during 1922 aggregated more than 16,000,000 of all kinds, and was about an average run, decreasing 500,000, as compared with 1921, and 550,000 in excess of 1920, although falling 2,200,000 under the record figures of 18,216,000 in 1919.

Shippers Buy Live Stock.

An outstanding feature of the live stock situation in 1922 was the heavy buying by shippers and feeders, about 25 per cent of the total arrivals at Chicago, or 4,255,000 head, being shipped out, making the best showing since 1908, with one exception. The demand for feeder cattle was the best in the history of the trade, and 3,475,000 were shipped back to the country for fattening during eleven months, the largest on record, exceeding the 1921 total by 1,043,000.

Feeding sheep and lambs were also in demand, with the eight leading markets shipping 2,879,000 to the country, a gain of 678,000 as compared with 1921. The material change in the situation had considerable to do with this, as wool is bringing a high price and there is a general disposition to look for a keen demand for shearlings and feeder stock in case of any decline in prices. At one time feeders paid as much for lambs as packers did for the meat trade.

Cattle Feeding Larger.

Drought in the west and southwest tended to cause heavy liquidation of cattle in that section and forced the shipment of the animals to states where feed, especially corn, was abundant. This is now reflected in materially enlarged feeding operations, the government report showing an increase of 27 per cent in the number of cattle on feed in eleven states as compared with 1921, Iowa increasing 50 per cent and Illinois 35 per cent. Feeding operations in 1922 were extremely profitable, netting the farmer as much as 50 cents per bu more for corn by marketing it on the hoof than he could make by sending it to terminal markets.

Hogs High in March.

Hogs sold at the highest price of the year in March, when they touched $11.50, with the average for the month $10.45, while in January, 1922, the low month, the average was $7.90 per 100 pounds, with a top of $9.50 for best lights. There was an unusually wide spread between the big packer kinds and the fancy bacon hogs in August and September, around $3.65 per 100 pounds, but at the end of the year the difference was reduced to around $1.

As a result of the heavy feeding operations the average weight of hogs received for 1922 was above the normal of recent years.

Cattle sold up to $14 for a few lots in the second week in December, the highest of the year, and during the late summer and early fall months prices advanced to $4.35 above the low in the spring for heavy finished steers. Lowest prices were made in January, the average during that month being $7.05, while in November and December it was close to $10 and in October the average stood at the best of the year, $10.65.

Cheaper Cuts in Demand.

Increased consumption of the cheaper cuts of beef threw an enlarged call upon the cow and heifer trade, which carried prices up from $8.50, the low for the best heifers in February, to $12 in October, with a reaction of over $2 in the latter months.

Unusual interest was devoted to the stocker and feeder trade, $8.40 to $8.50 being paid for the best during the late spring, summer, and early fall months, with $8.50 the best of the year for fairly heavy steers that did not have to be fed more than sixty days. The finish found the values well toward the lowest of the year despite the heavy demand and an abundance of money available for feeders.

Lamb prices had a range for the tops of $13.50 to $16.65 for the year, with the finish around $1 under the highest. Top prices on aged sheep were $11.25 in March, with a scarcity of offerings, with the finish around $8.50.

GRAIN AND COMMODITY PRICES FLUCTUATE WIDELY DURING YEAR

Fluctuations in grain and commodity prices the last year were unusually wide, in keeping with the various conflicting influences. The difference between the high and low figures on grains, however, was not as great as during 1921. Range of prices for leading commodities for the last two years follow:

TEXTILES ACTIVE; PRICES HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR

Steady, and at times sensational, advances of all raw material—cotton, wool, and silk—to abnormally high levels, was the controlling factor which forced constant upward price revisions in all textiles, woven and knitted from such raw materials. During the greater part of the year manufacturers experienced great difficulty in getting their prices up to levels based on actual replacement costs. Owing to stubborn resistance on the part of buyers, sellers often found it hard to move goods even at a slight advance.

Producers of cotton goods, both unfinished (print cloths and gray goods) as well as of finished fabrics, operated with extreme caution, refusing to sell far ahead at any time, pending developments in raw cotton. Purchasers also were ultra-conservative until within the last few months, buying only as their immediate requirements dictated. The only exceptions were lines opened for future delivery and which always have to be contracted for in advance.

Knit goods and woolens had a good year, with prices higher.

Mammoth Edifice Plan for Furniture Exhibitions

Chicago is to have the greatest furniture exhibition building in the world. An $8,000,000 project was announced during the year for Lake Shore drive, between Erie and Huron. This will give Chicago first place as a furniture exhibition center. The new building will be called the American Furniture Mart.

S. WATER ST. DID $500,000,000 IN BUSINESS IN 1922

Producers, Consumers Do Not Share in Benefit.

Business in dairy products, poultry, potatoes, fruits and vegetables in Chicago in 1922, aggregated more than $500,000,000, or $25,000,000 above 1921.

Prices on the whole were lower for the producers, without them getting as much benefit as was expected, while consumers received little advantage from the big crops, due to high costs charged by retailers.

In dairy products the butter, egg and cheese trade aggregated $264,000,000, or $8,000,000 more than in the previous year. Of eggs there were more than 5,320,000 cases handled, a gain of 30,000 for the year.

Prices of Butter.

In butter annuals of 310,000,000 pounds showed a gain of 10,000,000 pounds. Prices for butter were up to 56½c in November, or 2 cents above the previous year's top, while the low was 30½c early in the summer, or 5½c above the low level of the previous year.

Eggs touched 54 cents as the high for the year, compared with 7[illegible]½ cents in 1921, while the low in both years was 19c and 19½c. Poultry business was larger and prices averaged lower.

There were 85,000 carloads of fruits and vegetables handled in Chicago during the year, showing the immensity of the consuming and distributing ability of the Chicago market and in the country dependent on the Chicago market for supplies. This supply was 10,000 carloads in excess of the 1921 business, while the value for the last year was $90,000,000, an increase of $15,000,000.

Fewer Potatoes Handled.

In potatoes alone 18,000 carloads were handled, or 1,500 less than in 1921, and of fruits there were approximately 30,000 cars, or practically the same as the previous year.

Business in watermelons aggregated 3,500 cars, or a gain of 300 cars; and of canteloupes 3,000 cars, or about the same as the previous year.

Producers complained of car shortage during the important shipping season for all fruits and vegetables, yet supplies were ample and housewives took advantage of the lowered prices for fruits and cheap sugar and canned unusual quantities.

200,000 RECEIVED CHARITY IN LAST TWELVEMONTH

The county agent gave relief to almost 9,000 needy families in the year. Physicians on County Agent William H. Ehemann's staff made about 20,000 calls on the sick who were unable to pay for urgently needed medical attention.

Eight thousand six hundred and forty-nine families received aid from the department of outdoor relief, working in connection with the county agent.

Referring to all charitable institutions of the county, about 200,000 received help of some sort free of charge in 1922.

'22 SPLENDID; '23 WILL BE BETTER, REYNOLDS SAYS

BY GEORGE M. REYNOLDS.

(Chairman, Continental and Commercial National Bank.)

GEO. M. REYNOLDS.

The word satisfactory should be written at the top of the page when 1922 is assigned its place in history, so far as business in this country is concerned. There were many discouragements and yet the favorable outweighed the unfavorable.

The outstanding problem, as we enter 1923, is the one presented by the European situation. That seems the most difficult of solution and the fear is that in some degree it will hang over from year to year.

With the exception of England, France and Italy, those countries abroad to which in the past we have sold much of our surplus, especially of raw materials, are not in position to continue buying and paying for any great amount of what we should like to sell them.

The volume of trade, both wholesale and retail, has had an upward trend and reports from our depositors are to the effect that there is no slowing down of the movement of goods into consumers' hands.

At the beginning of the new year the question uppermost in the minds of business men is, what of the future? According to my recollection, most of the periods of business recovery have lasted considerably more than a year. The one in which we now find ourselves has run barely twelve months.

Then, too, it usually happens that a season of prosperity is not checked until, through encroachment upon bank reserves, money becomes scarce, rates rise, and credit is overextended. Now reserves are abundant, rates comparatively low, and the credit structure is sound.

A Happy New Year

NEW YEAR ushers in the hope for a greater success — greater happiness — greater wealth. The accumulation of wealth is based upon a fundamental ability to save—to keep what you have and add to it gradually. Then, in the final analysis, the wealth you have accumulated will multiply of itself—for everyone knows that wealth creates wealth.

RIGHT now, with a New Year just beginning, is an admirable time to learn systematic thrift through the purchase of a bond—on the partial payment plan. The bonus, dividend or gift check you may have just received will meet the first payment—or perhaps buy a whole bond and a payment on another—so right now seems to be the logical time to begin the accumulation of your future wealth.

1923 SHOULD BE MIDDAY OF 1922'S BUSINESS DAWN

crease of 13 per cent. While these two indices are compiled on slightly different bases, the essential fact is that the general average of commodity prices has risen about 14 per cent during the year. The advance was accelerated during the last half of the year, Dun's table showing a rise of 9 points in the first six months and of 12 points in the last half of the year.

While the average of commodity prices now stands around 64 per cent above 1913, it is just about half that of May, 1920, when prices reached their "peak." This, again, measures the deflation that has occurred in less than two years and the return to something approaching "normalcy."

"Barometer" Is Satisfactory.

The iron and steel industry, one of the traditional "barometers" of business, illustrates the year's marked progress in industry. The average daily production of pig iron during 1922, was about 60 per cent above 1921, while the production of steel ingots represented an increase of about 70 per cent. The November production of steel was at a rate of nearly 40,000,000 tons per year, or approximately 75 per cent of the estimated aggregate productive capacity.

The year has been extraordinary and well sustained activity in the building industry. As measured by contracts, a compilation by the federal department of commerce shows a gain of about 50 per cent over 1921.

The automobile industry surprised all forecasts by exceeding the previous record output of 1920. Production for 1922 was about 2,500,000 units and the unexpected demand constitutes one of the chief evidences of the broad foundation for a sustained upward movement in general business.

Wall Street More Active.

The securities markets, both as to activity and price trend, have followed the general upward movement. During 1922 transactions in stocks listed on the New York stock exchaange aggregated about 260,000,000 shares, compared with 170,000,000 shares in 1921. Bond transactions totaled about $4,145,000,000, par value, compared with $3,485,000,000 in 1921.

The average price of fifty stocks now stands around 85, compared with 68¾ at the end of 1921. The largest advance, however, has been in the stocks of industrial corporations, the average of twenty-five such issues having risen to about 110 from 83 a year ago.

On the other hand, the average of twenty-five railroad stocks has risen only to 60 2-3 from 53 2-3 at the end of 1921.

Bonds also have responded rather slowly, the average of forty listed issues having risen to 78 2-3, from 75 at the close of 1921. But new bond offerings in 1922 aggregated around $5,000,000,000, compared with about $4,000,000,000 in 1921.

What will 1923 bring? It is hardly to be expected that the rate of betterment in general conditions can be continued indefinitely. Nevertheless, all the evidence points to continued orderly improvement. The financial fabric of the country is sound. There are abundant resources of capital and credit for any reasonable expansion. The hard lessons of 1920 and 1921 are too recent to be easily forgotten and may be relied on to prevent any undue "secondary inflation."

The purchasing power of the farmer has been improved by higher prices for his products and liquidation of old debts, while that of the industrial worker has been bettered by a virtual end of unemployment.

Generally, all classes enter the new year with better sentiment, encouraged by obstacles overcome and the more cheerful prospects. There is no reason why the work of the country should not go forward in orderly and sustained progress.

5,250 Patients Treated at the Psychopathic Hospital

Patients at the psychopathic hospital at different times in 1922 numbered 5,250, almost 500 more than the previous year. Dr. Francis Gerty states as the reason for the increase that the functions of the institution are becoming better known and that many persons brought relatives and friends there to be treated for mental troubles and a number of persons came in of their own accord. The remarkable average of cures, which reached 17 per cent in 1920, was maintained.

COUNTY COURT'S EARNING HIGHEST IN ITS HISTORY

The earnings of the County court for the year ending Nov. 1, 1922, were $99,930.85, the highest amount received in one year by the County court in its history. Last year the receipts, which were next highest, amounted to $86,859.75.
